impatience. Why would Adelaide be so stupid?

"Shan't we tease her!" exclaimed Victoria, triumphantly. "Fred says he won't learn his lessons to a woman, and I won't learn any lessons at all, if I can help it, and mamma won't let me if I have a headache. Do you ever have any headaches, Hope?"

"No," said Hope, stoutly, "headaches? Miss Mansfield used to have them at school—you mind. Adelaide! but it's a great shame, and Miss Swinton says girls have no right to have headaches."

"Oh, Hope! 'you mind." Mamma would whip me if I said 'you mind."

"My mother would not," said the resolute Hope, "and mind is a far better word than remember or recollect. It's only one syllable, and—it's our own tongue, and it's a very good word."

bits like this, and mamma says it will be very pretty—and Charlotte's bringing such a load of music and that governess!—vou might come up, Hope, and help me, for I'm aure you're not doing anything yourself."
Hope acknowledged her idleness.
"No indeed, Adelaide; but I have only been two days at home; and—what's the use of working covers? I don't know why people labor at such things."
"Because their mamma's make them," said Adelaide, gravely, and with a sigh; "But I think I like it too, Hope, for it's very pretty, you know."

"But 1 think I like it too. Hope, for it's very presty, you know."

Hope shook her head. She had been visited several times of late by some grave ruminations on this subject, and began to feel that working covers, however presty, was in reality a quite unsatisfactory mode of life. But the coglitations were inarticulate; they had attained no shape, except at presents decided disincination to work at all.

"And, Hope," added Adelaide, "how long do you practice every day?"

"And, Hope," added Adelaide, "how long do you practice every day?"
"I don't practice at all," answered Hope. The sleepy lids of Adelaide's eyes were elevated in wonder.

"Then what in all the world do you do?" exclaimed Victoria. "I should like to be you, Hope—I should like to play all day," but Adelaid thinks she is too old te play."
"I don't play all day," said Hope, with some indignation. "Yesterday I was at Friarsford with my mother, and at Mossgray—"

Friarsford with my mother, and at Mossgray—"
"Oh, Hope !".said Adelaide, "what makes you go to see that girl? she is only a farmer's daughter."
"I don't care for her now," said Hope, with some sadness; "but it's not because she's a farmer's daughter—it's because she is —I mean it's because she practices, and knits and works covers, and doesn't care for anybody—but never mind that. And then we went to Mossgray. We did not see Mr. Gracme; but there's a beautiful pony—the prettiest one ever you saw—and Mrs. Mense says I'm to give it its name. What should I call it, Adelaide? come and help me."
Adelaide slowly shook her head—this was a stretch of invention quite beyond her.
"Call it Mischief," suggested Victoria.
"Mischief," deliberated Hope. "No. I don't like that—I want a pretty name—give me a pretty name, Adelaide."
An idea gradually illuminated Adelaide's stolid countenance.
"Call it Pretty, Hope—that would do very

Give Holloway's Corn Cure a trial. It removed ten corns from one pair of feet without any pain. What it has done ones it will do again.

Remenyl, the violinist, has a rare collection of African ethnological relies, which includes over fitteen luman specimens, and he has applied for a space of not less than 400 square feet at the World's Fair in which to exhibit this rich collection.

No one need fear choiers or any summer complaint if they have a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial ready for use. It corrects all looseness of the bowels promptly and causes a healthy and natural action. This is a medicine adapted for the young and old, rich and poor, and is rapidly becoming the most popular medicine for choiera, dysentery, etc., in the market.

The youthful Emperor of Annam is only twelve years old, and an inveterate cigarette smoker. He is a studious and serious little boy, with a lingering fondness for the childish toys that the French Government sends him for amusement.

A man's wife should always be the same, especially to her husband; but if she is weakt sends him for amusement.

A man's wife should always be the same, especially there husband; but if she is went cannot be, for they will make her "feel like a different person," at least so they all say, and their husbands say so, too.

Mrs. Mackay has again been surprising London with her display of diamonds, and one critic said that she showed more really fine stones at one time than could be seen in all the shop windows on Regent street, Carter's Little Liver Pills must not be con-tric Oil, is ear ache. The young are especially subject to it, and the desirability of this Oil as a family remedy is enhanced by the fact that it is admirably adapted not only to the above allment, but also to the hurts, disorders of the bowels, and affections of the throat, in which the young are specially subject.

Gounod, the composer, is an eccentric individual, and will only work at his own time and to order. It is said that he has twelve unfinished operas lying in his manuscript drawers.

Mr. Job Scales, of Toronto, writes: "A short time ago I was suffering from Kidney Complaint and Dyspepsia, sour stomach and lame back; in fact, I was completely prostrated and suffering intense pain. While in this state a friend recommended me to try a bottle of Northrup and Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. I used one bottle, and the permanent manner in which it has cured and made a new man of me is such that I cannot withhold from the proprietors this expression of my gratitude."
