Though in Handouns.

New York, Dec. 16.—With the aid of his sweetheart, Isabelia Sheffield, Richard Kyle, a young bookkeeper, yesterday afternoon escaped from a Tombs prison-keeper. Kyle was arrested last November, charged with lorging the name of Wackeman & Co., Broadway merchants, to a check for $300. Justico Grady held Kyle in $5,000 bail for trial. The bail was considered excessive, and Kyle was brought from the Tombs prison to the Supreme Court chamber, where a motion was made to reduce the bail. The argument, however, was postoned, and Kyle was remanded to the city prison. The bookkeeper was brought handcuffed to court by Keeper McNamara. Kyle was accompanied by his aweetheart. The trie on the way to the Toombs stopped at a zaloon and entered a private room. Then Miss Sheffield asked McNamara to pull down the blind. While doing so Kyle escaped from the room, and when the keeper attempted to give chase the young woman threw her arms around the officer's neck and held him. Then Miss Sheffield was arrested. The warden has suspended McNamara.
