"Thelma" is known far and near as the est of all Miss Marie Corelli's popuar novels, and every woman sympaizes with and loves the character of the heroine. Mr. Chase has made the iking a very strong and interesting haracter, bringing in the idea of the old Norse mythology, that before death claims one of this race, a beautiful val-kyrie maiden sent by Odin appears in the air and converses with the dying. During the action of the play, when the viking feels that death is near, takes to his ship, sets it on fire, and then holds converse with the valkyrie.

A WARM WELCOME FOR THIS WEEK

Stockings, Awaiting the Duke and Duchess at Toronto---Streets Knives, Forks and Spoons. Crowded Early in the Morning With an Expectant Crowd---The Royal Train Was Ten Minutes Behind Time at Barrie.

Toronto, Ont., Oct. 10.—Not the cit- great semi-circular stand built high into the air, which was izens of Toronto alone, but tens of thousands of people from all over On tario as well, crowded the streets today to welcome Britain's heir and the princess to the heart of Englishspeaking Canada. Although heavy rain clouds hung over the city, the Highest and Lowest Temporatures at main streets became congested at an early hour, and when RAIN BEGAN TO FALL HEAVILY, shortly after 11 o'clock, it had little result in decreasing the masses on the streets, great umbrella covered spaces showing where the people were taking up their stand for the passage of added to the already dense crowds down town, and soon streaming in long columns from the camp at the exhibition grounds came the regiments to the route of the procession.

Two brigades went up Yonge street about 12:30 and were CHEERED TO THE ECHO. The gigantic figure of Col. Sam Hughes at the head of the 45th Lindsay Battalion was recognized by many. Among second brigade were the 57th of Peterboro and the 43rd Carleton Rifles.

The city corps formed at the armories, over 2,000 men in all, and joined the marching thousands. By 1 o'clock over 8,000 men had passed the corner of King and Yonge streets, and each regiment, halting at its assigned position, spread out along the street. It was wonderful to see whole brigades swallowed up in a few minutes in the vast throngs, with nothing to indicate their presence but a bayonet tip here and there among the sea of umbrellas. The headquarters staff, including Gen. O'Grady-Haly, rode direct to the temporary station at the head of St. George street. The building is constructed in the Grecian style of architecture, with a low, arched roof, and many stout but graceful pillars. The takes place today from W. J. Smith & Son's undertaking establishment, at 4 p.m., to Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

COMING ON

ROYALTY'S

FILLED WITH 6,000 SCHOOL CHIL DREN

in many colored costumes was probably the first sight which greeted the royal eyes in Toronto.

By 1:30 all was in readiness here for the reception, and Premier Ross and the cabinet awaited the arrival of the governor-general's train, which preceded that of the royal party. Meanwhile all over the city, along the fourmile route of the procession, traffic had been entirely suspended, and everyone awaited the sound of the royal salute announcing the arrival of the duke and duchess.

TEN MINUTES LATE AT BARRIE Barrie, Ont., Oct. 10 .- The royal train conveying their Highnesses the Duke the royal procession. The closing of and Duchess of Cornwall and York the business houses shortly after noon passed here at 12:10, being 10 minutes late. The train stopped only two minutes, while his highness shook hands with the mayor, the mayor's little daughter presenting the duchess with a large bouquet. The 35th Battalion band played the National Anthem, and, amid cheers, the train has disappeared, people and things.

Mayor Tudhope's little daughter presented the duchess with a bouquet, but there was no address or other ceremony. Over a thousand children sang "God

Save the King," "Rule Britannia" and The Maple Leaf." A tremendous crowd was at the station to see their royal highnesses.

AT TORONTO.

Toronto, Oct. 10 .- The governorexcellency and Sir Wilfrid Laurier joined Premier Ross and the general staff. The rain began to fall more heavily.

A few minutes after the first train came that of their royal highnesses and as it drew up the Toronto Field Battery fired a royal salute, and the six thousand children of the chorus sang "God Save the King."

Their royal highnesses remained but a few minutes, while the song "Prince George," composed in the duke's honor, was sung, and then, headed by the mounted escort, the royal procession arms. A rich green carpet covered the swung out on St. George street, and floor the entire length of the pavilion. started at a smart trot on the long

THE STUDY OF DREAMS

Has Caused French Savant to Deduce Remarkable Theories.

After Years of Study Finds Breams Have a Fabric All Their Own.

The mystery of dreams has been studied by the Paris Institute of Psychology, and after two years of research Prof. H. H. Bergson, who had charge of the investigation, is about to make his report.

In his report Prof. Bergson says: "In a dream I perceive objects and there is nothing there. I see people; I believe I am speaking to them and hear them answer me. There is no person and I say nothing. It all happens as if real things, real persons were there; then when I awake all

What does it mean? Orillia, Ont., Oct. 10.—The royal train stopped here for five minutes, during which time the members of the during which time the members of the during which time the members of the during true that there was nothing there? Is there not a certain sensible matter present to our eyes, to our ears, to our touch waking moments? Close your eyes and pay careful attention to what passes in your field of vision. Many people say that nothing happens. But little by little you can distinguish many things; at first only a black depth; then points of light upon it which come and go, rise and fall; or sometimes a thousand colors appear and play in whirls of luster. This is the principal material of which our dreams are fabricated.

"Again, the ear also has certain in, terior sensations difficult to isolate and perceive while awake, but which detach themselves clearly during the general's train came in at 2:10, and his slumber. Sometimes, too, we hear slumber and Sir Wilfrid Laurier while sleeping the sounds of the exterior world, the crackling of the fire, the rain which strikes the window, the wind playing upon its gamut up the These are converted into chimney. conversations, songs, cries, music and the like, as the case may be.
"As to touch, people often dream that they are floating through space. Now, if you will analyze the dream you will have no difficulty in tracing the workings of your mind in producing it. Your mind was aware of the fact that you were not touching the ground. Since it did not think you were asleep, it did not take the bed nto consideration, hence, naturally, it concluded that you were floating in the air. Whenever you dream that you are flying you feel yourself working with one side, and this side you will invariably find coincides with that which experiences the real sensation which the bed gives your body. This sensation of pressure dissociated from its cause becomes sensation pure and simple, and joined to the delusion of floating in space gives rise to the

"Of more consequence than any tactile sensations, properly speaking, are those which are connected with that we sometimes term interior touch, profound sensations emanating from all points of organism, and particularly from the viscera. One cannot imagine to what degree of fineness and acuteness they attain during sleep. They exist no doubt while we are awake, but then we are distracted by practical actions; we live an external life. Grave maladies have sometimes been foreseen by dreams. They are, in fact, begun when dreamed of. Great physicians have shown how certain sorts of dreams are connected with the different parts of the body, with affections of the digestive, the mysterious. It resembles the birth of all our perceptions. The mechanism of a dream is the same in its grand outlines as that of normal perceptions. When we perceive real objects there is little in our actual perceptions, the sensible material of our perceptions into which our memory has not been introduced. The perception is a composite, on one side, of the real impressions made on the organs of sense, and on the other of the memories which have been associated with the impression, and which profit by its present vitality to come again themselves to life."
