EXHIBITION RESULTS.

Now that the District Exhibition is over, the question naturally arises, What are the results? First we confess to a feeling of disappointment and regret. We regret the course pursued by Kings county. The managers of the Exhibition expected generous support from that quarter, and from all the records of the past had a right to expect it. This support was not forthcoming, and the result was a comparative failure. If the limited display in this respect contained any lesson at all, it was that our farmers have yet to begin this profitable branch of farm work—stock raising. The animals shown were fine, but every one there ought to have been a dozen. In this, as in other respects, the resources of our country remain undeveloped. The show of fruits and vegetables was excellent in quality, but of small supply. With such a fine agricultural country around us every vacant space in the building should have been filled. The same remarks apply to the exhibition, "Stroller Around" in furniture, organs, etc., the display for the most part was confined to Bridgetown. The articles shown were superior in quality and attracted much attention. Singularly enough, Annapolis, where manufactures should abound, sent nothing in the way of furniture and organs, and but few articles in any other line. To say the least, this does not speak well for the enterprise of the ancient capital. We would be glad to believe that this open display of products were timely preparation for prizes would excite a spirit of emulation in all our farmers. But, as is generally the case with human beings, we need to have our lessons often repeated, and applied with great force. This one fact has been demonstrated, that in every line of agriculture our country can do as well as the best. Another fact now waiting to be proved is that all our farms can do alike well. One feature of the late Exhibition worthy of special notice was the Art Gallery and Museum. To this department contributions were freely made, among which were really fine collections of oil paintings, water-colors, chromo, etc. Of native talent, the most notable productions were from Miss Bernice Brown, of Hantsport. An oil painting by this young artist, "Cape Split," a scene on the Bay of Fundy, received the first prize. Another, "The Annapolis River," a scene near Lawrenceville, received honorable mention. Miss Potter, of Clementport, exhibited a very pretty "Coast Scene," which deserved honorable mention, if not a prize. Mr. F. W. Hathaway's collection of paintings—his own work—was very fine, especially his "Happy Family," giving evidence that this gentleman possesses talent as an artist worthy of development. Mrs. Leavitt contributed two small paintings by Professor Grey. A landscape, "A Dutch Valley," in New Brunswick, and a "Cattle Scene," a study. These gems of art deservedly received much attention. Small portraits, in oil, by Mr. R. Harris, of Charlotteville, were exhibited by Rev. E. B. Moore. These portraits are finely executed, and are known to be correct likenesses. Mr. T. S. Whitman showed a painting of great excellence, "The Wreckers," which was much admired. In water-colors were exhibited some ten or twelve pictures of ships built at Annapolis and Annapolis by the late Lawrence Delap, Esq. Two chromo (framed) landscapes, from Rev. E. B. Moore, are really beautiful pictures. J. B. Mills, Esq. showed several fine engravings of Statuary. These, together with other engravings, chromo, etc., with the Museum combined, made the Art Gallery a decided success. Perhaps the best feature of the Exhibition was the impromptu meeting held in Whitman's Hall on Wednesday evening. A number of farmers and orchardists met together to compare notes and discuss modes of procedure in their different lines of work. The President, J. B. Mills, Esq., occupied the chair, and the conversation was of that free and easy style which never fails to convey practical information. We were struck with the remark of one gentleman to the effect that the farming guild was the only one which, having no secrets to conceal, imparts freely to the public the best method to secure success. Manufacturers carefully guard their improvements by patent rights, or secretly conceal the best and cheapest methods of producing results from their rivals. No doubt the exigencies of trade made this a necessary measure. Farmers, on the other hand, cultivate no such jealousy. The improved methods in all lines of agriculture are generally proclaimed. Certainly the meeting on Wednesday evening gave abundant proof of this statement, and the best and most improved methods of grape-culture, berries, apples, etc. Stock and sheep-raising were fully and intelligently discussed from a practical point of view. On the whole, all things considered, the Exhibition was a success, and will, we trust, stimulate every branch of industry represented to more intelligent and practical efforts for the future.

The English Apple Trade.

A cable just received from Liverpool reports the apple market lower, owing to the bad condition of arrivals from this side. This invariably occurs in the shipment of fall apples, many of which cannot stand ocean transportation by the ordinary method of packing in barrels, and have therefore to be forced on the market for what they will fetch. As soon as the winter fruit comes forward however, this drawback will be a great measure obviated. Messrs. Green & Whiteley write from Liverpool under date of September 23rd, as follows:— "There has been quite an improvement in the condition of arrivals this week, except from Canada, and we are enabled to report a better demand and an improvement in prices, red apples being much sought after. The Cophonians brought the best quality of apples from Boston, which were mostly red, and condition being good, they sold readily from 25c to 27c per barrel. The green varieties, such as sweet pippins, were not in such good condition, and made 12c to 15c. An apples are coming very wet, and sales are being made from 12c to 16c, anything sound and attractive making 23c to 27c."—Montreal Gazette.

Canadian Signal Service.

It is proposed to establish a station of the Canadian Signal Service at some commanding point on the shores of the St. Lawrence, where such towers could be placed, and be signalled, the date of her arrival, if an ocean going vessel, to be called immediately to Great Britain. To this end the Dominion Government recently made a proposal to Lord Aberdeen, to forward such reports, providing Lloyd's defrayed one-half the cost of transmission. The proposition was favorably received, but before entering permanently into an arrangement, the British Government must be forwarded for three months on trial, when, if satisfactory, they will accept the offer made by the Dominion Government. It is also suggested that in event of making such an arrangement, the Dominion Government should be authorized to communicate further information across the Atlantic, the same to be signalled from the ship to the signal station which will be transmitted at the expense of the owner of such vessel. On the other hand, the British Government should be authorized to communicate to the Dominion Government, if it is not probable that any further steps will be taken before next Spring, when it is probable the experiment will be tried.

Death of the Rev. Hezekiah McKeeven.

Several of the many friends of the Rev. Hezekiah McKeeven will learn with regret that he died at his residence, the Mathias to communicate any further information across the Atlantic, the same to be signalled from the ship to the signal station which will be transmitted at the expense of the owner of such vessel. On the other hand, the British Government should be authorized to communicate to the Dominion Government, if it is not probable that any further steps will be taken before next Spring, when it is probable the experiment will be tried.

Reciprocity.

The old question of reciprocal free trade between the Canadian Dominion and the Dominion of Uncle Sam is discussed once more in the Ministry about the journals, notably the Globe of Toronto and the Free Press of London, the latter being against it and the former in its favor. Nobody in the United States appears to care much about reciprocity with our Canadian friends at present. Yet we have no doubt that every citizen of this country would be willing to have free trade with the Canada on the same condition that the States of the Union have free trade with each other. If the various provinces should wish it, the thing could very soon be arranged with but a small change from their present general condition.—N. Y. Sun.

It is astonishing the way the $3.50 Reefers, $4.50 Overcoats and $2.50 Long-leeved Shirts are going out of J. W. Beckwith's establishment.

It is impossible to disguise the fact that the Vegetable Compound, prepared under the supervision of the Hon. Dr. J. W. Pinkham, with the superior science and art of modern pharmacy, is the most successful and reliable remedy for all diseases of the blood.
