Scientists in Europe are talking a good deal just now about a curious new machine, to which the name telescriptor has been given. As the name indicates, the object of the machine is to write down words spoken or sent from a distance. The telephone, as at present constructed, enables one person to hear another who is talking perhaps leagues away; the tele-scriptor, it is claimed, will enable any person to send a written message to another person over a telephone. The tele-scriptor has been invented by a German scientist, and, in his words, "its object is to fix telephonic transmissions." His machine is declared to be simply a combination of the typewriter and the telegraph, and without it the inventor claims that the telephone cannot be regarded as complete. The manipulation of the machine is not more difficult than that of the typewriter, and, like the typewriter, the new instrument has a keyboard, above which is placed the box containing the machinery. The same wire which is used for telephonic communication is connected with the telescriptor, and by means of a simple manipulation the current can be directed either into the telescriptor or into the telephone. Thus, when a person wishes to use a telephone, after it has been furnished with this new machine, all he will have to do will be to turn on the current and then write his message on the typewriter. According as it is written the message will be flashed across the wire and an answer will be sent to him in the same manner.

The American Sugar Refining Company has declared the regular quarterly dividend of 3 per cent on its common stock, and 3 1/2 per cent on that portion of the preferred stock entitled to semi-annual dividends, and 1 1/2 per cent on that portion entitled to quarterly dividends.

The Havenmeyer's agents have secured 610 shares of the Woolson Spice Company's stock for $610,000, which leaves only sixty shares. These are held by Spence Arklin, one of the original projectors of the company, who has all along been adverse to the deal. The price paid makes a total investment by the Sugar Trust of $1,260,000 for the 1,750 shares it has secured. The Woolson Company has been one of the most remarkable dividend paying properties in this part of the country, as it was organized in 1882 with $52,000, and not another penny has been added. Since then it has paid $910,000, making an annual dividend of 25 per cent.
