

Four Notable Magazines

The Boy's Own Paper | The Girl's Own Paper

This splendid magazine should be in the hands of every growing boy who loves adventure, travel or sports. It is full of subjects in which boys are interested, and nearly every well-known writer of boy's stories contributes to its pages.

Well illustrated, well written and interesting throughout.

PRICE—Ten Cents Per Copy
By the Year, $1.20

An illustrated magazine written especially for girls and young women, containing an infinite variety of articles on subjects of practical interest. It also has an excellent variety of fiction—both serials and short stories—by the best writers of the day.

PRICE—Ten Cents Per Copy
By the Year, $1.20

The Sunday at Home | The Leisure Hour

This is an illustrated magazine of religious tone, but strictly non-sectarian in character. It treats of religious and philanthropic work the world over. Its fiction features for 1904 include stories by John A. Stuart, Frank T. Bullen, Evelyn Everett-Green, and other prominent writers.

By the Year, $1.20

This is a strictly first-class literary magazine, ranking with the best published in England or elsewhere. It is attractive in its literary character, and splendidly illustrated. Sample copies forwarded on receipt of price.

PRICE—Ten Cents Per Copy
By the Year, $1.20
