Uppers are also advanced about 1c. per pound, and stocks are bare. Prices all round are tending upwards, hides being scarce and dear in proportion to the price of leather, hence values in leather are considered still on the ascendant. The scarcity of hides is accounted for by the large purchases made by American buyers, and leather is also in small stock, caused by the exceptional large export to English buyers last fall and this spring. The market is active, and in the event of prices stiffening to balance the increase in the price of hides, tanners will feel in good shape.

PROVISIONS.—The market generally is quiet, a more or less restricted trade doing at prices not very much altered. In butter the feeling is somewhat easier, and selections have been selling at 13c. per lb.; occasionally 14 cents is reached by the single package; cheese is weaker, has receded in price and is now ruling at 9c. per lb. In hog products there is a fair trade doing, but only in smoked meats. Prices are unaltered; for long clear bacon we quote 8½c. per lb.; hams, 12 to 12½c.; lard is very dull, and a shade cheaper, now 9½ to 9¾c. Eggs are firm and scarce, ruling at an advance of about 2c., and now selling at 14½ to 15c. per dozen.

WOOL.—Dealers have purchased rather freely during the last few days at unchanged quotations, and now seem disposed to wait a short time before buying any more large quantities. In pulled wool there is very little doing, the demand from the mills at the present moment being very light. We understand Mr. John Hallam, of Toronto, purchased from Sir John Lester Kaye, the entire clip of his ranche at Calgary, N. W. T., amounting to 100,000 lbs., the largest purchase, we are told, ever made in Canada at one time.

An extract from Messrs. Willans & Overbury's report as to London and colonial wool sales, dated London, 2nd July, 1890, says: "The current series of sales opened on the 24th of June, but prices of most descriptions showed a marked decline as compared with the closing rates of the April-May auctions. In consequence chiefly of a brisk demand from
