

suggests freezing the Bill until the year 1986 so that more of this research could be done.

I am going to sit down, Mr. Speaker, to make sure that I do not talk this motion out. It is in the best interests of the Canadian farmer that research should be done to provide for what we in the country need to put agriculture in a better position.

Mr. Gilbert Parent (Welland): Mr. Speaker, I would like you to clarify once again exactly how much time I have left because I do not want to take more than a few minutes to say what I have to say. I wonder, Mr. Speaker, if you might tell me how much time I have.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Corbin): The debate will be adjourned at 6.32 p.m.

Mr. Parent: I thank you very much, Mr. Speaker, and I thank—the Hon. Member is trying to say something to me?

Mr. Taylor: There is enough time for you to read the rest of your speech.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Corbin): Order, please. Hon. Members should not talk to each other across the aisle during debate. Remarks should be addressed to the Chair, please.

Mr. Parent: Of course, Mr. Speaker. I understand that and I apologize for not speaking through you to the Hon. Member who just woke up.

Agricultural Subsidies

I would like to add my own few words to the debate. Hon. Members on this side of the House spoke earlier about the different problems we are having. All in all, it is extremely difficult to compare domestic problems, but let us look a little more closely at the export scene. The agricultural community throughout Canada, especially my area which produces 85 per cent of the grapes and therefore wine of Canada—and we do indeed import a great deal more of those products than we have in years gone by—are very much relieved to see that the so-called grain war between the United States and the EEC has cooled off in recent months. We believe that this is a forerunner of things that we wish would come in the days ahead. It has certainly threatened to have a disastrous effect on Canadian farmers over-all, and our farmers rely on exports for fully 50 per cent of—
