clined to treat serious matters too lightly.

The worry of the past few days since the exposures of the bank's troubles has told on him. He seemed very nervous last night, and evidently taken his short confinement in the cells much to heart. He found a small cell with a hard bench and nothing to look thru but an iron grating greatly different from what he had been accustomed to. His counsel, E. F. B. Johnston, K. C., had no information to give out. He had only had a few minutes talk with his client and was not in a position to give an interview on his affairs.

While Mr. McGill seems to realize that the prosecution can have but once result, his frighds are determined to put up a vigorous defence.

In an interview yesterday morning

Neither Premier Whitney nor Hon. J. J. Foy had anything to say yester-day about the Ontario Bank. Mr. Foy especially observed a reticent attitude, merely pointing out that the matter was now sub judice.

The curator, Mr. Stavert, appointed by the Canadian Bankers' Association, has taken charge of all the affairs of the Ontario Bank, and the books and papers of that institution are in his custody and absolutely in his control.

Everything is being done by the curator and the Bankers' Association that is necessary for the protection of the interests of the bank and its shareholders, and they are acting with the assurance and the co-operation of both the Dominion government and the Ontario government.

It would be impolitic to make any premature statement of what is being done, or of what is intended. Results of the work in progress will be apparent as time proceeds.

It is announced that the negotiations between the Royal and Ontario Banks which led to the first investigation and discovery of the latter's condition contemplate that the Ontario stock should
