CANADIANS HAVE WON IMMORTAL FAME IN ACHIEVEMENTS BEFORE AMIENS AND ARRAS RECENTLY

As Soon as Former Job Was Completed, the Line Was Turned Over to French Troops and Currie's Men Moved Up to the Special Assignment of Breaking Wotan Line.

WITH THE CANADIAN FORCES IN RANCE, Sept. 9.—(By J. F. B. Livesay, Canadian Press special correspondent).-It is a month today since the Canadian corps went into action before miens. In that battle and in the more ecent battle of Arras it has added two mportant chapters to the history of the world and to the deeds that redound o the honor of Canada.

In that brief span its captures of guns ave been one-seventh of the total guns captured by all the Allied nations his year. During the first day of the advance the Canadian troops advanced about twenty thousand yards, a world's when twenty thousand yards, a wolf welcord, capturing the villages of Domart, thourges, Hangard, Abecourt, Courcelles, Demuin, Ignacourt, Marcelcave (whose capture has been erroneously attributed to the Australians). Second Division Relieved.
On the second day a further advance was made through stiff fighting, and when the fourth Canadian division was thrust into the fray to relieve the second on this day the villages of Bouchoir, Warvillers, Rosieres, Maucourt, Maharicourt and Chilly were captured.
On the third day the corps was reinforced by a British division, and the attack was proceeded with. The villages of Quesnoy and Fouquescourt fell on this day. The fighting was intense, since the enemy had been driven back onto a system of trenches easy of defence and was making the most of it.

A Name For History.

The second great victory of the corps within the month was thus accomplished by September 5, and that great fighting formation had made a name that must forever live in the annals of history. From a strategical standpoint this second great schievement was even econd great achievement was even nore important that the first. The fol-twing is a brief summary of its deeds: Eighteen enemy divisions engaged, eleven fully, four partially and three identified. Five complete trench systems were taken and the captured area approximated fifty-six square miles with an average six square miles with an average depth of penetration twelve and a follows: Eighty-nine heavy follows: Eighty-nine heavy field guns, two 4.1-inch naval guns, six auto trucks, 1,016 machine guns, 73 trench mortars, two searchlights and one helio, besides wagons, horses and large quantities of am-munition and engineering supplies and equipment, as well as hospital

All his larger purposes have been blocked, and he will have suffered a strategic check if Ludendorff is able to pin down the filled advance on the present front.

Situation Speculative.

Now Foch has the offensive; he has won the preliminary victories, and he stands on the threshold of far greater possibilities. The Germans must accept a defensive battle under adverse conditions, or continue their retreat. If they accept battle they may be beaten completely, and we may have the decisive military success of the way. But
