Lady Beck. "The ladies of Canada," said Lady Beck. "The ladies of Canada want to do all they can to welcome you back." She declared that the ladies wanted the men to feel that as much would be done for them when they returned home as when they were overseas. "The ladies of the Red Cross wish you a very hearty welcome," she concluded.

Lieut.-Col. W. J. Brown, on behalf of the headquarters staff, also welcomed the men. He remarked that nearly 50,000 men had laid down their lives for Canada, and that by doing so they had brought Canada to the front in the eyes of the world. He told the men that the people had been told of their wonderful achievements and that the men should, and that they could, live up to their reputation.

Commission To Hein. Although each man was laden down with his kit, including everything from steel helmet to waterflask, every one of the large party of returned men which reached the city via Grand Trunk yesterday afternoon, had evidently "packed up his troubles in his old kit bag," for on every face there was a broad smile which showed that the wearer of it was exceedingly glad to get back to old friends and old scenes.

Happiness was in fact the keynote in the first pound of being produced to be made fit to again take his produced to the operators, but with the reconstruction period come new problems. If a satisfactory rate on investment is to be realized on the farm, retary of the Soldiers' Aid Commission, which is under the Provincial Government, and under the auspices of the Dominion Government, was at their service whenever they needed help of any kind. "There's going to be no old soldiers," he said, and added that every man was by the employment of methods which sold and added that every man was by the employment of methods which be accomplished by the employment of methods which said, and added that every man was by the employment of methods which said, and added that every man was broaded the largest yields of best cual-

Happiness was in fact the keynote of the reception given at the station to the reception given at the station to the reception given at the station to the returned men. The joy of the crowd at seeing old friends who had some "to do or die," was too deep, however, to express by cheering and flag-waying, but the men apparently realized this, and knew, that the pitizens of London did not mean any the less by it.

Many of the men in the party, which was in charge of Capt. Lumsden, had souvenirs of the battlefield, two or three men having swords and scabbards which had ance belonged to Fritz.

The men who arrived y sterday salled from England on the Regina on December 12 at 3:39 p.m., and arrived at Halikax last Friday at 4 p.m. "We had a good voyage, encountering no rough weather at all," said one of the men, but a very large number detrained at an estern points of Military; price of the party originally consisted of 335.
