SEPTEMBER.—In order to keep up the highest quality, or to improve the seed of wheat, select the very best portions of the field, and exclude the seeds of every weed, and especially of that notorious intruder, chess. Many careful farmers, by continued attention for years, have succeeded in entirely eradicating chess from their farms. To improve the quality, the largest and finest heads may be selected by hand. The process repeated, year after year, will give very encouraging results. A half-day spent in thus selecting the best heads will furnish a considerable amount. The best winnowing machines may be used to advantage.
