SOME BIG STRINGS

Ten for 1148, Best Ever Done on Black Alloys

Thomas L. Wilson, manager of Black's bowling alleys, has been howling in sensational form during the last few weeks. On Wednesday he rolled ten strings for a total of 1,148 and while it surpassed the alley record by seventeen pins it was not recognized as a new record as there was no official referee on the line. The scores were 107, 128, 100, 96, 107, 133, 123, 111, 110. Yesterday Mr. Wilson bowled two strings making 137 in the first and 128 in the second.

Owing to the approaching tournament in Calais for the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company's trophy which has been held by Black's alley team for some years and which Mr. Black is taking to Calais this year to defend, competition among the leaders in the City League is keen. The five high bowlers will constitute the team which will be sent to defend the highly prized silver pin and the eagerness of all the crack pin-fall artists to participate in the tournament is apparent. Only a few points separate several of the members and the result of each game is being watched with interest.

Reports from Calais indicate that interest in the approaching tournament is widespread and the outlook is bright for making it a bonny event of the season. Clubs in New Brunswick and Eastern Maine have signified their intention of participating in the tournament. As the leading candle pin bowlers of the city will go to Calais to defend the trophy the team that vanquishes them will have to hit them hard and consistently.

SHORT WEIGHT BUTTER

The inspector of weights and measures said to the Times this morning that he is receiving numerous complaints about short weight butter. He points out that the only protection for the purchaser is to have the butter weighed when it is bought. If for any reason it is short the scales will tell the story, as they are frequently inspected and reliable. It is impossible for the department to see and weigh every pound of butter, but the purchaser can have it weighed and there is a penalty for every pound that is sold under-weight.

NO. 11 WEST MOUNTED

POLICE MAN IN CITY

Sergeant Darling of Regina—They Want to Go Overseas as Fighting Unit

The scarlet tunic of the uniform of the Royal North West Mounted Police, a rare sight in St. John, attracted much attention on the streets this morning. The wearer was Sergeant H. Darling of Regina who has been home to England on furlough and who now is on his return journey. The broad-brimmed Stetson, the scarlet tunic with blue facings, riding breeches and leather leggings make a dashing uniform and appear especially noticeable in contrast with the dull khaki now the universal garb of our soldiers.

"Thank Heaven! That may mean that we are to have a chance to get overseas as a fighting unit," was the sergeant's comment on the news that the police work in Alberta has been taken over by a provincial body. He added that ever since the war began, the mounted men have been looking forward to an opportunity to take a hand in the big game in Europe, but so far they have been required to continue their regular duties.

The fame of this body of picked men is known throughout the world and it would be generally conceded that no finer body of fighting men could be sent overseas with Canada's forces if they could be spared from their police duties in the west.

Sergeant Darling is a typical representative of his noted corps around which much of the romance of the west has centred. Tall and broad-shouldered, with the slender waist of the athlete and the swinging carriage developed by many hundreds of miles in the saddle, he well represents the men who have made the mounted police a corps whose deeds are known wherever red-blooded men are held in esteem.

In a letter received by friends in St. John from Sergeant Leo Duffy, he reports meeting his brother, Gerard, who had been in France for nearly eighteen months. At time of writing, Gerard, who is a driver with the C. A. S. C., was on furlough and had joined his brother in London.

Sergeant Duffy is attached to the Canadian pay corps in the Empire metropolis. Both soldiers were enjoying excellent health.

LOCAL NEWS

ALMOST RECOVERED

Harvey Nordstrom, aged fifteen years, who was severely injured on February 28 as a result of a coasting accident, is reported at the General Public Hospital today to be almost entirely recovered. It is said that he will be able to leave the institution within a few days.

COUNTY COURT

The case of Clark vs. Pugsley is being continued in the County Court today. At noon the counsel for the defendant opened his case and it is expected that the trial will be completed this afternoon. J. Starr Tait is appearing for the plaintiff and H. W. Robertson for the defendant.

ST. DAVID'S CHURCH

At the mid-week meeting in St. David's church a report was made by the congregational committee to the session's annual message was presented by H. E. Armstrong, which was reviewed by the members. Plans for the future, dealing with the activities of the church, were discussed and approved for distribution.

GRADUATED AS NURSE

Among recent graduates of the Bathing Hospital training school for nurses is Miss Ida E. Hickey, of this city. Miss Hickey has been attending the preparatory school for nurses in Bath, N. S., for the last two years, and graduated with credit from the institution recently. In the class of 1917 there were eight, and three of these were New Brunswick girls, and the rest from Nova Scotia. Miss Hickey has been spending a short vacation with her parents in Sydney street, and left this morning for Boston, where she will take a post-graduate course in the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary, Charles street, Boston. Miss Hickey is also a registered nurse of the State of Maine. Many friends in the city will hear with pleasure of her successful graduation and will wish her much success in the future in her profession.

REACHED ENGLAND BUT TURNED DOWN THERE; UNDER AGE

Two Nova Scotia Brothers Here Very Much Disappointed—Experiences of Some Others

Of the maritime province men who reached here yesterday from overseas there were two young lads who seemed to be most disappointed. They were Privates Anderson, brothers, from Parrishboro. Both lads had joined the 10th Battalion and had been successful in passing all medical tests prior to leaving with that unit. Once in England both were turned down owing to the fact that they were under age. What seemed to bother them most was the fact that others around them were telling their experiences at the front and they had none to tell, and through no fault of theirs. Both say that their time may come yet, when they can serve their king and country.

Private J. M. Young, a shoemaking smith, went overseas with the 10th Battalion and was later attached to another battalion. He was injured in the shoulder by being kicked by a horse and was obliged to spend practically all his time in England.

Private H. B. Rolston left Canada with the 40th Battalion. He spent thirteen months in France, but saw little fighting. He badly sprained his ankle and was returned to England, and became afflicted with the 18th Little Battalion, only to be discharged a short time later because of rheumatism.

Private Colwell's stay at the front was exceptionally short. He was sent overseas as part of a re-inforcing draft for the 8th Battalion. This was in June, 1916, and on the 18th he was struck in the shoulder and forearm by shrapnel, and has since been treated in the base and military hospitals. He was for a long time at Manchester. Even during his short time at the front he recalls one case of seeing a battalion going into the trenches, 1,100 strong and returning with but fifty men. This took place at the battle of Ypres, where so many of the Canadian boys made the supreme sacrifice.

Private Houghton, of Falmouth, N. S., went overseas with the 6th C. M. R. and when the unit was broken up he was transferred to the Fort Garry Horse, with which unit he crossed to France. This was a cavalry unit and most of their work was behind the lines. Houghton had the misfortune of being hurt across the back by a horse falling on him.

The maritime province party included A. R. Anderson, Parrishboro, N. S.; M. W. Houghton, Falmouth, N. S.; C. W. Simpson, Carleton Place, N. S.; R. W. Rite, Middleton, N. S.; J. Young, St. John; J. Dolan, Little River; R. Wilkin, Salisbury; W. Anderson, Parrishboro, N. S.; W. J. Brownell, Amherst, N. S.; F. W. Oliver, Lunenburg, N. S.; T. Banks, Sunny Brae, N. B.; I. T. Jones, Truro, N. S.; A. Colwell, Arlington, N. S.; H. Rolston, Sydney, N. S., and C. D. Mollins, Moncton.

PURSE OF $1,000 FOR HEROIC ACT

Petitcodiac Man Distinguishes Himself in Saving Some People From Drowning

Moncton, March 8.—George E. Arthur, who a few days ago saved a man from drowning and helped to rescue three others, is a son of Gilbert Arthur of Petitcodiac. Three hotel patrons in Dayton on February 25, while bathing, went too far out from shore and were unable to return. Arthur and another man, Edward Ortung, went to their rescue. They were successful in getting the three quickly made up a purse of $1,000 and presented it to the young hero from Petitcodiac.

GALLANT ACT UNDER FIRE

Himself Wounded, Carried Comrade Across Open to Safety in Trenches — Speaks of War Work

One of the maritime province men who arrived here last evening en route to their homes from the battlefields of France and Belgium—Private J. Dolan, of Little River, St. John county—saw the heaviest and thickest of the fighting. He led for carrying a wounded comrade 150 yards across the open to the trenches. He enlisted in September, 1916, with the 10th Battalion and was transferred to the motor machine gun and saw service at both Ypres and along the Somme front.

With four others he was in a shell hole, well up past the first line trenches, facing the heaviest of the German fire, when a huge shell struck the machine gun placement, instantly killing two of the five men, wounding the sergeant in charge, and the other survivor. As Private Dolan fell into the hole, part of the placement fell across him, crushing his back and hip. Himself bleeding and badly hurt, he picked up the machine gun whose shoulder was crushed and whose throat was bleeding from shrapnel wounds, and hurried across the 150 yards separating him from the first line trenches. The sergeant, a Montreal man, is now alive in England.

Private Dolan was able to compare the fighting at Ypres with that along the Somme. At the former he said the fighting was intermittent, with three and often four days between charges, but along the Somme it was the same grind day after day, going over the top once and often twice a day.

The machine gun, Private Dolan said, were the mainstay these days. The fire is so heavy over the top of the trenches that the infantry can hardly at times venture to put their heads up. The Hunns have used the machine guns to great effect.

"Did you do much damage," he was asked.

"That's pretty hard to tell. We were told to fire at a certain mark, and directed all our efforts there until told to change the aim. We, the men in the holes, could hardly see what we were shooting at."

After a long stay in the hospital, Private Dolan has been discharged. The tip of his index and second finger on his right hand were taken off when the placement fell across him. Lacking the physical fitness to carry on his work, he is back home, but he has well done his part.

WIFE FOLLOWS HER HUSBAND HERE AND HAS HIM ARRESTED

Yesterday morning a well dressed woman called at police headquarters and swore out a warrant for the arrest of her husband, who she alleged, was living with another woman in this city. The warrant was executed last evening by Detectives Luson and Briggs. The man and the other woman were in a boarding house in Leinster street. He was arrested.

In the police court this morning evidence was taken. The wife said that she was married to the defendant about nine years ago in some part of Maine. She produced the marriage certificate. She said that she had three children, the oldest nine years and the youngest six. Her husband left her about nine months ago and she has been receiving no support from him since. Following information she had to hand she came to St. John and swore out the warrant. The witness also said that about four weeks after the disappearance of her husband, the "other woman" also disappeared. All three belonged to the same place.

Detectives Duncan and Briggs also appeared.

It is understood that since the defendant came here he has been engaged as a bartender in a city saloon, and it is also said that he and the other woman have been passing as man and wife.

The magistrate suggested an amicable settlement and it is said that this may possibly be arranged.
