(From Thursday's Daily.) Officers of the Canadian Club were

o his feet to explain that in reality Canada had no flag, as the red ensign had no business to be used, and meant nothing. It was simply the flag of the mercantile marine, and no one else had any right to be flying it. Another to the so-called Canadian flag was the fact that the coat of arms of British Columbia was omitted from it. He thought something might be done in the way of preparing a Canadian flag that they could use. It had been suggested that the Union Jack with the coat of arms in the centre would be a suitable design. Until such a suitable flag was chosen he preferred the Union Jack. Mr. McCurdy thought this would be a very suitable subject for the club to take up.
