No household should be without Morse's Pills.

ly, there is an error or two in the suppositions. First, because every willing mother can learn in a few hours everything that is known, or rather worth knowing or really useful, respecting these diseases (see the following pages); and secondly, because it is not every person who has professionally studied children's diseases can cure them, or else why do half of the babies die, or why are seen in every churchyard so many little grassy hillocks?
