Invasion by Prussians

Cause of Constant Fear Among the Swiss People

THE question of the possible invasion of Switzerland by German forces, which has recently occupied attention to a considerable extent, is, of course, not a new one. The Swiss authorities recognized invasion as something more than a possibility as soon as the war broke out, over three years ago, and, in proclaiming the country's neutrality, they also announced the Swiss Government's intention of defending that neutrality against all attempts at violation, from whatever quarter they might come. The necessary preparations were carried through with an energy and thoroughness characteristic of a people which had maintained its independence against all comers, with almost unbroken success, for over 600 years, and so effective were these arrangements that it was found possible, after some time, for Switzerland to reduce the fortifications she had rushed to her frontiers. Her neighbors, as Felix Calonder, now vice-president of the Republic, declared in a memorable speech at Bellinzona, had given her assurances which could not but be regarded as satisfactory. He hastened to explain that the sentinels who still remained on the Swiss frontiers, and the garrisons of the fortifications closing the great passes, were not to be taken as a sign that Switzerland distrusted her friends. They showed the world, however, clearly enough, that Switzerland was not inclined to take any risks. And at the first hint of invasion, the Government at Berne acts with promptitude. It looks with skepticism on the report, but issues immediate orders for the mobilization of three additional divisions of the Swiss army.

As to the probabilities or improbabilities of invasion, it is perhaps idle to discuss a question which must necessarily be much a matter of pure speculation. Paris, naturally enough, viewed any such possibility with serious concern. It looked at once to Belfort and remembered the statement of Colonel Egli, during his trial at Zurich, that, in the event of a German invasion, the German forces could be at Lucerne on the first night. Even Paris, however, when it came to analyze the position, steadily became more confident. There was much rumor and much vigorous writing, but when it was all subjected to the inexorable test of fact, it was found to have sprung from "a certain concentration of German forces near Switzerland, particularly behind Lake Constance." Whatever there may or may not have been in it, however, it has served the purpose of making quite clear to all, concerned or unconcerned, that Switzerland is still ready to defend her neutrality with the utmost determination. Some 200,000 of the best soldiers in the world, and "a perfectly impossible terrain" might give any invader pause.

A Curious Zoological Colony.

Investigations recently made on the little known and rarely visited Henderson or Elizabeth Island have led to the discovery of a little colony of zoological total abstainers. The island, which is uninhabited, is situated about one hundred and twenty miles north-east of Pitcairn Island—itsself sufficiently out of the way, but famous as the home of the descendants of the mutineers of the Bounty. There is no water on it, not even a swamp, and it is only six miles long, yet it harbors quite a menagerie—a kind of rat, a lizard, described as very abundant, and no fewer than four kinds of birds, all peculiar to the island. These are a fruit pigeon, a lorikeet, or honey-eating parakeet, a little rail or crane, and a red warbler. The strange thing about the inmates of this curious little natural aviary of coral rock, surrounded by waves instead of wires, is that two of its inmates are birds, one especially associated with water—the rail and the warbler. Yet it is evident that these, like the rest, must do without drinking unless the dew can slake their thirst or they have acquired toleration for sea water as a beverage.

Where Do They Drink?

A curious feature of animal life in the deserts of the south-west is that rabbits, quail, squirrels, deer, antelope, the mountain sheep, and any number of reptiles and insects live at great distances from visible water.

SHETLAND.

Woke up again!
Ain't this been some weather? Jack Frost did us a nasty trick, but, thank goodness, there's enough yet if we're careful.
Carrie Bilton is leaving to attend the Forest City Business College.
Mrs. J. Vosburg is away west on a visit.
Joseph Paul & Co. are drilling for water on Alex. Dohby's lot. So far they are having a dry time.
George Bilton's name appears on the casualty list, having sustained a nasty bump while manipulating some machinery along the trenches.
Mr. and Mrs. George Edwards of Wardsville spent Sunday at Shetland store.
J. D. Dohby's family motored to London Saturday.
What about the Military Service Act? Can you dodge it? Sure you can if you're in politics, trusts or combinations.
Shetland Picnic Co. had their final business meeting for this year on Monday evening. The reports from the various committees were handed in and after perusal by the auditors will be published in the various local papers.
Well, we're going to have gas in Shetland. Not the kind so prevalent around every little burg, viz., "Surface gas." I mean the genuine good old sizzling, frying, rock-bottom stuff, what you just touch yer match agin, and, presto, the fire's lit—the lights are on. The Shetland Gas Company, born on Friday, the 29th, consisting of Messrs. Dohby, Badley, Moorhouse, Grey and Edwards, hopped right out of the shell and got busy. The well has been doubly tested by experts from Oil Springs and Tilbury and proves a hammer. Estimates have been made, fixings ordered, pipe line bought and the work begun this very week, and long before the snow piles white agin the winter pane, in the first cold, grey rays of chilly dawn, we can hop out of bed, skip across the clammy linoleum, rasp a match 'gainst the sandpaper, turn on the gas, whew—the fire's lit! skate back to bed until the sizzling steam of the teakettle calls us forth to a cozy breakfast in the cozy corner. Won't that be Jake?
Some Grits 'll be Tories, and some Tories 'll be Grits, as sure as comes another 'lection day; but chuck yer dern old politics an' take a rap at Fritz, is what any good Canuck should do, I say.

OAKDALE.

CLEAR'S STOMACH, CLEAR MIND.—The stomach is the workshop of the vital functions and when it gets out of order the whole system clogs in sympathy. The spirits flag, the mind droops, and work becomes impossible. The first care should be to restore healthful action of the stomach, and the best preparation for that purpose is Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. General use for years has won them a leading place in medicine. A trial will attest their value.

Melbourne.

On Sunday evening last, memorial services were held in the Methodist church in memory of Pte. Arthur Stevenson, son of Isaac Stevenson of this village, who gave his life for our country on or about August 15. The service was conducted by Rev. Wm. R. Vance, pastor of the Methodist church, assisted by Rev. P. Jamieson of the Presbyterian church, the service in the Presbyterian church being withdrawn for the occasion. ## Get Behind the Wheel of a Ford and Drive

TRY it just once! Ask your friend to let you "pilot" his car on an open stretch. You'll like it, and will be surprised how easily the Ford is handled and driven.

If you have never felt the thrill of driving your own car, there is something good in store for you. It is vastly different from just riding—being a passenger. And especially so if you drive a Ford.

Young boys, girls, women and even grandfathers—thousands of them—are driving Ford cars and enjoying it. A Ford stops and starts in traffic with exceptional ease and smoothness, while on country roads and hills its strength and power show to advantage.

Buy a Ford and you will want to be behind "the wheel" constantly.

"Lest We Forget"

We need to be reminded quite as much as to be informed. Memory has been jocularly described as "the thing we forget with." Out of sight is apt to be out of mind.

An advertiser who relies on the memory of the public leans on a broken reed. The absence of its advertising from the newspapers has been the beginning of the end for many a firm. "The present suitor hath ever the advantage over the absent lover."

If you forget the public, the public will forget you.
