

Grandpa's Whiskers.
EVA M. TAPPAN.
Grandpa likes to kiss me Sallie;
She says his whiskers, thick and bushy, Prick her so.
Grandpa's head is smooth and shiny
On the top,
Where the hair began to thin, and Would not stop.
Grandpa kisses; Sallie questions
So 'tis said,
"Grandpa, why not put your whiskers On your head?"

Where the Train Was.
There were a dozen of us waiting at the station near Strasburg, Va., for the noon train. Every one had cut his dinner short to catch the train, but the hour arrived—five—ten—twenty minutes passed, and then everybody wondered what had happened. The ticket agent was also the telegraph operator.
He was a young fellow of about twenty; ill-grained and supercilious, but impatience overcame the fear of him, and a woman stepped to the window and asked:
"Is the train late?"
"Um!" he growled in reply.
"How late is it?"
"Um!"
That finished her and she resumed her seat. Five minutes more slipped away, and a very solemn looking man carrying a very solemn looking carpet bag, advanced from his corner and began:
"Train is late, but it is!"
"Yes."
"How late is it?"
"Um."
"What's the cause of it?"
No answer.
He hung around for a minute longer and then solemnly marched back to his seat and gave some one else a chance to get bluffed. After the fifth one had been turned away, a short, stocky, grizzled man, who had been whittling a single on the platform and softly humming "We won't Go Home Till Morning," entered the waiting-room, looked up at the clock and then sauntered to the ticket window and queried:
"What's that train?"
The young man was looking over some freight bills and he did not raise his head.
"What's that train?" repeated the whittler in a louder voice.
The agent looked up for a second, but let his eyes fall without answer.
"What's that train?" shouted the passenger as he brought his fist down on the shelf.
No answer. After waiting ten seconds he walked out doors, turned to the right and suddenly entered the ticket-office through the freight-house. Walking straight up to the agent he reached over the table and seized him, and as he gave him a shake and jammed him into a corner he called out:
"What in thunder and blazes is that ar-train?"
"It's a coming!" gasped the agent.
"When, what—when?"
"In about a twenty minutes!"
"What made 'er late?"
"The engine broke down at Winchester."
"Then why in Crockett's name didn't you say so in the first place? Young man, take a square look at me! I ain't plump up and gelled nor saintly, but I'm plump up and gelled nor mean binner!" When a man 'sks me how 'sars 'er sellin' I'm goin' to gim him a civil answer if it cracks three ribs, and when I 'sk you if it dog-goned old bulldging hasn't snorted in you've got to hear me or down comes your trestle works! Do you catch on?"
"Yes—certainly—train's behind time —be here soon—of course—yes—of course."
Then the solemn man rose up, took his hat in his hand, and passed it around for money, and we felt like raising a million dollars for the solid man as a token of love and reverence.—Detroit Free Press.

hair when I was a boy."

A Remarkable Cure.
FROM LEWIS PARKS, West Townsend, Vt.
"Several years since I took a severe cold, which settled on my lungs, where it remained without relaxation. I was then in Massachusetts and growing worse and becoming unable to attend to my business, I returned home, and commenced searching in earnest for some medicine which would restore my lost health. I consulted physicians, I tried many remedies, but obtained no help, but daily grew worse. I had a terrible cough, and raised a good deal of blood. I had profuse night sweats and severe pains in my side. I continued in this state for months, and became so weak that it was with great difficulty I could walk, when I was advised to try WISMAN'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY, but to my great joy I soon found that this remedy had arrested the disease. I continued to use the Balsam to the extent of five bottles, and have since then experienced no difficulty of the lungs. I believe the Balsam saved my life, and I shall ever hold it in high estimation." 50 cents and $1 a bottle. Sold by dealers generally.

SPEECH OF THE BISHOP OF ANGERS.

Monsieur Freppel, Bishop of Angers, in acknowledging the New Year greetings of his clergy, deals some heavy blows to the Ministerialists. He ridicules the attempt of the Freemasons and atheists to excite the priests to mutiny against the so called yoke of the bishops—a snare too clumsy to seduce priests, whose alleged insecurity of tenure is commemorated by the very party who think lightly of it. The Bishop sarcastically remarks that on reading of the constant movement of functionaries shifted about from the Chancel to the Pynence he asks himself whether France had sufficient removal vans to carry the officials thus tossed about. He asks what department of the State can boast, like himself, of not having in twelve years shifted a single priest against his will.
He scolds the notion of coaching the clergy by a stoppage of pay, and denies that he has ever attacked the real rights of the State, his line of conduct being marked out by the magnificent words lately uttered by the noble head of the House of France, the Comte de Chambord, as to the true relation of the ecclesiastical with the civil power—a programme of peace, liberty, respect and devotion. Providence, as remarked by Jean de Balzac in the seventeenth century, has always worked for France as many miracles as Frenchmen have committed blunders. "Let us commit no blunders," concludes Monsiegnur Freppel, "and leave Providence to conduct our affairs in 1882 in the direction of right and national honour, justice and truth."

Woman's Self-Sacrifice.

The heart of a true woman is like a placid lake, which reflects sun, moon and stars. She reveals the heart of a heroine in her noblest characteristic, self-sacrifice.
Her whole life is one of self-offering on the wedding morning; for when she enters into her new life of joy, she outsunder all the ties that bound her to the old home and the old loves; her very name she surrenders on that day when her life begins its mingling with her husband's life. Motherhood brings her new joys, but they are the joys of a new self-sacrifice.
She regards her own life in giving birth to a new life, she gives up society, friends, literature, art, music, everything that stands between herself and the highest, best, most perfect devotion to the doing life that is entrusted to her. She bears her child's sorrows and carries his sins. She is wounded by his transgressions. When he comes to an age in which he could begin to repay her service with service of his own, she sends him off with a baptism of tears and an ordination of prayers and kisses, to school, or college, or business; and whether ever loving letter, or a grateful word, or an unselfish service, or even a warm kiss, or a tender glance of the eye, shall serve to repay her for a service so simple and unostentatiously rendered that the boy never comprehends either its value to himself or its cost to her, she knows not —may, hardly stops to ask. From the very first day when, with fearful, trembling joy, she rests her arm on the arm of him to whom she gives herself, down to the hour when children and grandchildren gather about her bed of death to bear her through the portal on their winged prayers, she lays down her life for her husband. Thanks be to God for a pure and noble womanhood, for all its purity, its sympathy, its tenderness, its long suffering, its joyful self-sacrifice.

Little Lullie.

Mother, let me get near you, whispered a little child of four years to a holy man who had just received Holy Communion.
"Lullie, my little child, said the nun, why do you want to get near me?" Mother, replied the child, as she nestled in her arms, you have just received our dear Lord, and I want to be near Him."
"Mother," said the same little child Lullie to the same holy nun, on another occasion:
"Will you let me look into our Lord's little house?"
Oh no, my child, said the nun, our Divine Lord is there, and we should not open the door without knocking.
"But, Mother, answered the child, you told me in catechism that our Lord once said: knock and it shall be opened unto you." Run away now, Lullie, and we shall speak of that another time.
Little Lullie ran away, indeed, as she was told, but she ran into the chapel, climbed up on the altar, and knocking at the tabernacle door, she said: Good Jesus, are you there?
A sweet silvery voice answered from within and she immediately the tabernacle door opened and the innocent child was rewarded for her faith and goodness by seeing the Holy Infant beaming with love in the tabernacle.

Griffith's Valuation.

Lord Ernie has published in the London Times a valuable letter from the late Sir Richard Griffith, the author of the famous valuation, to himself, together with an official letter, written by Sir Richard's director to his agent. No doubt one may remain as to the relation which Sir Richard Griffith considered that his valuation should bear to fair rent in Ulster. "In using the term 'rent valuation,'" he wrote, "as an aid for letting, the second or third column should be the basis of valuation, to which may be added, according to the views of the landlord in regard to 'live and let live,' say 10 or 15 per cent, and in accommodation land 20 or 30 per cent. And in the other letter it is laid down that when the townsmen's valuation of the county Fermanagh is finally checked and completed, it will be from 2d. to 3s. per pound under the fair letting value to a solvent tenant on a lease of four teen years." On all which the Fall Mall Gazette remarks very pertinently that "it would be very interesting to know what Sir R. Griffith would have thought of the views in regard to 'live and let live' of those landlords whose rents have, since his day, been raised to double his valuation."
