None Love the Gifted. BY FINLEY JOHNSON.

'Tis true the gifted ones of earth Are crown'd with glory bright; And pass through life's frequented ways In blazing tracks of light: 'Tis true that in the fairy realms Of thought, they ever dwell; And torce proud spirits to admire By some mysterious spell: Yet though they rule the soul and mind By their almighty art;

None love the gifted ones of earth, For love can never rest In laurel bowers and shady groves, A cheerful willing guest; And though their songs are often sung Unto the ardent crowd : Who speak their joy by the applause They give both long and loud ; Yet there are none within the world Who will that joy express

They hold no secret places in The chambers of the heart.

Of love's own tenderness. Alas! alas! life's agonies The gifted can but know; And none but them can ever fee The helplessness of woe; Their love is not like colder souls, 'Tis of themselves a part; And binds its tendrils close around The fibres of the heart; Ah! me, 'tis sad to view their fate Their dimm'd and weeping eves To hear them pine for love and home

In the soft, gentle, winning tones

And all their tender ties. Though none may love the gifted here, Yet unto them is given The promise that their home shall be Within the courts of heaven; Then O, my God, give grace and strength Unto the weary mind;

And let the wounded, stricken heart Become to earth resigned ; Banish from them all vain regrets From idols set them free : And let their holiest, purest love (), Lord, be all for thee, -Baltimore Clipper.

Brief History of the Russia Salve. About the year 1818, a Russian, who had served as soldier in the Imperial army, during the disastrous campaign of Napoicon, scrived in Boston from Cronstadt, an paign of Napoteon arrived in Boston from Cronstact, and shortly got work at his trade, decurriery in Charlestown hear Boston. He was soon after taken sick; and during his illness he was attended by a kind hearted dergyman, of that town, who did all in his power for the reliet of the poor Russian. Though he grew worse every-day, the beneroisen deepyman did not abate his kindness, but was more and more attentive and at last, when the Russian felt that he was not did he had a last, when the Russian felt that he was not did he had a last, when the Russian felt that he was not did he had a last, when the Russian felt that he was not did he had a last, when the Russian felt that he was not did he had a last, when the Russian felt that he was not did he had a last when the Russian felt that he was not did he had a last when the Russian felt that he was not did he had a last when the Russian felt that he was not did he had a last was not w was more and more attentive and at last, when the Russian left that he was soon to die, he motioned his benefic tor to his bedside, thanked him for his kindness, and as the only return he could make, presented him with the recipe of a remarkable Ontment, which had been used with great success by the surgeous of the Russian army. The clergyman prepared a small quantity, and was convinced of its great value, but dying soon after, his family disposed of the recipe to Mr. Redding, who gave it the name of "Riddings are dealers, and the recipe to Mr. Reddings, who gave at the same of "Riddings are dealers, and the recipe to Mr. Reddings are dealers, and the recipe to Mr. Reddings
