Years ago, when the present leader of the Government was in pposition, he declared that the great water power of Niagara Falls should be utilized for the people of Ontario. At this time the Ross Government was engaged in allotting the power to various friendly corporations, and finally disposed of 430,000 h.p. In order to ensure that the people would have to pay toll to these corporations, it entered into an undertaking that the province would never develop! power at Niagara Falls. Later on, to make doubly sure that the corporations would control the power, it gave, on the eve of its defeat, a block of power to the Electrical Development Company of 125,000 h.p., being about all the power that would be allotted to Ontario in the event of an apportionment of the water power between Canada and the United States. This Act was disallowed by the Whitney Government and the power was restored to the people of

HYDRO-ELECTRIC OPPOSED

In pursuance of the policy of securing cheap power for the people, the Whitney Government appointed the Hydro-Electric Commission, which has dealt not only with Niagara, but with various other power centres, and is to-day controlling and developing throughout the province electrical power at cost. The work of the Commission has from the first been strenuously opposed by the Opposition, supported by interested parties. Efforts were made at the outset to get the Federal Government to disallow the legislation of the Province constituting the Hydro-Electric Commission. Whe these failed, legal proceedings were instituted and litigation obstructed the Government at every point. The next move against the proposal was an attempt to prevent the Government from being able to raise the necessary funds, and the campaign was carried on in England for the purpose of convincing financiers that the securities of the Provicee of Ontario which were offered to raise money for the Hydro-Electric would be a bad investment. Sir James Whitney personally went to England to prevent this campaign, and succeeded in doing so. Subsequently, when the Government St. James' cemetery by citizens in story courself the may be successful.
