INTERESTING TO FARMERS.

Prof. J. J. Mason, in the forthcoming No. of his 'Working Farmer,' gives the following summary...

The following is from one of Luzzo's familiar Letters on Chemistry, and is a synopsis of all the knowledge of the present day in relation to Agricultural Chemistry...

Let those writers who have credited to and from his receipts, review their apostasy and be chastised for their want of consistency, by reading the following:

We present it to our readers as the best paper on Scientific Agriculture we have ever seen. It is recommended that it may be studied by you, and that its truths form the basis of their after-investigation...

The air between the tropics contains no more than that of the arctic zone; and yet how different is the amount of produce of an equal surface of land in the two situations! This is easily explainable...

Annual, and especially summer plants, grow and attain their perfection in a comparatively short time; they therefore do not prosper on a soil which is poor in these mineral substances...

On the other hand, how very small is the quantity of mineral substances which they withdraw from the soil during their entire growth...

Our readers are aware that amongst the various materials of which the present Ministry is composed, there are three gentlemen who severally occupy the offices of Clerk of the Ordnance...

DISSIDENTION IN THE CABINET.

For several weeks past a rumour of the existence of a serious dissension in the Cabinet has been prevalent in most of the clubs and political circles of the metropolis. At one time it was said that they were not all heartily agreed as to the course to be pursued in reference to the Russian question...

A new ground of dissension has recently exhibited itself amongst the ministry upon a point which was not immediately expected to arise; and which, although apparently got over for the time being, may not improbably turn out to be the rock upon which ultimately the coalition Ministry will split.

The Roman Catholic Church in Ireland, which has been the subject of a Select Committee to inquire into the ecclesiastical revenues of Ireland, with the view of ascertaining how far they are made applicable to the benefit of the Irish people...

AGRICULTURAL WAGES ABROAD.

The London Despatch says that at Danzig, agricultural labourers work for from 6d. to 7d. per day; in Holstein and Mecklenburg, at 7d. per day. From these places we import large quantities of wheat, and if prices advance in England, they can supply much more.

THE SOLDIERS AND THE NUNNERIES.

The Roman Catholic soldiers attending the mass on Sunday last, at Waterside Chapel, in Londonderry, were ordered out of the edifice on the priest, the Rev. Archdeacon McCarren, commencing a harangue on the nunneries question. Lieutenant Everett was the officer in command, and from the contradictory nature of the statements which appear in the local papers, it is probable that the matter may be made the subject of some inquiry.

HASZARD'S GAZETTE

Saturday, July 15, 1855.

The Elections are thus far finished and we await the opening of the Poll Books with some degree of anxiety, though untroubled with fear for the result. It is now pretty well known who have the nominal majority of votes...
