Toronto Man Returns From Interesting Journey in Unknown Lands

Brought Home With Him Blue and Silver Fox Skins

Toronto, Sept. 26. - Bronzed and tanned by two months of sun glare on the ice packs of Baffin's Land, encouraged by the fact that if he did no secure gold he secured blue and silver fox skins and many other valuable pelts, George Monteith, the only Toronto member of the "Lucky" Scott ex onto member of the "Lucky" Scott expedition, returned to the city this morning to tell the story of one of the most hazardous—trips ever taken in search of gold.

"We left St. John's, Nfid., on July 15, in the steamship Neptune, the party consisting of A. W. Scott, of Owen Sound; S. Osgood Pell, and Dr. Jag. Knowlton, of New York; A. C. Langham, of Denver; Aleck Gillies, Ernest and Harry Holland, of Porcupine; Frank Vassar, of New York; Robert S. Janes, of St. John's, Nfid., and myself," he said to a Star reporter. "Our crew consisted of 24 men thoroughly accustomed to work in Arctic waters.

Held in by the Ice.

"We reached Pond's Inlet on August 2, and there for 22 days we were poc-keted in the ice. Fortunately, how-ever, we had arrived in the nick of time, for that very day the crew of the Algerine and the members of Capt. Munn's party, who had sailed earlier on the same quest as ourselves, met us in a whaleboat and two cances. This was all they had left. Their vessel had gone down off Button Point, at the entrance to Pond's Iniet, on July 16 during a gale, and they had only 35 minutes in which to save the whaleboat and two cances and an altogether inadeguate supply of provithe Algerine and the members of Capt. together inadequate supply of provi-

'If they had not fallen in with us, it was their intention to make their way to Labrador, a distance of 1,400 miles. It is a safe bet that they would never have made the first hundred, and that all must have perished. and that all must have perished.

"Next day, Scott, Vassar and Janes left the ship with some Eskimos and dogs to try and reach Salmon River. They made their way over the ice first to Albert Harbor, where there is a Government cache, taking a boat with them. This first stage was completed at about 11.30 o'clock that night after the men had had a most perilous journey. They encountered a number of open leads, and the only way in which they cleared them was by throwing the dogs into the water and making them swim across, while the three men clumg to the boat which the three men clung to the boat which the three men clung to the boat which the dogs were towing.

"The three were absent from the ship 21 days altogether, during which time they made their way through to Salmon river to the spot where Janes had said gold would be found. But there was absolutely no trace of gold, or copper, or tin. Large deposits of coal were discovered, but even these were eight miles from the sea and of no commercial value. no commercial value.

Had to Change Plan. "When the ice broke, we went to the head of the inlet, intending, if pos-sible, to establish a trading post there, but the intention had to be abandoned. the prospect of cold weather being sufficient to cause a chill to strike the feet of those who contemplated life in the solitudes.

"We had some excellent sport, which was not without, its element of risk, especially the walrus hunting. on addition to the five polar bears which we shot, we lassoced one alive, scott and I getting the rope around him and dragging him aboard, where

Scott and I getting the rope around him and dragging him aboard, where he was presented to Pell, who has taken him to New Yark. One of the polar bears that I had the luck to shoot was said to be the largest ever seen in that country. It weighed 1,000 pounds.

"We had a harrow escape in following a wairus which had been wounded from the deck of the ship. We got the beat out, and had followed him for some distance, when, with all our attention given to him, another big fellow loomed up at our stern, with the evident intention of attacking the boat. They saw our danger from the ship and tooled just in time for us to dodge, but we were quite content to get back without the prize we went after.
