He says he is disheartened by the erroneous point of view from which criticism is written, adding: "London critics attack an auworst type, and I do not feel disposed to put myself forward as a cockspy for those gentlemen." Discussing plays, Mr. Gilbert remarked: "The fact is, managers cannot judge of a play when they see it in manuscript. If Pinero sends Irving a play it is accepted not because it is a good play, but because it is by Pinero; and if a stranger, though a clever dramatist, sends Irving or Tree, or anyone else, a play, it is refused, however good, because they can't judge of it." In conclusion, Mr. monotony of English acting," as exemplified by Sir Henry Irving, Beerbohm Tree and George Alexander.
