

Here is a chance to teach kindness to dumb animals. Get some pictures of a dog, cat, bird, horse, and pin in a group on the board. Then speak of the kind words to the sad in heart, and our pennies to send the gospel to the heathen. Draw the look if you can, and if not pin a picture of one on the board. If necessary, take the one from the preview board. Now, as you review, pin a hand pointing to each symbol, to make it more impressive.

LESSON III—January 20th.

Christ the Bread of Life. JOHN 6:25-35.

This is a very difficult lesson for the little ones, and great care must be taken with the teaching.

During the night Jesus walked on the water, and in the morning was found back in Capernaum. It was at night the manna fell, and it was also at night when Christ was born. Simply, therefore, to attract attention and make the scene interesting, sketch the hills and the sea as below, pin a few stars and a moon, cut from silver paper, to the board and make some clouds. Tell the lesson story, and if it has already been taught by teachers, draw by questions from the scholars.

Be sure and develop the lesson before the scholars, if you do not they will run ahead of you, and you will be unable to keep their attention. Pin or draw some loaves and not more than two fishes to the board, then a heap of wheat. If you cannot draw one and have not a picture, get some black paper and get a friend to draw one for you and pin it to the board. Yellow chalk is always useful. You should have at least white, yellow, red, blue and green colors in chalk. Draw the Bible or pin a drawing of one to the board. When you have nearly finished the lesson, take two pieces of red chalk and draw a heart around the Bible. Use one piece in each hand, and beginning at the top centre draw both sides of the heart at once. Do it quickly. It is very easy thus to draw a heart. Try it beforehand. The lesson is obvious, manna, loaves, fishes, food for the body; Jesus, the bread of life, food for the soul.

LESSON IV—January 27th.

The Great Confession. MATT. 16:13-23.

In this lesson it might be as well to begin without anything on the board, not even the Golden Text. As a rule put this on beforehand, using yellow chalk, and place it up in the corner of the board. Begin with the hills and the plain below (a little green chalk will be helpful here), then make single strokes for the disciples and the white cross to signify Christ, and as you proceed make them teach the lesson story, so far as the movements of the disciples and Christ go. Then write the golden text on the board. Bring out the fact that
