HON. WILFRID LAURIER

It is our pleasure to present this week a portrait of Hon. Wilfrid Laurier, leader of the Liberal party of Canada. Mr. Laurier's personality is well represented by his name which, it will be observed, is half English and half French. Though of purely French blood, he is in his political sympathies and ideals as British as any Englishman amongst us. He is recognized as one of Canada's very ablest men, one from whom great things are yet expected. Mr. Laurier's home is at Arthabaskaville, P. Q., where he follows the pursuits of a student, gathering the stores of wisdom which give lasting value to the orations he so frequently delivers. He is actively connected with a Montreal law firm, and holds a leading place at the bar of the Province. In addition to his splendid mental endowments, Mr. Laurier's preserves what is equally necessary to successful leadership, a most charming personality. He is one of the best loved men of the day—being esteemed alike by Liberals and Conservatives. The experiment of a French-speaking leader for the Liberal party was considered a doubtful one by many, and it yet remains undecided. But if not in the very nature of things an impossibility, the one man who can succeed in the position is Wilfrid Laurier.
