CRIMINAL BANK DIRECTORS.

Talmage Fiercely Attacks Wall Street Business Methods.

BROOKLYN, Sept. 15.—Dr. Talmage, speaking from the text "In one hour so great riches are come to naught," said:—"The columns of our Custom Houses," said the preacher, "and of the National and State Capitols are swathed in black, and all the flags are at half-mast for the dead Secretary of the Treasury. At the age of 66 he died, without a spot on his reputation, although most of his life was spent among the nations of the earth."

"What a glorious background this is to the epidemic of fraud that prevails through all the land. This swamping of banks, this disappearance of administrators with the estates they have been appointed to administer, this disorder in most offices, every Christian to ask how it can be stopped. It is a sin, a typhoon, a sirocco of crime. I have often thought if it wouldn't be better for men making wills to bequeath all to executors and officials of courts, making the widows and orphans a committee to see that the others get all that don't belong to them."

"There are men sailing yachts, driving fast horses, gambling away thousands every night and wallowing in wine who would not have a dollar if they paid what they owed. A man is crushed in business or speculation. After awhile he blossoms forth again having compromised with his creditors and paid them up in regrets. I have noticed that nine out of ten richer after than they were before the failure, and that their published reverses is only a cover under which to introduce some more stupendous fraud."

"I blame directors of banks for laxity in permitting cashiers and bookkeepers to go on stealing year after year. They are either partners in infamy or else are guilty of negligence, for which God will hold them responsible. Men in high standing allow their names to be used as directors, and on the strength of their names many people of small means place their hard-earned money in their charge. When the bank goes under, and the small earnings of widows and orphans and of the helpless aged go with them, the Directors stand by with idle stare, and when an outraged community assails them, the Directors say: 'I thought it was all right. I didn't know there was anything wrong. But they ought to know; they are in a position to know. They are advertised as Directors, but they don't direct. All they care to know is what their dividends amount to. They are guilty either of complicity or wilful negligence. They allow themselves to be used as decoy ducks to attract an unsuspecting public to ruin. A pressing need is that 5,000 Directors of banking, insurance, mining and railroad corporations shall either resign or attend to their business. Just so long as fraud is so easy in business life there will be plenty of it. When you arrest the President or cashier of a bank you should also provide enough Sheriffs for the same day to arrest all the Directors."

"Some one says, 'Why don't you preach the Gospel and let business alone.' Well, if you preach the Gospel and let business alone, the world shall be condemned, then you had better sink it to the bottom of the sea. An orthodox swindler is far worse than a heretic swindler. You may subscribe to all the creeds, and take a sup out of all the chalices in Christendom, but that will not help you miss your business. Life is consistent with the simple rules of honesty and fair dealing. Some of the greatest scoundrels in the world are members of the church. The time ought to pass away forever when men can steal for six days in the week and get fat on sermons about Heaven on the seventh. Either they should be forced to see and follow the straight road to salvation or thundered out of the Christian church."

Every week brings new revelations of business crime. It's an epidemic. How many more bank presidents and cashiers are gauding with other people's money, and how many directors are sitting in imbecile silence letting partly progress under their noses, a great and patient God only knows. I think we have nearly touched bottom. The summer passed has been a great one. The wind has been kicked out of the bubble of American speculation. People who thought Judgment Day to be 5,000 years off found it last spring. Others have learned that it is better to keep their hands out of their neighbor's pockets. Great fortunes have been obliterated, and men who had nothing to lose lost all they had. (Laughter.)

"On the first Wednesday after the second Tuesday in November this country will enter on an unexampled career of prosperity, if—if—if." Here the congregation laughed in anticipation of the preacher's taking up the claims of the campaign orators, as to what would result if Butler, Blaine or Cleveland won. But he went on to say:—"If business men will stop speculating with other people's money. They have no business to take the property of others and turn it into kites to fly and soap bubbles to blow about. There is one word responsible for all this speculation, embezzlement and consternation, and it is 'borrow.' When a cashier takes the bank funds he does not purloin; he only borrows. What we want is some man of strong limb to stand at the head of Wall street and when this 'borrow' comes along kick it clean down to Wall Street Ferry, and even to Brooklyn Heights or Hill. Never speculate on borrowed money!"

"Ninety per cent of those who speculate in Wall street lose all. The Bible says that 'Faith without works is dead,' which being literally translated means that if your business life does not correspond with your professions your religion is a humbug. Live within your means. I have the highest commercial authority for saying that when the trouble broke out in Wall street last spring there were $225,000,000 in suspense which had been already expended. Some people think that religion is a delicate thing—an aromatic ambrosia, a sugar-coated peppermint, a sanctified gundrop, a holy caramel. But it is a serious thing. You can't hide your samples of tea, sugar and coffee if they are false, under the cloth of the communion table."

THE CHOLERA EPIDEMIC. ROME, Sept. 16.—The cholera bulletin for the past twenty-four hours, says as follows: Bergamo Province, 14 cases and 13 deaths; Caserta Province, 21 cases and 1 death; Cremona Province, 7 cases; Cuneo Province, 17 cases and 7 deaths; Genova Province, 28 cases and 14 deaths; Naples Province, 44 cases and 113 deaths; Naples City, 470 cases and 167 deaths; seven other provinces, 22 cases and 52 deaths. Confidence is reviving in Naples.
