

Included also are three appendices. The first provides definitions for the Register's seven categories of weapons. The second is a series of tables comparing participation rates in the Register for 1992 and 1993. The third consists of guidelines for completing the Register's standard reporting form.