vestry Meeting.

A special vestry meeting of St. Aidans Church is to be held on Wednesday when the organ committee's report will be confirmed. The church has long been in need of a new instrument, the present old organ being entirely too small for the choir, which numbers sixy-six. The committee has arranged for the purchase of an electric organ which will cost $7500.

The St. Aidans' Men's Club is holding a concert and supper tomorrow night, and an invitation is extended to the members of the congregation and their friends. An excellent program has been arranged, and the artists include Messrs. Courtney and Oldfield, Miss Sargent and Mrs. Stevenson.

When this item was read by the English portion of the population, especially those residing in the Earlscourt district, they became highly indignant, and severely scored the controller, who offered to hire a hall in Earlscourt and explain his position. Made No Comparison.

In a very convincing address, he explained to the association that he had attended a banquet at the Italian Club shortly after the civic elections, and, in addressing the gathering, he had congratulated the Italians on the manner in which they were doing their share in helping to build up the country of their adoption. He took a strictly international view of the matter, and had made no comparisons whatever as to the relative ability of the Italians and British. He further explained that the labor fight was not between the different nationalities but between the laborers and the was not between the different nationalities, but between the laborers and the employers, who often employed Italians in prereence to Englishmen.

The above map shows the latest plan for giving a street railway service to North Rosedale and Moore Park. But more than that, the map shows other important proposals bearing on the welfare of all the country north of the C.P.R. tracks and east of Yonge street, including the construction of a new straight road thru Mount Pleasant Cemetery. The street railway service idea is to extend the municipal line on St. Clair avenue, which now ends at Yonge street, due east to Constance, down Constance to Rosehill avenue, and then east on Rosehill avenue to the new street running south, and which will pass under the C.P.R. tracks by a subway at the west end of the C.P.R. bridge over the Belt Line ravine, and then by Standish avenue and Summerhill avenue to Glen road, and down that until it comes to the north end of the Glen road bridge.

The Secret Force Against Annexation of Suburbs

Turns on the Fate of the Seven Licenses in York Township.

Whence comes a lot of the opposition to the annexation of the suburbs Many peple would like to know

It crops up in the city council and it crops up, or rather fails to crop up, at other places, tho it gets in its work all the same. The World was told, with good reason, that this powerful but quie pposition is inspired by the liquor interests because of the effect, probably the unfair effect, annexation would have on the seven licenses in York Township. Certainly the aldermen who swing their arms and voices against annexation of every kind are not enemies of the trade. It is the only means the owners of these licenses have of defending their investments, and doubtless they are backed by the brewers and liquor their investments, and doubtless they are backed by the brewers and liquor trade generally.

Here are some details that show how it works out:
Licenses in York Township:

1 at Todmorden (East).

1 at O'Sullivan's Corners (East).

1 at York Mills (Yonge street).

1 at Cherry's (West, near Elia).

1 at Fairbank (West).

2 at Lambton (West).

Four of these licenses (one at Todmorden, two at Lambton, one at Fairbank), are in the immediate annexation belt, and would therefore have to disappear if the city were extended up to St. Clair on the east side, and a quarter of a mile north of Eglinton on the west side, as the city cannot by the law, as at present, have any more licenses than the number set out like the laws are entertainment in the town hall under the auspices of the Presbyterian Choir and Young People's Guild. Blames City Also.

The City of Toronto, he claimed, had caused the terminus to be moved at different times, and it seemed to him that the city wished to make a barrier between the people of the country districts and Toronto. The city had a right to cater for the country people, because the inhabitants of those districts today were the citizens of Toronto tomorrow. He are still so. East Toronto and Norway came in with five, and now have only three in the city. The city license board wiped two of them out.
