Editor World: I witnessed a most remarkable stop made by two motor-men on Church-street cars, G. Mc-Carthy, southbound, and B. Oldfieid, northbound, both approaching Adelaide-street at a good rate of speed. My blood turned cold to see an aged mdn walk suddenly from the sidewalk to the devilstrip and stand apparently dumb-founded at the approaching cars. Both fenders were dropped, and the cars were brought to a standstill in less than their own length within a foot of this ungrateful citizen, who walked off very unthankful. One motorman remarked that had the cars not been in perfect order and the rail in good condition this gentleman would be ready to kick the roots of the dalsies out in the cemetery. Subscriber.

ANDIT HOLDS UP TRAIN

The lone robber was beaten to the loor after a terrible struggle, tied and floor after a terrible struggle, tied and finally placed in jail here. He refuses to give his name or tell whether he had any confederates in the bold plot. The train, which was carrying Sat-urday pleasure seekers from Bloom-lington, Ill., to Kansas City, was in the middle of the Mississippi River bridge when the cry, "Hands up!" startled the occupants of one of the forward cars. Many passengers dropped to the floor while others shot their hands sky-ward.

while others shot their hands sky" ward. The robber, unmasked and with a revolver in his hand, had risen sud-denly from among the passengers in the crowded car. He went up to Marion Warner of Secor, Ill., who had /been sleeping when the robber entered the car. He awoke Warner and asked him if he had a revolver. Receiving a negative reply, it is stated, he imme-diately shot Warner dead. The passengers were panic-stricken, and when the hold-up demanded of a passenger whose name has not been learned that he empty his satchel, em-phasizing his order with a flourish of his revolver, the passenger hastily poured out the contents of his satchel and the hold-up took possession. The robber then fired at random in the car.

Other passengers rallied from their fright and the man was overpowered and held until the train stopped here, when he was turn-ed over to the authorfities and placed in jail. It is said by several persons that the robber was drunk and had boasted openly that he would kill somebody.
