the Reformatory and How It Has Been Brought About.

Interesting Experiments in a Model Institution in New York.

(From the New York Observer.) The "Twentieth Year Book" of the New York State Reformatory at Elmira contains some remarkable phototypes. Besides many pictures of different parts and phases of the institution and its work, there are about a score of pietures of the inmates; full-length figures showing "underweight," "normal," and "overweight"; arms and breasts, showing tatooing common among old sailors and the lower order of boys and hoodlums; heads and faces showing sears from violent fights, and some probably policemen's clubs; but especially the faces, of which some certainly are most unprepossessing, with low, narrow and receding foreheads, eyes dull or small, and mouth, chin and jaw coarse and brutal, or weak and animal. But this obviously criminal type is not universal, or even predominant. In some faces good features balance bad. we search in vain to learn why such Paine's Celery Compound intelligent, strong and attractive boys and young men should be behind the bars. Our interest and sympathy is at once called out as we see imprisoned criminals so much like the average people outside the prison doors. Moreover, the manifestly criminal type of a few of the faces awakens an interested inquiry as to how far inborn, or pre-natal tendencies and early evil associations and surroundings have made this criminal situation practi-cally unavoidable, and how far the present enforced conditions tend to correct what can be corrected and save what is salvable. Mr. Brockway has done well in bringing the charac ter of his twenty years' work so vividly before us, and showing what he has to do, and how he has done it. The most important feature of this reformatory seems to be "Indeterminate Sentence." Sentenced for their crimes to imprisonment at Elmira, the convicts have received sentence for not less than a specified minimum time nor more than a specified maximum, and the decision as to their release is with the officers of the Reformatory, and conditioned upon their conduct as showing real reform. Under this law 5,000 prisoners have been released on parole after imprisonment, less than half the time they would have been like offenses. Four of them would have incurred life sentences. Their average confinement in the Reformatory was about two years. parole system maintains correspendence with those released as far as possible for six months, releasing them absolutely after that probation. Of the 5,000 released, 3,000 maintained the correspondence with every appearance of real reform. Over 500 broke this obligation and were lost sight of, and 343 were brought back to the Reformatory; twenty, however, coming voluntarily; 150 were paroled a second time, of whom 29 were brought back again, and twelve were paroled a third time, of whom four were again brought back. A most pathetic story of real struggle against habits of crime, and especially of drunkenness, is suggested by these figures, while they testify to a loving patience lin the officers most humane and most praiseworthy. On the whole, the success of the indeterminate and parole system seems beyond any question, The institution is a school of the three Rs, and also a trades school, doing what it can to develop intelli-gence and manhood, and to fit the inmate on his discharge to enter with courage and a fair prospect into honest work. The pictures of the gymnasium show classes exercising with pole and bar, and they are very like the gymnasium pictures of any one of our great schools or universities. Most of those who are in the school long enough to do any continuous work advance rapidly to higher grades of study, and all who are not on entering proficient in a manual trade are apt to become so after a few months.

We know that Cod-liver Oil is a fat-forming food because takers of it gain rapidly in weight under its use and the whole body receives vital force. When prepared as in Scott's Emulsion, it is quickly and easily changed into the tissues of the body. As your doctor would say, "it is easily assimilated."

Perhaps you are suffering from fat starvation. You take fat enough with your food, but it either isn't the right kind, or it isn't digested. You need fat prepared for you, as in Scott's Rmulsion.

Twelve Years Werk of Medical Men Did Not Effect a Cure.

Kidney Disease Surely and Permanently Banished by Paine's Celery

A terrible record of suffering and misery! Twelve years a martyr to kidney disease and other serious ailments! Money spent for medical attendance, and a vast variety of patent medicines, and no cure! Such disappointments and failures added to physical and mental agonies were sufficient to drive many a sufferer to the verge of insanity. Deliverance from suffering and disease was long and earnestly prayed for, and a kind Providence directed a friend of the suffering lady to advise her to make a trial of Paine's Celery Compound. It was used. There were no blank disappointments; no vain experiments; no waste of hard-earned of baggage which Li Hung Chang took with him in his western travels, the one that excited the greatest curiosity was, without doubt, his coffin. The Viceroy's age at that time already exceeded the Biblical limit of three score years and ten. At a family council held before his setting out from home the chances of a man of his age surviving the fatigue of a long ocean voyage were discussed, and decided to be very small. Accordingly, preparations were made for the worst, and a coffin was added to his baggage. But the old man proved that he was made of tougher stuff than was generally supposed. was generally supposed. When he reached England he felt that he had strength and vitality enough to carry him through the remainder of his journey, and gave orders that the constant reminder of his approaching death be shipped back to China. The coffin got as far as the Suez Canal. There, as advices from the east have it, fire broke out in the steamer, and Li Hung Chang's coffin added fuel to the flames. There is no doubt that the Viceroy oks upon this loss as a good omen. If he is not above superstition he will interpret it to mean that he has not yet come near the end of his earthly career, inasmuch as the boards that are to hold his mortal remains have still to be fashioned.

After saying all that may be said of the many friends here: tian powers to enforce order in the Turkish Empire, and the almost equally criminal neglect of our Government to enforce its just claims in the same quarter, the fact remains that unless ure unknown before, thousands of helpless and innocent people in the Armenian district must perish from exposure and starvation during the coming winter season. It is no exaggeration to say that a heavier and more pressing obligation toward poor and suffering humanity never rested upon the Christian world than that which rests upon it today with respect to the Armenian people.

We desire to say here, also, once more, that the most valuable medium existing in this country for transmitting aid of any kind to the Armenians is the National Armenian Relief Committee, whose address we have given. SIR KNIGHT JAMES OSBORNE Reported on by the Sick Committee.

His Death Claim a foregone conclusion. REPORT having been made, February 20th, 1896, to Barton Tent, No. 2, Knights of Maccabees, Hamilton, Ont., that Sir Knight James Osborne was very ill, the standing "sick committee" was instructed to wait upon him. They did so, and at the next meeting of the Lodge, reported that his disease was stated by his physician to be Bright's Disease of the Kidneys, and that he could not possibly recover; further, that he would only last a short time. Upon receiving this report the Lodge expected to pay his death claim, but were surprised a few months later on when Sir Knight Osborne entered the Lodge room in apparent good health. His marvellous recovery is due entirely to Ryckman's Kootenay Cure, as he discontinued the use of all other medicine when he commenced to take that remedy. He now works every day, is getting stronger and healthier steadily, and appears to be a long way from death as far as Bright's disease is concerned.

Bright's Disease Yields to the New Ingredient.

Bright's Disease, that has hitherto been supposed Incurable, fastened itself upon James Osborne so firmly that his case was considered hopeless by physicians, friends and himself. All the well marked symptoms of that dread disease were in evidence. The pains across the kidneys were so bad that for hours at a time he could not turn in bed. The skin became pallid, pasty, dry and hard. Digestion bad, heart palpitation, shortness of breath and prostrating weakness. So weak did he become that his strength was like that of a child. He could not walk. Appetite gone, nervous, very restless during sleep, awakening several times during the night with a desire to urinate, which at times was very painful. Under the eyes the skin was puffed out, legs and feet were swollen, and he felt the use of them were gone. Reduced to this deplorable, helpless condition 'tis no wonder that he exclaimed: "what is to become of me," To be brought from this condition to a state of health that enables him to take up his usual work is marvellous, and proves the farreaching, curative powers of Kootenay. From head to foot he suffered, and from head to foot he was cured by Kootenay, and by it alone, as substantiated by the following:

PROVINCE OF ONTARIO, COUNTY OF WENTWORTH. To WIT .

I, JAMES OSBORNE, of the City of Hamilton, County of Wentworth, do solemnly declare that I reside at 62 Catherine St. South, in said City, and am employed as engineer by the Sandford Manufacturing Co., Hamilton, Ont.

Some time ago I was severely attacked with kidney trouble, and finally had to leave my employment. I was treated by Hamilton physicians who, after a consultation, diagnosed my case as "Bright's Disease of the Kidneys," and said I could not be cured. Upon this information I gave up treatment with the doctors, and began the use of Ryckman's Kootenay Cure. I am now pleased to state that after taking four bottles of that wonderful medicine I feel entirely like a new man. The swelling has left my body, my skin is a better color, and I am recovering my health and strength steadily.

Knowing the benefits which I received from the medicine, it gives me pleasure to recommend it to anyone suffering from Bright's Disease or other kidney trouble. I am now working in my old position as engineer, and owe my present strength and improved condition to Kootenay Cure.

And I make this solemn declaration, conscientiously believing it to be true, and knowing it is of the same force and effect as if made under oath. and by virtue of the Canada Evidence Act, 1893.
