WHO WILL REPLACE THEM?

The recruiting campaign was emphasized last evening by the honor paid to Private Tippet of Fairville and Major Guthrie of Fredericton. The wounded soldiers, both of them sorely crippled, had returned from the front, and the reception tendered them must have had the effect of causing other young men to ask themselves whether they were doing enough in this crisis to give them the right to cheer for men who had made so great a sacrifice for Canada and the Empire.

It was a splendid demonstration, both in the city and Fairville. Not until yesterday afternoon was it known that Major Guthrie would arrive in the city last night, and no public announcement of the reception could therefore be made in the press; but the news passed quickly over the city and the gallant soldier could have no cause to complain of a lack of enthusiasm in the great crowd at the railway station, along the streets, and on King Square. There was but one feeling, and it found expression in the cheers that greeted the man who had done his duty and had not flinched in the face of death itself.

Not less enthusiastic was the welcome to Private Tippet in Fairville. As he listened to the brief addresses, looked down upon the sea of faces crowding the large playground so familiar to his boyhood, and heard the ringing cheers of his fellow townsmen, he, too, must have felt that it was good to be home again, after all that he had suffered in the struggle for his country's life.

The young men of St. John cannot but be influenced by last night's remarkable outburst of enthusiasm. The need of men to fill the ranks and complete the task in which Major Guthrie and Private Tippet can no longer share is brought sharply home to all of us, and will be felt still more keenly as the weeks pass and the men of the 20th and other units made up largely of men from New Brunswick are thrown into the struggle. The next week should witness in this province a rush to the colors worthy of a community that boasts of its freedom, its loyalty to Canada, and its devotion to the welfare of the Empire.

THE MACHINE GUNS.

The Standard prints a despatch from Ottawa to the effect that the government will provide each battalion with four machine guns, "which is considered the necessary number," but that four more will be provided for each out of the machine gun fund subscribed by the people, adding that "this will materially increase the fighting strength of the Canadian troops." It will strike the ordinary reader that the government itself should undertake to do everything necessary to increase the fighting strength of the troops, and that more than four machine guns to a battalion should have been provided at the outset. It was because this provision was not made that the public were asked to subscribe funds. Now it is declared that eight guns are better than four, the government should hereafter provide eight or as many more as is necessary. Despite the Standard's assurance, however, we have still the letter of Sir Sam Hughes, saying that the machine gun fund "subject to military necessity" would be used to provide machine guns. Obviously, if "military necessity" appears to call for some other use of the money it will not be spent to provide guns. The phrase in the minister's letter can have no other interpretation. Nor are they "supporters of the opposition" who have criticized the government's course. The bulletin of the Patriotic Fund, with which H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught, Finance Minister White and Sir Herbert Ames are officially connected, has openly and most vigorously protested that the government should provide all the machine guns, and have the people free to support other funds.

Is the government really making, through the Standard, the humiliating confession that it only proposed to provide four guns to a battalion when it knew that eight guns would "materially increase the fighting strength of the Canadian troops"? Would it send Canadian troops to the fighting line with half enough guns? Surely the Standard must see that its course of "supporters of the opposition" will not be taken very seriously in view of such a suggestion as that.

But this machine gun question should be definitely settled and the people assured that so far as guns go the government will hereafter see that every unit has all it needs, without any private contributions.

A DISCORDANT NOTE.

Every citizen of St. John, regardless of politics, joined heartily into the welcome extended last evening to Major Guthrie. He deserved such a tribute, and it was not withheld.

It remained for the Standard to catch up a remark made by Major Guthrie and make it the text of a shameful attack upon the Liberal party. Major Guthrie had said, "Thank God for the British navy"—a sentiment in which every Canadian heartily joins. The remark was not original with Major Guthrie. Hon. J. D. Hazen used it the other night, and it has been used by Liberals and Conservatives for years and years. The Standard, however, seizes the remark and the return of Major Guthrie as the occasion for the false assertion that Sir Wilfrid Laurier barred the way and prevented Canada from being represented in that navy. Had Sir Wilfrid Laurier's naval policy been carried out, we might have shared the glory won by the Australian and New Zealand fleets. The Standard is quite right in saying that "when the cry is raised 'Thank God for the navy,' Canada can not pride herself on having contributed to the splendid achievements that call for that expression of thankfulness," but it is entirely the fault of the men who refused to carry out the policy of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, which they had themselves heartily approved (except the Nationalist section) when they were in opposition.

Fredericton will today welcome Major Guthrie as last evening Fairville welcomed Private Tippet.

How many young men in St. John honor the returned heroes enough to espouse the cause for which they suffered, and take their place in the ranks?

The Greek army and navy will be mobilized at once. If Bulgaria is rash enough to join Germany, she will be checkmated by Greece and probably Roumania.

The Russians have recaptured Lutsk and taken four thousand prisoners. The whole Russian situation appears much less hazardous than it was at the beginning of the week.

A returned Canadian soldier says he saw a Highlander who was credited to the Germans. History records nothing to surpass in savagery the conduct of the Germans in this war.

PROMINENT CANADIANS

NAMED AS DEBTORS IN LORD STRATHCONA'S WILL

Copy Reaches Toronto For Probate—Estate is Valued at $28,000,000

(Toronto Star.)

The extensive part played by the late Lord Strathcona in the world of Canadian finance is revealed by a copy of the late high commissioner's will which has reached Toronto for probate in the Surrogate Court of Ontario. The gross value of the estate is shown to be approximately $28,000,000, but of this the amount of property held in Ontario is $260,000. The applicants for probate are the Baroness of Strathcona and Mount Royal; John William Sterling, attorney of New York; James Carson, writer to the signet of Edinburgh; and Wm. Carson. The death of the last executor has been the cause of the delay.

The Canadian assets are extremely large. His real estate in the dominion is set at $4,000,000; his holdings in the C. P. R.—19,475 shares—are valued at $4,110,000, and his 2,777 shares in the Bank of Montreal at $646,000.

Among the many whom the will shows as borrowers from the late peer, are several well known Canadians. Sir George E. Foster is his debtor for $19,000; the late Sir Richard Cartwright borrowed $45,000, and W. T. R. Preston, the author of the much-discussed "Life of Lord Strathcona" was at the time of his subject's death, in his debt $200. The book debts altogether amount to $200,000.

His Ontario stocks include 220 shares in the Bank of Toronto, 50 shares in the Northern Life, 11,000 shares in the Canadian North Western Land Co., 60 shares of Muskoka Lakes Navigation Co., 810 shares in the Globe Printing Co., 500 shares in the Port Arthur and Port William Mortgage Co., and 410 shares in the Ontario Bank.

GERMANIZATION OF AUSTRIA PROGRESSES

Berne, Sept. 25.—The Germanization of Austria continues steadily. The latest development is a congress of municipal representatives of German-speaking Austrian towns, ostensibly for helping the municipalities to adapt themselves to war conditions, but really more for the consolidation of the German-speaking element in the Austrian Empire.

Tomorrow the foundation stone will be laid on the Austro-German frontier, of the so-called Turn der Bundesgenossen, or "Turn of the Bonds of Fellowship between Germany and Austria-Hungary." Building operations will be begun, it is said, immediately.

The lower part of the tower will consist of a memorial hall, the walls of which are to be covered with tablets commemorating the names of soldiers of neighboring towns who have fallen in the war, while the upper portion will take the form of a vast urn in which it is proposed to kindle fire on all German and Austro-Hungarian national festival days. The tower will be more than 600 feet high.

LIGHTER VEIN.

Manners and Business

"If you'd assume a more genial manner you would get along better in business."

"Hull! I tried it once and everybody I met wanted to borrow money."

As Understood.

"Madam, you are a little run down. You need frequent baths and plenty of fresh air, and I advise you to dress in the coolest, most comfortable clothes; nothing stiff or formal."

When the lady got home, this is how she rendered to her husband the advice given to her by the doctor.

"He says I must go to the seashore, do plenty of motoring, and get some new summer gowns."

The story is told of a man whose wife had arranged an "authors' evening," and persuaded her husband to help her receive the fifty guests. The first author was dull, but the second was diller. The rooms were warm, and on pretense of letting in some cool air, the unfortunate host escaped to the hall, where he found the footman comfortably asleep on the carved oak settee.

"Wake up, I say! You must have been listening at the keyhole!"
