WHY NO BRIDGE AT PERRY'S POINT?

The Editor of the Times:

Sir:—I would like to be permitted to use your valuable columns to express dissatisfaction of the convenience afforded for crossing the river at Perry's Point. Since the bridge across the river was destroyed several years ago, the residents of that vicinity have been patiently waiting year by year to see the bridge rebuilt, but as yet nothing has been done. The only way of crossing the river at this point is by means of a sail-scow ferry, whose trips are not very regular, owing to wind and other adverse circumstances. Particularly on Saturday nights this mode of transportation is most annoying when people are coming to the country to spend the week end and the farmers are coming home from market, as there are usually more teams and passengers waiting at the ferry than the scow can accommodate, and consequently some have to be left waiting on the shore until the scow crosses the river and from an hour up—just according to the way the wind blows—causing much dissatisfaction. In one instance a party was getting a setting of duck eggs from across the river, and wonder was expressed by one of the passengers that they did not hatch before the scow arrived to convey them over. For the last two years the steamer Hampton, which formerly plied between Hampton and St. John, has been off the route—they say due to trouble over subsidies, etc., and this has even helped to make matters worse. The people of this vicinity feel that they are entitled to a better means of transportation, and hope that something will be done to improve conditions in the near future.

To prevent woollen garments from shrinking hang them out on the line quite wet. They should on no account be wrung in any way—simply take them from the water and hang them out as they are, being careful not to pull the garments out of shape with the pegging.

RICH TREAT IS GIVEN IN OPERA

Chocolate Soldier, in Delightful Presentation, Musical Event of Surpassing Excellence

Sparkling with tuneful, entrancing melodies, brilliant with flashes of wit from George Bernard Shaw's best satirical vein in "Arms and the Man" and presented by a talented and capable company of nearly forty persons "The Chocolate Soldier" again saluted music lovers and stage-goers at the Opera House last evening. The presentation was made by the Whitney Opera Co. and marked an event of such theatrical interest in St. John, for it is an unusual engagement which brings to the city such a galaxy of good singers, dancers, histrionic artists and a comic opera such as they conveyed here. The piece was enthusiastically received and the audience lingered after the final curtain, reluctant to depart from the presence of the talented performers.

It was the general comment of those with whom the memory of the last visit of "The Chocolate Soldier" was still engrained, that the present company was superior. They certainly are deserving of the hearty welcome given them by the audience which should have been greater, but which will no doubt improve during the remainder of the week. But the featuring was overwhelming in bestowing applause, one especial instance being at the close of the second act, when following an ensemble, the beauty and power of which has seldom been equaled here, there were no fewer than six vociferous curtain calls.

The majority of the faces in the cast are new to St. John. Miss Tina Rasband, prima donna soprano appeared as Madama, winsome and coy, and having a bright personality with a charming voice, and pretty appearance the easily which demonstrated the art of Miss Janis to a nicety. Commencing next Monday, the Imperial is going to produce that stupendous nine-reel production, "The Spoilers," which engagement special prices will rule.

WONDERFUL FILM COMING NEXT WEEK

"The Spoilers" Has Unequaled Record in Big Cities

All photography pictures and many who never attend the picture theatre at a high pitch of expectancy and pleasurable anticipation by the announcement that Rex Keck's famous novel, "The Spoilers," visualized by Selig Company, will be shown in Imperial Theatre, commencing next Monday.

This picture has had a remarkable run. It holds the record for the longest Theatre in New York, where it ran for a fortnight. It was then presented in Chicago at the Studebaker Theatre for a brief engagement of two weeks, nearly 100,000 people saw this picture. In San Francisco 60,000 people saw "The Spoilers" the first week, and thousands upon thousands were turned away. So enormous was the demand for seats that, as well as the readers of fiction, that it became necessary to extend the run of the picture for an additional week, and in order to accommodate the multitudes, it became necessary to show the picture in two theatres. The remarkable success of "The Spoilers" in American cities is being repeated in Canada. At the Imperial Theatre in Montreal, where the engagement was originally for three days, so insistent was the demand for seats that the picture was continued for another week to capacity houses. On the last night of this engagement so tremendous was the crowd that thousands were turned away to gain admission. There is always conspicuous interest in an attraction that makes such a record.

CHAPLIN AGAIN MAKES UNIQUE PATRONS ROAR

Two Other Stars of the Fun World—Gaumont Weekly and New York Drama

Considering at least the weather conditions of the past week the comedy at the Unique Theatre yesterday was surely a treat. It bore the rather characteristic title of "Between Showers," and depicted the adventures of the renowned comedian in some vain attempts to become the possessor of a stolen umbrella. Per usual the efforts of Charlie met with good hearty laughter and there was not a dull moment during the time he was on the screen. To add to the laughable powers of the comedy and Chaplin's acting, Ford Sterling and Chester Conklin, two other stars in the fun world also contributed largely to the success of the farce. However, Chaplin ruled and in the different chase scenes and adventures with the policeman he appeared to be at best advantage. This week's Chaplin should certainly be seen by his many admirers for the laughing qualities of the subject are many and varied.

ance of the act, never. Miss Virginia Underwood whose singing has attracted widespread attention, was especially entertaining in her rendering of one of the brilliant Ardit waltzes.

The Imperial's pictures, which will be concluded tonight, include a three-part Essanay drama, "The Lady of the Snows" with its scenes laid in the western country and also in old Quebec; a Lubin comedy entitled "A Double Life," which was a particular slap at home folks, who become enamored of stage people; the Animated Weekly with its news-photos and one of "The Hazards of Helen" railway adventures.

Tomorrow that brilliant little English comedienne, Elsie Janis, will be seen in the Bosworth five-reel production, "The Captives of Kitty," a delicious comedy which demonstrates the art of Miss Janis to a nicety. Commencing next Monday, the Imperial is going to produce that stupendous nine-reel production, "The Spoilers," which engagement special prices will rule.

PRETTY NURSES WERE HER DUPES

Given Good Time and Fine Clothes in New York

HOSTESS IS ARRESTED

High Life for a Few Days and Then the Deaumont—Several Charges Are Made Against Her

New York, June 12.—A handsomely dressed woman accompanied by two beautiful girls, about seventeen or eighteen years old, and a young man, appeared at the Hotel Belmont one afternoon recently and the woman registered for the party as "Mrs. E. C. Williams, daughters and chauffeur, Boston." She ordered a single room for the fourth and a large, double room for herself and daughters.

The hotel folk noted the appearance of the party with pleasure. Their clothing was rich without being showy. Their manners were of the best. They were quiet and exclusive to a degree. They looked like what they purported to be, a Boston family in the best of circumstances.

They appeared at the hotel on the evening of their arrival in an automobile which Mrs. Williams said she had hired for their stay and later the hotel learned that having decided on a longer stay than she had planned at first, Mrs. Williams had bought the car. Then there came a call from Louis & Co., at 554 Fifth avenue. What did the hotel know of Mrs. Williams who had bought $800 worth of gowns and hats and tendered a check on the Old Colony Trust Company of Boston? The hotel folk knew nothing but evidently they noted, the check had been accepted for multitudes of bundles arrived for mother and daughters and all three appeared in new garments, still, however, in quiet taste.

They had been at the hotel for four days when Mrs. Williams asked the cashier to cash her check. Such requests are not uncommon, but the cashier took the precaution of asking Mrs. Williams to call the next day for her money. Instead, the woman disappeared. That was the latter part of last month. The hotel received calls from various quarters. The automobile company wanted its automobile back. A check for $4,700 on the Old Colony Trust Company had just started their training when "Mrs. Williams" became supervisor of nurses and, attracted by their beauty, as the confessed, made great friends of them, explaining that her husband was Earle Williams, a motion picture actor, and that she would have no trouble in placing the girls in similar positions, where their beauty would enable them to make many times the salary they could hope to earn as nurses. She, too, Mrs. Williams told them, intended to pose before the camera, and she suggested that they visit New York together.

The girls had no means for such a journey, but Mrs. Williams declared her husband was wealthy and she would help to finance the trip. She decided also to take a young orderly, who had struck her fancy, and who, she said, she would train to be her chauffeur. And so the trip began.

Once here, the girls confessed, Mrs. Williams had confided to them that she was not yet really Mrs. Williams, but had come here to marry the motion picture actor, and would the girls stay with her till after the wedding. They would. So then began the shopping tour. Mrs. Williams bought for herself, saying she needed the costumes for her wedding trousseau and she bought for the girls so that they might be as well dressed as herself. And then she left them that was all the girls knew, and they tearfully begged the hotel people not to divulge their names, for they had left home without permission, and their parents would never forgive them.

So the hotel people promised, and friends were found for the girls who Then police headquarters here was notified that "Eugene Edwards alias Catherine O'Leary, alias Mrs. E. C. Williams, alias O'Leary," was under arrest and was awaiting the arrival of New York detectives.

According to the police here the woman comes from Falmouth where her mother now lives, although they don't know her name, and at the Hotel Belmont it was said the Pinkertons had informed the management that the woman was wanted in New Jersey on a similar charge where she had broken her parole. According to the police "Mrs. Williams" swindled the Hotel Touraine in Boston out of $18 by a worthless check just before her departure for this city, and they notified the Boston police of her arrest.

They had been at the hotel for four
