MAKING BONDS OF EMPIRE STRONGER

Miss Talbot of Victoria League on Visit to Ottawa

(Ottawa Free Press.) To implant and foster practical imperialism is the mission to Canada of Miss Talbot, of London, Eng., secretary of the Victoria League, who is a guest at Government House this week.

Miss Talbot is en route to Britain. Upon her arrival there she will have completed a tour around the world, in the course of which she visited Australia, Tasmania and New Zealand.

"The aim of the Victoria League is to promote by practical means any work to bring the people of one country closer together," said Miss Talbot to a Free Press representative this morning.

"The league was founded in 1901, in response to a request received in London from South Africa, and was named in memory of Queen Victoria. The promoters decided that its work should be non-party and practical."

"The non-party character of the league is well secured at the present time by the fact that it has the patronage of the queen and the queen mother. A similar, and its political opponent in the Political Parliament, Mr. Balfour, besides many others well known throughout the empire as opponents on party political questions."

"The practical work is mainly educational and social. In consultation with school teachers, schools in different parts of the empire are put in touch with one another. Educational and social life.

BARK CROWN, ABANDONED, DRIFTS 1,100 MILES

Washington, June 3.—The hydrographic office has just come upon a case of more than usual interest in that an abandoned ship has drifted westward for 1,100 miles through the middle of the Sargasso Sea.

This sea is an eggshaped area in the latitude of Florida, extending some 600 miles east and west, and extending thence east for 1,700 miles to about the 30th meridian.

It is characterized by an unusual quantity of seaweed, but traditions and popular legends have peopled it with all kinds of floating debris, including abandoned ships, practical navigators, however, have found no trouble in traversing it in every direction, and the drift of the abandoned bark crown, goes to show that popular superstition is no doubt once an error.

The Crown left Nova Scotia early last December for the coast of Brazil. She had her rudder and sails filled with water so that she crew abandoned her the day after Christmas, and she has been kept afloat since then by her cargo of lumber.

On December 29 this wreck was in mid-ocean, and on the 31st she was in the Sargasso Sea, and in three months had drifted westward over 700 miles. On April 23 she was sighted for the fourth time, being then in latitude 25 degrees 19 minutes, longitude 64 degrees 34 minutes, or 385 miles due south of Bermuda. Her cargo was worth more than 1,100 miles in the one hundred and eighty days succeeding the date of her abandonment, thus averaging ten miles a day.

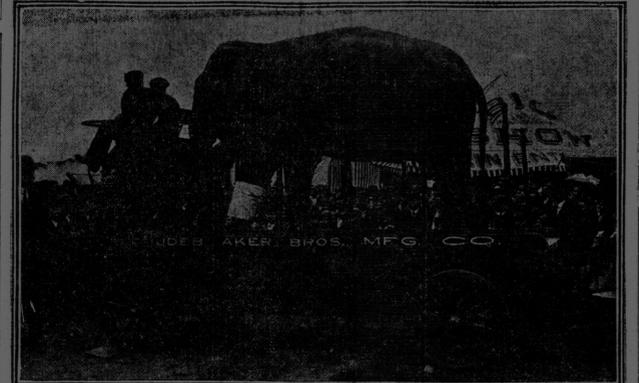

BEGINNING TO APPRECIATE OUR MARKET

(Ottawa Free Press.) The movement for a reciprocity treaty between Canada and the United States appears to have gained considerably more strength in the United States than in Canada.

Our neighbors have been much struck with the important fact, that to use the language of the Detroit Free Press, "Canada is displacing other nations in our list of customers. Most of our patrons are falling off in their purchases at America's bargain counters. Great Britain, Germany, the Netherlands, our best customers in Europe—although France ranks among them—are buying even less than in 1908.

France keeps about even with her imports from us, but makes no gains worth noticing. Canada alone continues to buy more and more liberally in the country, and her patronage is steadily mounting in value."

The Justweds plan for their Summer Vacation

Perhaps it was the heat or perhaps the vast amount of work Mr. Justweds had gotten away with that day—at all events, he came home in far from an amiable humor.

MR. J. CONTINUED HIS SWINGS AND STROKES AFTER IMAGINARY BALL. He arose from the table and strolled into the living room. He felt rested and refreshed and in the best of humor.

"I'll not!" said Homer-dear decisively. "Think I'd waste my time reading all that trash. I know just what they are. I've seen 'em before. Nothing but 'dope' and 'con' and 'piffle'! The pictures look like the Order of the KKK—when you get there you can search within a 10-mile radius of the hotel in all directions without finding the original of the photos. Oh, I'm wise to that advertising gag all right, alright!"
