HALF A MILLION IN ADVERTISING.

(Montreal Herald.)

Apart altogether from the merits of the case which the tobacco commission is investigating, an interesting feature of the evidence presented has been the disclosure of the amount of money which the two companies against which complaint has been made—the American Tobacco Co. and the Empire Tobacco Co.—have expended of late years in advertising. It was stated that the former had spent $267,961 in exploiting its wares, while the sister company has donated in four years $250,579 towards the same purpose. This makes a total of $518,540. It was also stated that the Empire Company, under the former management, had spent but $2,308 in two years in advertising. Industrial companies which can spend such sums as these in attracting attention to what they have to sell must be most formidable competitors of traders less fortunately situated, or less impressed with the value of publicity. If the American and the Empire companies have captured a large share of the Canadian tobacco trade, their liberal expenditure in advertising must be credited with a large share of the result.

THE ST. JOHN STAR is published by THE SUN PRINTING COMPANY (LTD.), at St. John, New Brunswick, every afternoon (except Sunday) at $3 a year.

ST. JOHN STAR.

ST. JOHN, N. B., NOVEMBER 22, 1902.

CONCERNING THE WEATHER.

If the predictions of an observant citizen are fulfilled we should have a mild winter in this part of the world. He says he has observed for a good many years past that when they have a very severe winter in Europe the weather in this part of Canada is mild. Up to the present time this fall the conditions have tallied with his conclusions. The following London cable is therefore of interest, and it will be worth while to take note of the relative conditions for the balance of the season. The cable says:—

Severe cold weather is prevailing in Europe. There has been a heavy snowfall in central and southern France, and a cold storm has suddenly followed the summer-like weather on the Riviera. Bitter winds and frost prevail in Germany and Austria. In Switzerland there is skating. Premature snows on the mountains have destroyed a number of cattle. German meteorologists prophecy the hardest winter for half a century. A cutting east wind is blowing in Great Britain.

POINTER FROM WINNIPEG.

The Winnipeg city council has adopted the following resolutions:—

That the public parks board be authorized and requested to establish one or more ice skating rinks upon the rivers contiguous to the public parks of the city; that the board have and maintain full control of such rink or rinks when so established, but that the citizens shall have the right of use of same for skating purposes free of charge between such hours of the day as the board may determine.

That the parks board be requested to erect a small dressing room, to be supplied with a stove, for each of these rinks, and that an attendant be provided for same for afternoons and evenings, to keep order, keep up fires, etc.

A CHEERFUL OUTLOOK.

Congressman Eddy of Minnesota, who is visiting Winnipeg, makes the following statement about Canada's future: "You people don't realize your greatness or comprehend half of your resources. Why, your agricultural riches are bound to make you one of the granaries of the world. Then, on the Hudson Bay basin you have untold wealth in lumber and minerals. Just around James Bay alone there's more timber than ever there was in Minnesota and Michigan put together. Do you know there's pulp wood enough round Hudson Bay to supply the world's market for two centuries? When that road is built north from Sault Ste. Marie you will see the greatest conceivable development going on in that 'barren country,' as you are accustomed to think of it. It will be quite as astounding as your western developments here."

"There will be lots of immigration into the Canadian west from the mid-west states. I don't think anyone has any conception of it. Whole townships will be moving north en bloc. There'll be a hundred thousand settlers up in this country from Minnesota, Wisconsin and Iowa next season."

The following statement from Sir William Preese will not afford any comfort to the free traders:—

British commercial and industrial supremacy had practically ceased, largely owing to lack of commercial education and obsolete business habits, and also to lack of commercial patriotism and the free trade fallacy. The nations which had not adopted free trade flourished more than the solitary nation that had adopted it. He instanced the protection of their industries by the Americans, whose policy was dictated by intense patriotism. If the Americans were right in principle and successful in practice, the whole policy of the United Kingdom was founded on a gigantic error and must lead to commercial ruin.

The Protestant Synod in session at Halle, Germany, this week, declared cremation to be "a sin, not a mere infraction of ethics," and refused to permit clergymen to attend cremations or hold divine service over a body before it is carried to the crematory. This is an extraordinary decision, and since anti-burial societies are increasing in Germany, and the number of crematories growing, it is likely to cause a good deal of dissatisfaction among the people. Why it should be more of a sin to cremate a body than to leave it to the slow process of decay in the earth is not very clear to the average mind. The action of the synod is another illustration of the fact that custom and old beliefs die hard.

The mayor of San Francisco, who was elected on a straight labor union ticket, says that in the peaceful labor union lies the hope for the future prosperity of the United States. The peaceful labor union is all right, so is the peaceful union of employers of labor. It is when the two become belligerent that the prosperity of the country is threatened.

The flour mills of Minneapolis have made a new record. The twenty-two mills, during the week ending Nov. 8, ground 448,710 barrels. This means a daily average of 64,100 barrels.

Mr. Fraser, M. P., in a speech delivered at a dinner in Boston on Thursday night, said to the Bostonians what the Roman Catholic Archbishop of Toronto said the other day at the dinner of the Catholic Union to Mr. Falconio, the papal delegate, that there is no desire to be united (to the United States) with any stronger political bonds than exist at the present time. This appears to be a frequent and favorite form of speech in Canada.—Globe.

Does the Globe still object to this form of speech in Canada? If not, why this thinly veiled sneer?

A public meeting at which his excellency the governor general will preside, will be held at an early date to determine upon concerted action to allay the ravages of tuberculosis among the population of Montreal.

Another weapon has been placed in the hands of the vegetarians. Mrs. Benjamin Layman of Hot Springs, Va., will be blind the rest of her life as a result of the explosion of a beef stew which she was preparing for dinner on Tuesday.

A state law in California makes eight hours a day's work, and provides that $2 shall be the minimum pay for that work.

A NIGHT WITH DICKENS.

Gratifying Entertainment in Centenary Schoolroom Last Night, in Aid of Seamen's Mission.

The programme offered for the entertainment in Centenary schoolroom last evening in aid of the Seamen's Mission proved sufficient to attract an audience that occupied every seat in the hall and that thoroughly enjoyed every number on the programme.

Mayor White presided and in his opening remarks spoke of the good work being accomplished by the Seamen's Mission. In introducing Beverly Harris, whose series of readings from Dickens was the principal feature of the entertainment, his worship referred to the manner in which Dickens' works had at once become popular and how they have ever since retained their hold upon the minds of readers.

Mr. Harris's readings of the first and second parts of the Christmas Carol were a most agreeable surprise to the audience. Perhaps the most noticeable feature was the almost amazing exhibition of retentive power, for although the book was open before him, Mr. Harris had no occasion to refer to it. His manner is perfectly free and his work throughout was as though he were merely telling an interesting tale to interested listeners.

Between the readings a violin solo was given by Mr. Coupe, and vocal solos by Miss Thompson and J. N. Sutherland. Mrs. Carter and Miss Hea were the accompanists.

At the conclusion of the programme H. C. Tilley, president of the Seamen's Mission, thanked all who had assisted in making the entertainment a success.

NATURAL HISTORY SOCIETY.

The Natural History Society of New Brunswick has earned the right to be considered a live and useful institution. Its bulletin or yearly publication makes known to the outside world whatever is new and of scientific interest concerning this province. Its roll of membership is probably larger than at any previous time in its history, embracing in all departments not less than 150 members. A plan is proposed and is now being considered by a committee to amalgamate with it as the parent society all the other natural history societies now existing, or which may hereafter exist in the province, so that there may be more unity and effectiveness in scientific work, especially in the publication of a joint bulletin of proceedings. This would be much more economical, and lessen the number of such publications—a boon to the working scientist everywhere who has to waste time in procuring them.

The programme of the winter work of the society is now prepared and will shortly be published. It embraces lectures from the ordinary and corresponding members at the regular meetings which are held on the first Tuesday of each month. The Ladies' Association, which is a very active and useful part of the society, has also arranged for a course of weekly lectures to begin on the second Thursday in January. In addition to this, arrangements are being made for a series of easy elementary talks on natural science topics during the winter. Elementary course should prove very useful to the younger members and to the advanced students of the public schools. In addition to this the museum of the society is open on the afternoons of Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, and many school children avail themselves of this privilege of examining the objects in the museum.

SATURDAY SERMONETTE.

No life can be pure in its purpose, or strong in its strife. And it will not be purer and stronger thereby. —Owen Meredith.

One of the most potent factors in the making or marring of a character is the influence exerted on the individual by those around him. Every one whose life touches that of another, be it ever so slightly, leaves an impress upon it either for good or for evil. And no life can be lived so entirely separate from the rest of the world as to be altogether without an influence upon others. That is something we cannot escape, no matter how we may try.

All the best men of the world have done much to inspire others to a nobler conception of true living, by their own high standards of right. Not a grand and glorious action has been wrought, but when it is made known, the thrill of sympathy and emulation travels around the earth and gives a fresh impetus to all life. Every noble impulse, every generous deed is universal in its results, and forms another link in the never ending chain of influence binding all human life together.

Influence is far reaching, and we never can tell by how much or how little our own faults or virtues, which we may consider our private property, may affect the life of many and many a person whom we ourselves have never seen or even heard of. Whatever we do, whether good or bad, has a share in forming our own characters. We must come in contact with others, and inevitably exert an influence on them, they in turn passing on the impress they receive, and so it goes. No pure, unalloyed life is without a good effect, in a greater or less degree, on all life the world over.

It may not fall to our lot to help make the world better by something which shall stir life to its depths—such deeds are granted to but the few—but let us endeavor to so live our lives with such purpose and love of truth that our influence, though weak, may be for good—and not one of us can tell what shall be the results therefrom.

ABSENCE OF MIND.

Is Increasing in the Age of Multiplex Duties.

"Do you know that absent mindedness is rapidly on the increase?" asked an observant man in New Orleans Times-Democrat. "And it is a rather striking fact that absent mindedness is no longer confined to men of genius, to artists and musicians, statesmen and literateurs and men of strong mental attainments, but it is making the most startling inroads among men supposedly of common rank in life. I suppose it is due to the condition of the age in which we live. The age is so everlastingly fast, the stress and tension is so great, that men really haven't the time to keep their thoughts cool and well collected."

"I saw a man yesterday leap from a street car without his hat. Slapping his hand on the top of his head, he missed the hat and dashed wildly down the street after the car. The conductor found that he had left it on the seat and threw the hat off to him. A few days ago a well known young man uptown rushed out of his home without his coat. He is a timid, precise young fellow, and when he discovered he had failed to put on a street car, he was about to get on a street car, he blushed to his ears and made his way back hurriedly to his home. Down in Canal street there is a young man who holds a very responsible position with a big firm, and his position requires him to keep well dressed because he has to deal with the women who enter the place. He was paralyzed a few days ago when he looked in the office mirror after reaching his place of business without having a collar on, and he recalled the fact that there was some little giggling on the car which brought him down town."

"Yes, absent mindedness is on the increase, and it is not confined to the Mozarts and Wagners and men of high artistic ability. The fact is that the man of practical, ordinary affairs is so crowding himself mentally with the multiplex details of his particular line that he is forced to become more or less absent minded. It is one of the legitimate results of modern methods in the affairs of life, and the wonder is that there are not more cases of absent mindedness."

NEGRO LABOR IN FACTORIES.

Not Much to be Expected From It Right Away.

Professor Jerome Dowd, a prominent sociologist, formerly of Trinity College, N. C., now of the University of Wisconsin, writes in the Southern Workman:

"Work in manufacturing lines is becoming more intensive and requires, for success, men who are not only skilled, but who live an orderly life and have acquired special traits of character. Character is coming to be the paramount factor in all lines of activity. The chief difference between races, nations and individuals is in character, rather than in intellect. The negroes were mighty in intellect, but they succumbed to the corruptions of the flesh. Even the French people acknowledge their own deficiency in ability to give the prolonged attention and to exercise the patience and self-restraint so necessary to factory life; and hence I do not hesitate to say that the negro has not yet reached the stage of development which fits him for manufacturing occupations. This statement should not shock the most optimistic of the negro race, for the reason that after a century of trial the white man is hardly yet qualified for such work."

"The great problem for the negro, as for all races of men, is the building of character. It is only the moral race that makes progress. Teaching the negro to read and write is not solving the problem of his destiny. He must be established in those occupations which correspond to his stage of development. With the proper industrial footing he cannot have too much literary or other knowledge. The greatest mistake that the negro has made in the past is to make him attempt to start at the top instead of at the bottom. I think that the avenues should be kept open for any exceptionally endowed negro to reach the very summit of human attainment, but for the great mass of the race, the most rapid line of advance is in the direction of agricultural pursuits."
