"There is no illness in the family,"

said Marcia coldly.
"Then why this funeral countenance?" demanded Blatchford. "Here I am, just back from the West, and you don't even say 'how d'ye do.' Didn't you get my letters every day or what I to the matter?"

circus necktie. What else did I have?"

"A girl," said Marcia explosively. "A girl who looked like an actress. You had your arm about her waist and you were kissing her, and the people walking along the beach stopped and laughed at you, and suddenly you saw them and got up and ran away."

"And here's where I get the engagement ring and my letters back, and you tell me that I have destroyed your faith in the honor of men just because some motion picture actor happens to said there wasn't no comeback. It was all a joke."

"It is a joke—on Towne," said Jimmie steadly. "You need apprehend no trouble in the matter. I thank you for your courtesy."

He turned to find Marcia at his elbow.

"Take me out of here, Jimmie," she said softly. "I was an idiot to fall so easily into Henry Towne's trap. He wanted to cut you out. That was his object."

"And he counted upon your freezing."

Marcia turned to Jimmie.

"We must have seen all the pictures," she said with embarrassment. "This seems to be the place I was in yesterday, but I recognize none of those pictures. I hope you do not think I—"

"I think you are unfamiliar with picture theatres," said Jimmie with a laugh. "Wait here a moment."

He slipped away in the darkness, and Marcia closed her tired eyes to shut out the tiresome flicker.

She felt more miserable than ever. Jimmie's attitude had somewhat shaken her confidence in the identification, and now she had even falled to prove her case with him. Presently a hand rested on her arm and she opened her eyes.

"Stip out," said Jimmie. "I have solved the missery in part. The same people come here every day, so they

He hailed a street car and a ten-min instead he gasped.

"What's the matter?" he cried, when he had found his voice. "Is it anything serious? Some of the family ill?"

"I was induced to visit a motion picture performance yesterday," began Marcia. "I believe that they are called 'nickel theatres."

"I've heard the phonographs outside," murmured Jimmie. "If the pictures are as bad as the music, your look of woe is explained. How did you come to patronize such a place?"

"I't was curiosity," explained Marcia.

"Im glad some one sees humor in the situation," said Jimmie grimly, as he laid a ten-cent piece on the cashier's shelf and led Marcia tarough the door.

I foolishly let myself be persuaded to go with them. They had a picture of you on the screen."

"That is flattering," cried Jimmie, mockingly. "I find you looking as if the end of the world was near and you explain that you saw me in the motion pictures, which accounts for your state of depression."

"It was taken at the shore last summer," said Marcia, meaningly.

"I admit that I am not a dream of beauty in a bathing suit," said Jimmie with a smile, "but I did not know that I was almost fatal to the beholder."

"You were entirely dressed," interpreted Mercia. "You had on that gray"

"Im the man who makes them. Want to hire the service?" he asked eagerly. "We get all the big French stuff before any one else. We're the most up-to-date and we get the crowd every time."

"I am merely curious about the picture, 'By the Sad Sea Waves,'," explained Jimmie. The man grinned.

"Friends of yours?" he asked. "Great sell, wasn't it? It was made to order for a chap. He wanted to spring it at a bachelor dinner to the other fellow. He got us a suit of the chap's clothes, even to shirt and shoes. The picture stood him $200, but he said it was worth it. He let us use it for exhibitin rupted Marcia. "You had on that gray suit I liked so much, and the tie I gave you for Easter, the one you said you never would wear except when you were with me."

"And I never did,' 'said Jimmie, promptly. "Only the thought of being with you would tempt me to wear that circus necktie. What else did I have?"

"It was you," insisted Marcia. "There can be no possibility of a mistake.

"I'm from Missouri," declared Jimmie Mould you mind taking me to the place where I can be confronted with the evidence of my perfidy?"

"Since you will not admit your guilt," said Marcia coldly, "I do not see how you can deny the picture when you must recall the circumstances."

"Please," said Jimmie pleadingly, and Marcia nodded an assent. The Nickelemeon was but a few blocks away and presently they had paid an admission and had passed into the darkened hall.

For half an hour they sat watching the flickering pictures thrown against the screen of whitewashed wall, then Marcia turned to Jimmie.

"We must have seen all the pictures,"

"In firm going to fire my man for letting Towne have my old clothes. I am going to call on Towne—never mind that—and I'm going to get a license to morrow and marry you before they can spring any more photographic seeds of jealousy on us."

"I think," said Marcia softly, "that in future the seeds will fall on barren ground, Jimmie, but—you'd better get the license anyway."

vealed tonight when the two-maste schooner Conrad S. arrived at his port. Captain Cochrane of the schooner re ported that at 4 a. m. on May 26, when eight miles southeast of Brenton's Reef lightship, during a thick fog, he collided with the schooner Harold B. Cousens, bound from St. John, N. B., for City Island. Both schooners lost a lot of their top hamper, the foretopmast, flying jib, cathead and headrail of the Conrad S. being carried away. The exact damage to the Harold B. Cousens is not known, but is thought to be similar to that of the Conrad S. The former schooner started towards Eeaconnet, while the Conrad S. put into this port for repairs. The Conrad S. was bound from Port Greville, N.

MONTREAL, May 8.-R. Renhardt,

CAUTION. Put a strong glass on the label and examine it closely every time. Always look for the name "Gillett's." Like all good articles, which are extensively advertised, Gillett's Lye is frequently and very closely imitated. In some instances the imitators have actually copied directions and other printed matter from our label word for word. Be wise, and refuse to purchase imitation articles for they are never satisfactory. Insist On Getting Gillett's Lye and decline to accept anything that looks to be an imitation or that is represented to be "just as good" or "better," or "the same thing." In our experience of over fifty years in business we have never known of an imitation article that has been a success, for imita-tors are not reliable people. At the best the "just as good" kinds are only trashy imitations, so decline them with thanks

Govt. Now Taking First Move

Survey Party Already Laying Out Townsite of Fort

Churchill

CTTAWA, May 27.—The first move in the direction of establishing a new outlet for western exports to the seaboard via the proposed Hudson Bay route is now being made by the government. A survey party, under the direction of Mr. Marrier, is being sent out by the interior department to lay out the town site of Fort Churchill, the future metropolis of Hudson Bay and the terminus of the proposed Hudson Bay Railway. The future city will be located on the eastern side of the river, opposite the ruins of old Fort Prince Wales, and across the river from the Hudson Bay Company's trading post. Plans and drawings of the harbor are also being prepared under the direction of the department.

The present population of Fort Churchill consists of four half-breed families, a mounted policeman and one settler named William Beech. The latter is the only man whose home is pitched on the future townsite. He settled there with his wife before the area in question was reserved for settlement, and is therefore entitled to claim a free quarter section of 160 acres "of city real estate."
