

Mexico's Victory Over the French at Fort Guadalupe

Tomorrow Anniversary of the Event One of Two Patriotic
Holidays of the Year—
Napoleon III. Took Advantage of American Civil War.

Cinco de Mayo, one of the two great patriotic holidays of the Mexicans, comes tomorrow. It commemorates the victory of the Mexican army under Gen. Zaragoza over the French troops at Fort Guadalupe, near Puebla. The French force had been sent to Mexico by Napoleon III. to pave the way for the establishment of an empire under Archduke Maximilian of Austria. Napoleon had taken advantage of the fact that the United States was engaged in civil war, and was thus unable to enforce the Monroe doctrine, to launch his ambitious project. Mexico was enjoying one of its periodic revolutions. Gen. Marquez having taken the Mexican government had fallen into the hands of France, England, and Spain, owing to its failure to pay interest on bonds, and the Spanish had occupied Vera Cruz. Napoleon III. had been a day of glorious memories for Mexico, and the annual observance of the day rivaled in enthusiasm and brilliance the celebration of Independence Day. The month of September it was on the latter date in 1810 that the movement for freedom from Spain was initiated by a Mexican priest, Don Miguel Hidalgo Costilla, who issued the celebrated declaration of independence called El Grito de Dolores. This manifesto contained the phrase "Death to the tyrants," and has served to keep alive that spirit of hatred for the mother country which recently found expression in the expulsion of Spaniards and the confiscation of their property by the triumphant revolutionaries.

Next Friday will mark the 68th anniversary of the first battle of the first war between the United States and Mexico. Palo Alto was the scene of this clash of arms, which was fought when Gen. Zachary Taylor, with 2,000 men, defeated a Mexican army of 6,000 under Gen. Arista. After a fierce engagement the Mexicans were defeated. The following day the Americans were again victorious at Resaca de la Palma, and the Mexicans were forced to retreat with heavy losses, across the Rio Grande. Taylor had claimed the Rio Grande as his frontier, while the Mexicans insisted that the Rio Grande was the boundary. The contention of the Lone Star State which had been admitted to the Union, was upheld by the Washington government. James Knox Polk was then President, having been elected after a heated campaign in which the admission of Texas was the principal issue of his party. It was not until five days after the battle of Palo Alto that Congress declared war on Mexico. Many leaders in Congress opposed the war as unjust and uncalled for, and one statesman declared that "if I were a Mexican, I would welcome the Americans with bloody hands to hospitable graves. At the outbreak of the war, the Mexicans were in a state of anarchy. The war was a continuous series of victories for the invaders. A year after Taylor began his southward march through Mexico, the French, under Gen. Bazaine, landed at Vera Cruz and marched on to the City of Mexico. The capture of the capital marked the end of the conflict, for which Mexico had to pay the heavy indemnity of 700,000 square miles of territory, stretching from Texas to the Pacific Coast and including all of California.

It was in the month of May, half a century ago, that the Archduke Maximilian, landed at Vera Cruz to begin his brief and disastrous reign over a New World Empire. French troops and soldiers of fortune had cut and slashed a way for them from the coast to the ancient castle of Chapultepec, near the capital, but the greater part of the country was aflame with revolt. The story of the attempt to suppress that rebellion and impose an imperial government on the people makes one of the bloodiest pages in modern history. A fragment of that story was told in the April number of Pearson's Magazine by Capt. Charles A. Doerner, a German who as a lad enlisted in the Foreign Legion to help fight the battles of Maximilian. "I fought under the butcher, Marshal Bazaine," he says, "and became so drunk with blood I shot children and did not care. I reached the point where life, my life or another's was nothing. . . . Bazaine was the evil genius of the empire. . . . a coarse, barbarous man . . . capable of selling his mother to cannibals for a bottle of wine, when he did not need the franc. . . . Toward the end of the days of the empire a revolution broke out in Puebla headed by the archbishop and the leading citizens. . . . Bazaine sent a crushing force against them and the rebel army took to the hills. My command was to guard the hands of the title reign over and when we entered the city it was undefended. . . . Of the recognized leaders the archbishop alone remained. He was found kneeling in front of the altar in the cathedral. If he thought it a sanctuary, however, he was mistaken, as he was hustled out, prodded by bayonets, and made a prisoner of war. The Austrians, being by no means at the hands of the citizen army, returned to the city lusting for revenge, but they could not do so on whom they wanted their wrath, but the boys who shot at them on the streets. They succeeded in capturing twenty-seven of these and brought them to headquarters, charged with insulting the troops. At the prison, where my command was stationed, we did not know whether the boys were rebels or were mere children from nine to perhaps thirteen years of age. But in the morning we received the express command from Marshal Bazaine to line them up against the wall and shoot them as an example. . . . I was detailed in the first firing squad. I saw those children brought before us and drop to the ground fainting with fright. I believe most of them were dead before we fired. . . . It was immediately after this that the Belgian Legion was ordered to Chapultepec to do household duty at the palace. Rehearsed from the slaughter of the children, we found ourselves in the midst of a punctilious court."

But the Mexicans were to have their revenge. Capt. Doerner was appointed as one of the members of the bodyguard which accompanied the Emperor Maximilian to go to execute the last forlorn journey for help, first to Napoleon, then to the Pope, and in the end to Belgium and madness. Doerner, except the last act, when Maximilian stood with his back to the wall, looking at the firing squad squarely in the eyes and said, "Aim well, boys, aim at my heart."

Maximilian was not the first Mexican emperor to go to execution. May, 1822, General Iturbide, who had led the patriot army into the City of Mexico, was elected emperor of the country and in the following July was crowned as Emperor Augustin I. Within a year Gen. Lopez de Santa Ana had proclaimed the republic and raised the standard of revolt, and the Emperor fled. In 1824 Iturbide returned to his native land and attempted to re-establish his authority, but he was captured, sentenced to death and executed. The brief empire of Iturbide extended from Louisiana to the Pacific and southward to Panama, and included Texas, California, New Mexico, Arizona, Utah, Nevada and all of the present republic of Central America, which had formerly comprised the Spanish Kingdom of Guatemala.

Hearing in the Injunction suit of the Eastern Trust Company vs. Aspeto Soaps, Limited et al was to have taken place yesterday morning before Chief Justice McLeod, but was postponed until this morning at eleven o'clock. This is an application for the appointment of a receiver and for an injunction to restrain the defendants from transferring the trade mark "Aspeto." An interim order was made on April 28th by the Chief Justice, and the motion will be made this order absolute. Hamilton & Hamilton are the plaintiffs, and the company to be restrained is Aspeto Soaps, Limited. Only $5,000 of the bond issue have been redeemed, the remaining $47,000 to be satisfied out of the assets, which consist chiefly of the defendant company's interest in the building at the corner of Union and Mill streets.

THE HALF-SPEED MAN AND WOMAN

What it Means When You Feel "All Out of Sorts."

You know what it means to feel "all out of sorts." Most people have felt it at some time or other. Nervous, out of order, irritable, languid, depressed. An aching head, a fagged brain, appetite bad and digestion weak. With some people this condition comes and goes; with others it is chronic; they can't shake it off. It interferes with business, spoils recreation and robs life of all its joys. These men and women are only able to live and work at "half speed."

Half speed people have lost that abundant natural vitality which enables others to go "full-speed-ahead" through life. Their energy and nerve power have evaporated—they cannot work long without breaking down. The trouble is nerve weakness and is caused by poor, watery blood. You can begin to improve your condition today by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They make rich, red blood once more pulsate through your veins, and your nerves thrill with fresh vigor. Here's convincing evidence that new strength and full health can be had through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Mr. Newton Mayhew, North Tyron, P. E. I., says: "I am a farmer and naturally have to work very hard. The result was that I found myself getting run down. My blood became thin and watery, and my muscles flabby. I took doctors' treatment but it did not help me and I grew so weak that I could scarcely work at all. As I found the medical treatment was not helping me I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and in three I found the medicine I needed, as in a short time I was restored to my old health and vigor. I shall always recommend these pills to all sufferers."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers, or will be mailed, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

COMPLETELY BROKEN DOWN

Another Lady Thinks "Fruit-a-tives" Greatest Tonic in the World.

Hagersville, Ont., Aug. 26th, 1913. I can highly recommend "Fruit-a-tives" because they did me an awful lot of good. About four years ago, I commenced taking "Fruit-a-tives" for a general breakdown and they did me a world of good. We bought a good many dollars' worth but they did all that your advertising claims for them, and as I said before, I cannot speak too highly for them. Their action is so pleasant, compared with other medicines, that I am glad to say so and I trust that some other woman may start taking "Fruit-a-tives" for I know the results will be all that you claim."

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Cleveland, Ohio.—"My left side pained me so for several years that I expected to have to undergo an operation, but the first bottle I took of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound relieved me of the pains in my side and I continued its use until I became regular and free from pains. I had asked several doctors if there was anything I could take to help me, but they said I must have an operation. I was very thankful for such a good medicine and will always give it the highest praise."

—Mrs. C. H. GIBBS, 7305 Madison Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

However, P. A.—"I suffered from female trouble and the pains were so bad at times that I could not sit down. The doctor advised a severe operation but my husband got me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I experienced great relief in a short time. Now I feel like a new person and can do a hard day's work and not mind it. What joy and happiness it is to be well once more. I am always ready and willing to speak a good word for the Compound."

—Mrs. ADA WILZ, 196 Stock St., Hanover, Pa.

If there are any complications you do not understand write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

late Thomas McClellan, and niece of Hon. A. R. McClellan. Mrs. McClellan, who was in failing health, went on the advice of her physician to Denver several months ago, hoping the change of climate would prove beneficial. She was accompanied by her brother, John A. McClellan, and her cousin, Mrs. H. Turner. Mrs. George White (nee Minnie Calhoun), who lives in Denver, was an assistant to the deceased. Mr. McClellan left for home yesterday with the remains.

The deceased was a very estimable lady, and enjoyed the friendship and respect of a very large community. The funeral announcement later.

REV. A. K. DUNLOP WILL REMAIN ANOTHER YEAR

Newcastle, May 2.—Rev. A. K. Dunlop, pastor of the Upper Blackville and Underhill Baptist churches, has been invited to remain in charge another year and has consented.

Two very respected ladies of Upper Blackville recently passed away, Mrs. Margaret Peterson, aged seventy-five, leaving four sons and five daughters, and Mrs. John Arneson, aged forty-two, leaving her husband and several children.

Charles Dunphy and Charles Morehouse of Upper Blackville have recently made heavy shipments of potatoes, several hundred barrels each.
