Cording to the annual report of the board of civil service examiners of the loz who were unsuccessful, 75, or eighteen per cent were absolute failures, but the board is pleased to note that even among those who failed a higher degree of proficiency than usual was exhibited, and that a marked improvement in the work of the candidates has been noticeable, showing that a better class of mersons are now that a better class of persons are now raining since last Thursday, a cold rain is already opened all this was tantamount to the loss of their positions. The board may be satisfied that this is what should happen, but if these candidates had pull enough to secure ap pointments in preference to the hundred pointments in preference to the hundreds of St. John young men and women who have already passed the civil service examinations, it is not at all unlikely that they will be unable to find a way of evading the law. The hundreds of deserving ones without a pull will continue to yearn for the chance that does not come.—Mont-

There is considerable trouble ahead of a certain Newfoundlander if he ever comes back to this city. It seems that about a year and a half ago this young man per-suaded his sweetheart, also a pative of Newfoundland, to leave the island and come here with the object of finally gerting married and settling down. After her arrival she went out to service, and being of a hard working and saving tempera ment soon managed to lay up the shug little sum of $50 in one of the local sav ings banks. In the meantime the young man showed his impatience by freque urging marriage, but she always put it off eplying that she had not yet mone enough saved up to purchase what she wanted for her home. On one of these occasions he asked her how much money marked he did not think she had that much and that he could see no further ex cuse for putting off the wedding day. In an unlucky hour she named the day, the 1st of June, and trusting entirely to Pius Michaud, of Edmundston, writes to The Telegraph under date of April 30 that he had read the report from Clair recently that prospects for this season's lumber drives were not good.
