

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

STOCK INTERESTS AND DAIRYING.

CHAPTER I.

VALUE OF THE ANIMAL INDUSTRY OF THE UNITED STATES.

Section 1.—Importance and Value of the Live Stock Interests of the United States.—There is Still Room for More.—Why We Seek Foreign Breeds. Section 2.—Present and Prospective Value of Live Stock.—Average Prices.—Greatest and Lowest.—The Rule of Prices.—The great Stock-Breeding States. Section 3.—Live Stock Interests of the Canadian Provinces. Section 4.—The Importance of Live Stock Farming.—Stock Brings Wealth. Section 5.—Stocking the Farm. 9

CHAPTER II.

WHY STOCKMEN GET RICH

Section 1.—Manufacturing Condensed Products. Section 2.—Ancient Writers on Live Stock.—Mago on Working Oxen. Section 3.—Columella and Cato.—Meat Products Always Demanded. Section 4.—A Model Farmer. 12

CHAPTER III.

THE RELATION OF STOCK TO FARM ECONOMY.

Section 1.—Importance of the Animal Industry. Section 2.—Live Stock vs. Crops. Section 3.—Live Stock and Farm Economy.—Cotton and Southern Agriculture.—How Much Grass? Section 4.—Diversified Stock Breeding Profitable.—What to Raise.—The Outcome. Section 5.—Grass and Stock Feeding. Section 6.—Raising a Herd.—Selecting a Bull.—Horse Stock.—Sheep and Swine. 13

CHAPTER IV.

STOCK BREEDING ON AVERAGE FARMS.

Section 1.—Horse Breeding on Small Farms. Section 2.—Economy of Cattle. Section 3.—Swine on the Farm.—Swine and White Grub. Section 4.—Place of Sheep on the Farm.—Sheep as Weed Destroyers. Section 5.—What Sheep to Keep. 16

CHAPTER V.

STOCK FEEDING AND FERTILITY.

Section 1.—Why Stock Conserves Fertility. Section 2.—How Stock Increases the Fertility of the Soil.—Why Sward Land is Fertile.—Live Stock and Fertility. Section 3.—Diversified Agriculture Possible on Stock Farms. Section 4.—Relation of Crops to Stock Breeding.—Common Sense Rotation. Section 5.—Naked Fallows not Necessary. Section 6.—Fallow Crops and Live Stock.—Crops for Turning Under. 17