

Wit and Wisdom

Lordly castles are besieged or betrayed,
while the wooden latch of poverty secures
the lowly cottage.

It ain't that Latin's so heavy to carry, but you have such a slippery hold of it.

It's better to be cheated than chafed
when you can't help yourself.

What people hope for, they think at last
they have a right to.

The spur won't hurt where the hide is thick.

Swapping facts is better than swapping
horses any time.