Successful Selling

What makes for the success what makes for the success of an auction sale? Is it not, first of all, the stuff for sale, then someone—the auctioneer—to sell it, and—MOST IM-PORTANT—the people who come to hum? come to buy?

if no one knows about your sale—if it has not been adver-tised—it will not amount to anything; no one will come to buy.

Now, no one would think of having a sale without advertis-ing it by word of mouth, by posters, and perhaps by an ad. in the local paper.

But where pure bred live stock is to be sold, sales so ad-vertised are generally disap-pointing. The advertising is not carried far enough. The good men who appreciate good stock, who know its value and who would buy, and come to buy, have not been told about the sale, about the pure bred stook to be offered.

Don't make any such mistake when you have your sale. Use the local mediums and also space in Farm and Dairy. It will bring you the buyers from a distance

Don't forget that Farm and Dairy has a low flat rate for live stock and auction sale advertising. Space in these col-umns will cost you only 98 cents an inch. Write us of your requirements and take advantage of the assistance we sale a success!

of competing in this dairy test. Full par or competing in this day sees classifica-tion and prizes will be found in the prize list which may be secured from D.T. Elderkin, Secretary, Ottawa.

Allow me to say how much I have admired your splendid fight for reciprocity. As a farmer I have believed and still believe that your contention that the reciprocity pack would be a substantial benefit to the Canadian farmer. Is sound.—John Stewart, Durham Co., Ont.
