I also think that we would not be quite so complacent and satisfied with our superiority if we could only see other peoples on their native heath. What I have seen since coming here has developed in me a certain respect for the Belgian and French peasant which I formerly did not have. They are industrious, careful, economic and accomplished tillers of the soil. They with their methods have many lessons for Canadian agriculturists as no doubt we have many lessons for them.

It is a mystery to me how any man, or woman either, can have much to do with cows or cattle or horses and not be made a little better for it. On the farm things do sometimes happen to these friends of the field and the stable. They get sick or they meet with accidents. Before now on our own farm we have had all these things to deal with. By day and by night we have watched with some heifer that was in trouble, or "sat up with" some horse that was suffering. Not always have we been able, even after we have done our best, to bring these patients through to health. We have at such times felt something of the sorrow that gets hold of the heart of the good family doctor when his best efforts have fallen short of his hopes. It hurts the man and the woman of the tender heart to be compelled to part company with a good farm creature of any kind. Just to have one of the sheep die brings a sense of great loss, so that, as we said just now, it is not strange that farmer folks should come to have hearts that are a little bit more tender than are those of people who do not know the effects of this close contact with cows and other farm animals. How could it be otherwise? Suffering ought always to make the heart more sympathetic, even if it be pain in a dumb animal. If it is not so, God pity us! If we grow hard and cold through caring for the creatures which have been placed in our keeping, we need to stop and inquire pretty closely into the state of our hearts. We are in danger of missing a great deal of the good there is in life.

Miscellaneous.

A Trip West.

To whom should I apply for information about a trip West? I would like to go part way by boat. E. G.

Ans.—Apply to H. B. Howard, Passenger Department C. P. R., Toronto, or to Mr. Horning, Passenger Department G. T. R., Toronto.

License Inspector.

1. Has a Liquor License Inspector any right to give a letter written to him about an infraction of the law to a neighbor of the writer to read?

2. Is there anything in his oath as Inspector about keeping matters brought before him secret? E. H.

Ans.—1. No.
2. It is not probable that there is.

Tuberculosis in Fowl.

1. We have lost a large number of our hens lately. When they first become sick they lose their appetite and become very weak. In about two days they die. We opened one and the liver was much enlarged and covered with white spots. What is the trouble with the hens?

2. We have a pig which goes around in a circle until it falls. When it gets to its feet again it appears all right with the exception that it shakes its head and holds one ear down near the ground. What is the trouble? S. Mc. L.

Ans.—1. Symptoms indicate that the birds are dying of tuberculosis. There is no effective remedy. All birds showing symptoms of the disease should be destroyed and the poultry-house and yards thoroughly cleaned and disinfected.

2. It is impossible to diagnose the trouble definitely from the symptoms given. The actions of the pig points to some trouble in the head. Probably there is a gathering and it will be difficult to treat it successfully. If it is a valuable pig it is advisable to call in your local veterinarian.
