OMAHA LIBERAL TO THE LADIES

She Likes Slit Skirts and "September Morn."

THE "BEACH" DANCE

Where Fashion's Votaries Wear One-piece Suits.

Although Omaua women cannot vote, orders recently -sued from the different departments of the city government give them more privileges than they enjoy in any other city in the country.

While Milwaukee, Chicago, St. Louis and other western cities have been terribly aroused over the question of bathing suits for women, out here they are more liberal. "Anything that men can wear, women can wear," is the motto at the Rod and Gun Club bathing beach. The "one-piece" bathing suit is the usual and regular thing and many of the women wear men's bathing

"Spooning in city parks is all right," says Park Commissioner Hummel. "What do people suppose parks are "What do people suppose parks are for, anyway? If they can't spoon in the parks, where can they spoon?" So Omaha's parks have lots of nice, quiet, dark nooks and corners, and while there are park policemen in plenty, these guardians always stay out in the open walks where they can be seen be-fore they can see. "Let 'em spoon" is the order the Park Commission ordered some time ago. Slit skirts: "They can wear them slit high enough to show the knee, but no higher," says Chief of Police Henry W. Dunn. "I have issued orders to the patrolmen to arrest all women whose slit skirts show the top of their hose. I'll have nothing so indecent on the streets of Omaha—and I don't believe Omaha women will wear them cut that high, anyway."

Chief Dunn says he does not care

Chief Dunn says he does not care how ultra-thin are the hose worn with these long slit skirts, but he won't stand for rips and holes in the fabric. "But Omaha women won't stand for them, either," says the chief.

Omaha is a splendid city for the new transparent skirt, too. The sun is bright out here, and when the wearer of the light filmy stuff gets between the man with two eyes and the afternoon oun, the effect is startling. But the police have orders not to interfere. If any Omaha woman wants to walk down Farnum street with a gossamer sort of dress arranged for its transpardown farmin street with a gossamer sort of dress arranged for its transparent effects, she will not be stopped by an officer of the law. It's all right. As for tight skirts—well, they can't get 'em so tight that the Omaha police will interfere.

"Bears?" "Trots?" "Hugs?" "Tange?" "Dunke her Beartydef Conserved.

"Bears?" "Trots?" "Hugs?" "Tan-go?" Omaha has a Board of Censors and these things are not permitted in the public dance halls, but at the clubs they are danced to the heart's content of those who are neither too old nor too fat to indulge. And not a word from the censors, either.

"Let 'em enjoy themselves. It's all right. Not a bit of harm in it," say those who are paid by the city to know what is good and what is bad in dancting.

The new "Beach" dance is also allowed at the bathing beaches, where the guests all wear bathing suits and get out on the sand and dance. And these suits are not those made for the purpose of not going near the water either.

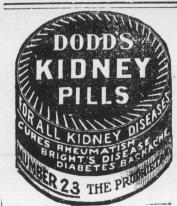

Just the ordinary kind of bathing suit pose of not going near the water either. Just the ordinary kind of bathing suit which a man wears—the one-piece kind that the right, due, it is said, to the universal practice of using the right hand more than the left. Another curiwhich a man wears—the one-piece kind that sticks tight enough when dry and a lot tigher when wet. Many of the women wear them just as the men do. Some cities went into hysterics over "September Morn." So did Omalabut not in the way of prohibiting its public display and sale. Half the department stores in town placed copies in the complex of the rounder their heads become. No one needs reminding of the round, wastened skull of the negro, but the but not in the many placed copies partment stores in town placed copies on hale at 10 cents, and sold out in an hour. Just one single effort was made the picture removed from dishare the picture removed from dishare the picture removed from dishare the picture. The picture removed from dishare the picture. oman wrote to Mayor Dahlman about is what the "Cowboy it, and here Mayor" answered:

me much pleasure, for it gave me definite information as to where I could see a copy without tramping all over town. Really, madam, I cannot agree with you that there is anything had about that picture. I am one who believes in the saying, 'It all depends on the recent Peace Conference took place in London a few months ago, the first the condition of one's stomach whether they see wrong things or not.'
"If I could paint a picture like that I would resign at once and go into the business of painting pictures. There might have been a trifle more draperies about the maid in the picture, but the about the maid in the picture, but the artist didn't see it that way, and he is a better judge of nature than I am."

Some cities "cut out" spooning in automobiles, but the Omaha officials say it's all right, "Be careful where you're going, though," they say to the people in the car.

Blankets Made of Bark.

They have trees for blankets in Ecuador, and they like them, too. They are fond of the firm touch of the bark against them as they sleep. We would probably think they were "zero in covering." and we would doubtless wake up in a much bestiffened condition if we slept under a wood covering.

But the native Indians are most enthusiastic, according to J. Jamieson, a traveler and lecturer, who has recently returned from those parts.

The blankets are made from the bark of a tree which is cut particu-larly thin. It is pounded and moistened and then pounded some more and put out in the sun to dry. And a most desirable and economical blanket it is, lasting anywheres from

UNVEILED TABLET.

On July 16, in the little fishing village of Perce, on the Quebec shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, a memorial was unveiled to Sir William Edmond Logan, Kt., L.D., F. R. S., founder and first director of the Geological Survey of Canada. The day selected for this interesting event was the occasion of the visit of seventy members of the International Geological Congress to the Gaspe coun try and the memorial was erected by the congress to commemorate the important official services of Sir William Loant official services of Sir William Logan which began in Gaspe in 1842. The memorial is a bronze slab bearing a strong and effective medallian portrait of Sir William accompanied by a suitable inscription and is the highly artistic work of Mr. Henri Hebert, of Montreal, It has been attached to the face of a natural rock wall in the heart of Perce village. At the unveiling ceremony suitable addresses were made by Dr. A. E. Barlow, chairman of the Logan Memorial Committee, and by Dr. John M. Clarke. As a further expression of their desire to establish the memory of Logan and his work in Gaspe, and to acknowledge their apreciation of the extraordinary attractions of Perce, the committee contemplates acquiring the land about the present memorial in order to pre-sent it to the town as a public park.—

Berberine Relief.

Everything that goes wrong is attribited by the Berberines, a tribe of the Sudan, to the devil. Ethel S. Stevens, in "My Sudan Year," quotes a story told her by Bishop Gwynne of his "boy's" coming to him one day and announcing, "The devil is in the house." "Oh," said the bishop, "that is very interesting! When did he arrive?"

"He came in with the cook from the souk market yesterday evening."
"Really?" commented the bishop, puz

"Yes, and in the night he came out the cook and passed into me."
"Oh, and what did he do?"

"He went to the cupboard and I plate and the top of the jam jar." A light broke in on the bishop. "Oh, he was after the jam! I suppo

e ate some? "Yes," said the boy, "he did." The idea of devil-possession is not merely an elaborate form of excuse; the native servant really believes in it.

He had no heart for laughter, no time to dream or dance, dream or dance, Adventure had no charms for him, he scoffed at fair Romence,
The joy of Living called to him, but, an,
he wouldn't hear,
What did he care if grass were green and skies were blue and clear?

He knew that profits mounted up, that interest was high.

He knew that profits mounted up, that interest was high,
But gold of dawn or sunset seemed worthless to his eye,
For all the fun and frolic, the sorrow or the pain.
The wonder of the busy world, its struggle, stress and strain,
Were nothing much but noise to him, and so he tolled along
And never knew the face of joy or listened to her song.

For all his greed of heart and hand, his trail of wrong and fraud. What punishment shall come to him whose money was his god?

DUELLING PISTOLS.

Were Costly Beauties in Seven teenth Century.

By the end of the seventeenth century remarks a writer in Baily's Magazine) the pistol had come fairly into vogue as a duellist's weapon in England, and from that time forward pistol duels were frequent-more frequent than those with the sword. Gunmakers devoted their best workmanship to duelling pistols, and at duelling range, say up to twenty paces, these weapons were as near per-fection as skill could make them. The latter-day pistol had a ten-inch barrel, and carried a ball of 48 to the pound, percussion locks of the best workman percussion locks of the best workman-ship, and hair triggers, which, though a little slower than the ordinary "pull," had obvious advantages for their pur-pose. Manton was the foremost maker; he charged fifty guineas a pair for the best, and the "feel" when held in posi-tion was said "to be exquisite"; so ad-mirably balanced that it seemed capable of hitting a grown piece at any distance of hitting a crown piece at any distance of intring a crown piece at any distance up to fifty yards.

Of course, only constant practice would make a good shot, and a very high standard of markmanship was set for the man who aspired to be considered. ered an expert with the pistol. When he could hit twelve wafers at fourteen yards, and do it within six minutes, loading his pistol himself between shots, might consider himself proficient; d it will be borne in mind that the auzzle-loading pistol took several seconds to properly charge. The great thing was to bring up the pistol true on the mark and fire with the least ossible delay.

Proficiency, of course, was not every thing. It was quite as daunting to face a pistol at twelve yards as to face the sword at close quarters, and no proficiency at wafers would atone for ner vousness on the ground. One ardent practioneer schooled himself with a con-trivance of his own invention. He had trivance of his own invention. He had the life-size figure of a man with a bracketed hand in which a pistol could be held at the "present," and by means of a cord from the trigger of the pistol in the duning's grasp to his own belt. he discharged the weapon at himself as he fired his own pistol, by slightly draw-gilt button of an older day.

Great stress was laid on the importance of aiming at a small object. "Mark well one of the gilt buttons on his coat; a person can never fire with accuracy unless he aim at some small object."

Being in position, the men each held his arm well in to the side and raised his pistol to the proper level, keeping the head straight, the eyes turned as much to the right as possible, and the pistol directed steadily towards the small object—that gilt button, if the adversary were so obliging as to wear such. And when the word was given, being cool and collected.

"Pull the trigger carefully and endeavor to avoid moving a muscle in the arm or hand: sufficient force to discharge the pistol. Should the party be hit he must not feel alarmed or imagine himself more seriously wounded than perhaps is the case. I once knew a man grazed rather deeply on the ribs; he fell as though dead and became quite insensible through fright."

Love Fancies.

Why did the mother perform all this nonsense? Because she took her sick baby to a witch doctor, who told her that the infant was bewitched, and the treatment recommended would drive out the witches.
