The Lyceum Course to-night, by which Mr. J. Williams Macy gives a program of humor, song and story.

The Boston Lyric Grand English Opera Company Saturday evening, March 22nd, under the direction of Col. Wm. A. Thompson, is the largest and most complete English Lyric organization in the country, numbering nearly 50 people, artists and chorus. The tour will embrace all the large cities and many towns where English Opera, on a grand scale is seldom, if ever given. Canadians are decidedly a musical people, and it is the intention of the management to give the public thoroughly good, Grand Opera at popular prices, thus encouraging not only young beginners, but satisfying all lovers of this fascinating style of musement. Grand Opera as sung by the Boston Lyric Opera Company, is a novelty to most people and promises a treat to all. In the company, which it is said numbers nearly 50, is what is known as a double set of principals, together with a large and strong singing chorus. The opera will be given in its entirety, the company carrying its own accessories. This is the first season in Canada of the Boston Lyric Opera Company, and its success is said to have been remarkable. Mr. John H. Garrison, the business manager of the organization, was in town last week, and in conversation, said that with his experience of over 20 years in the Grand Opera field he has never seen such enthusiastic audiences for any musical organization as witnessed during the past few weeks in the leading cities of the United States and Canada. HIS GOOD LOOKS

It is so long since Chief of Police Holmes were black clothes that he doesn't feel comfortable in his new uniterm. He is wearing the regulation blue pants and vest and his civilian's coat. "You didn't go to Sarnia yesterday in that attire?" queried Judge Houston this morning in rather a condemnatory tone.

"You can just bet I did," replied the new head of the Chatham force. "Why, you will disgrace the Chat-ham force," responded the Judge with Well, I looked a great deal better than most of those I saw while I was away," was the good-natured response of the big chief.
