

Rooms and their Colors.

There are colors that are refreshing and broadening, others that also light and give a boxed up appearance to the room, others that make a room with a bleak northern exposure or with no exposure at all appear bright and cheerful, some that make it cold.

If a ceiling is to be made higher, leave it light, that it may appear to recede. Deepening the color used on the ceiling would make it lower—an effect desirable if the room is small and the ceiling very high. Various tones of yellow are substituted for sunlight.

The thermometer seems to fall six degrees when you walk into a blue room. Yellow is an advancing color. Therefore a room fitted up in yellow will appear smaller than it is. On the other hand, blue of a certain shade introduced generally into a room will give an idea of space. Red makes no difference in regard to size. Green makes very little.

If a bright, sunny room gets its light from a space overhead upon a russet colored or yellow painted house, or else looks out upon a stretch of green grass, it should be decorated in a color very different from the shades chosen if the light comes from an unbroken expanse of sky.

If olive or red brown be used in conjunction with mahogany furniture, the result is very different from what it would be if blue was used. Blue would develop the tawny orange lurking in the mahogany.

Red brings out in a room whatever hint of green lurks in the composition of the other colors employed. Green needs sunlight to develop the yellow in it and make it seem cheerful.

Bees in the Orchard. Many fruit growers do not thoroughly appreciate the value of bees in an orchard or there would be more orchards with bees in them. Their value in an orchard was demonstrated in a most practical way at the Oregon Experiment Station some years ago. A few peach trees were forced into bloom in November and a colony of bees was placed in the house among the trees began to bloom. For some days, however, a heavy fog prevented the bees from working, although the flowers were open, not a bee was seen upon them. The first bright day the bees set to work at once and remained at work so long as there was anything for them. The result was that not a peach dropped at the stoning season, the time all wretched fruit falls. The crop was so heavy that it had to be thinned out. As a check test one tree was protected so that not a bee could get to it. On this tree all the fruit dropped at the stoning period. Bees and other insects have a duty to perform in the orchard, for which there is no substitute provided. This is the distribution of the pollen from flower to flower and from tree to tree. They insure success in the orchard and every fruit grower should encourage bees in their work by not spraying, or doing anything that would be injurious to the bees while the trees are in full bloom.—Farming.

DRESSING WELL

Is Quite Easy When You Know How To Do It.

There are too many women who are careless about their home gowns. They imagine that they are thrifty and economical because they put on from day to day a faded or dingy dress or skirt. Such women are neither economical nor wise; they are either misers or indifferent to the feelings of their family and friends when they set out.

At an expense of from ten to twenty cents for one or two packages of Diamond Dyes any woman can make her faded gowns or skirts as good as new. This kind of home work is wisdom and true economy.

This spring thousands of wise and thrifty women are using the Diamond Dyes, giving new life to old and cast-off dresses and costumes, fitting them for another season's wear.

When you decide to dye do not risk your materials with poor dyes or imitations of the Diamond Dyes. See that your dealer gives you the "Diamond" that work so easily and successfully.

The Newspaper Your Friend.

The following well found tip is given by an exchange. It says there is but one right way to advertise, and that is to hammer your name, your occupation, your business so constantly, so persistently, so thoroughly into the people's heads that if they walk in their sleep they will constantly turn their steps towards your store.

The newspaper is your friend in spite of your criticisms. It helps to build up the community that supports you. When the day comes that the newspapers are dead the people are on the edge of the grave with nobody to write the epitaph.

Henry Ward Beecher said that "politeness is a religious duty, and should be part of religious training." The law of politeness applies to men and women quite as much as to children; and if courtesy and kindness and sweetness are the natural expression and attitude of the parents, these graces will naturally manifest themselves in the child.

Lady—Do you take instantaneous photographs? Photographer—Yes, madam. I can photograph a humming bird on the wing or a swallow in its flight.

Lady—I want my baby's picture taken. Photographer—Yes, madam. Get it, little fellow ready and I will prepare the chloroform.

"What!" shouted the stern parent, "not marry my daughter? Well, she has not yet with your arm about her hour after hour!"

"Yes, that was to keep her from singing."

The smallest house in the world is a Shetland pony, owned by the Marchess O'Connell in Milan. It is 21 inches high, and when standing looks like a very tiny pony. Its back is only an inch above its knees.

Canada's Prohibition Campaign.

WHITE RIBBONS BOMBARDING THE DOMINION GOVERNMENT—RUMMERS GET A SECRET INTERVIEW—PROVINCIAL CONVENTION CALLED.

Toronto, Canada, (Special Correspondence to The Voice).—The officers and some of the leading members of the Dominion Brewers' Association have succeeded in getting a secret interview behind closed doors with the government at the Parliament buildings at Ottawa. The brewers did their utmost to avoid letting their presence become known to the members of the parliamentary press gallery, but they were not successful. Their request for a private hearing was however, acceded to by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, prime minister. The brewers consisted of Eugene O'Keefe and Robert Davis, Toronto; John Labatt, London; D. J. McCarthy, Prescott; J. Dawes, Montreal, and others. Their mission was to ask the Premier not to submit the question of prohibition in the plebiscite without a rider in respect to direct taxation to make up the revenue. The government is said to have merely promised consideration. In the mean time the government is being bombarded with petitions for a straight submission of the legal issue of prohibition without any "loading of the dice." The W. C. T. U. and women's societies of the various churches are petitioning the government to prohibit the taking of intoxicating liquors into the Klondike instead of continuing the permit system.

A provincial prohibition plebiscite convention has been called by the Dominion Alliance to be held here on July 5 and 6. It is expected that it will be a monster gathering.—Forward.

The question of the prohibition of the alcoholic liquor traffic is in no sense a question of individual abstinence any more than the prohibition of the sale of bad beef is a question of eating it, or the prohibition of the sale of stale milk a question of drinking it. The one implies the protection extended by a State to society as a whole, the other implies the individual action based on a man's judgement.

The theory of the prohibitionist is that it is the duty of the government to make as easy as possible to do right and just as difficult to do wrong; that it is the duty of the State to make the road up to manhood and honor as smooth as possible; to plant along the side of the road the stones of hope, of promise, and of public approbation. Into the road down to licentiousness, and vice, and crime, and infamy, and death, roll the rocks of law, hedge it with the brambles of public opinion, and break the path of condemnation, and then place the citiz-en at the beginning of the two ways, and say to him, "Take your choice."—John B. Finch.

Cambridge, Mass., is unique as a prohibition city. No other city of equal size has ever been carried for "no-license" two years in succession; while in Cambridge that policy has prevailed at eleven successive elections. At first the usual objections were made—the city could not do without the saloon revenue, etc.—but all have been abundantly refuted by actual experience. We hold that the valuation of Cambridge during ten years of license, dropped, in round numbers, $3,000,000; during ten years of no-license it has risen $24,000,000. In the license decade the average gain in population was 1,182; in the no-license period it has been 2,195. In the first ten years 151 houses were built annually; in the second decade the average has been 332. And—please note this point particularly—the city gets annually in taxes on the increased valuation under no license three or four times as much as it would get from license fees. Two years ago 257 Cambridge merchants, in all departments of business, signed a public appeal declaring that no license had benefited the material interests of the city, and expressed a hope for its continuance. The finest feature of the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the city was, says the New York Independent, "the spectacle of eighty-five thousand people keeping holiday and from sunrise to sunset not a drunken man visible anywhere."

We are for prohibition always. I think that bitter denunciation of any co-worker implies a condition of heart that is not sweet toward God. I think it is better to err with too much kindness to the individual than too little, and put in your efforts to bring that one to where you want him or her to be. And this Convention does not speak harsh words to any human being, for it has always been the policy of the W. C. T. U. not to speak with severe epithets of the brewer or distiller or saloon-keeper, because it would not do a particle of good,—an epithet is the cheapest kind of a thing that can be long from human lips.—Frances E. Willard.

As the watchman from the towers of one of the enemy's strongholds sees us: "Activity in the direction of temperance agitation is more pronounced than ever." And while the liquor leaders urge their forces to be up and doing and to "meet argument with better argument," they know full well that the cause of prohibition has nothing to lose but everything to gain by agitation.—Union Signal.

Rheumatism Banished Like Magic. A Marvelous Statement—Relief from One Dose.

Mr. A. W. Sherman, proprietor of the Sherman House, Morrisburg, Ont. is known by thousands of Canadians, hence the following statement from Mr. Sherman will be read with great interest and pleasure. "I have been cured of rheumatism of ten years' standing in three days. One bottle of the Rheumatic Cure was truly wonderful. I have only taken one bottle of the remedy, and now have no sign of rheumatism in my system. I did not move more than six or eight feet in bed, and I was able to get up and walk in a few days."

He was making a hollow pretense as being hungry at breakfast. "Had to stay in the office to balance the books last night, my dear," he remarked. "Ah, yes, brain's not packing, and what kind of a bird may have made it?" "Oh, it was the cook who made it," he was prompted reply.

Antis—You say you had a bad cold Did you ever have a good cold? Johnny—I had one once that kept me home from school.

New Acquaintance (admiringly)—She is a peach, though, isn't she? Rejected Admirer (dejectedly)—Yes, she has a stony heart.

"After all," a married man had the advantage of a battleship. "In what respect, pray?" "When he gets blown up he knows what it is."

Keep Minards Liniment in the house. "There! Do you think it is like me, count?" "Like you! Ah, Meez Mabel, like it not so woid; it is life you."

Is it true that a perfect gentleman never thinks anything he wouldn't say? Of course; there are lots of perfect gentlemen who never think at all.

She—Oh, James, how grand the sea is! How wonderful! I do so like to be out of the room of the ocean. He—So do I, Elizabeth. Please keep quiet.

Minards Liniment is used by Physicians. "Tommy, I have told you again and again not to speak when older persons are talking, but wait until they stop." "I have tried that already, mamma. But they never stop."

"At no time," said the philosopher, "a man so willing to take the burden from the weak shoulders of frail women as when she is harassed with the care of a large and paying property."

Geo Borem—My father made a great point of teaching us to leave the room gracefully. His Yim—Oh, I wish you'd do oow! I should so like to see you.

Mr Skinfitt—Here is a cent for you, my man, and pray tell me how you came to be so miserably poor. "Miserable—Ah, mum, I was like you—too fond of giving large sums of money to the poor."

Minards Liniment the Lumberman's Friend. "Tragedy.—He set holding his head in his hands. "This," said he, "is the miserable end." That is so, especially, the head end was the miserable end. And there were no bromides in the house.

Newly Appointed Father—My dear, I've decided to buy a phonograph. "Ditto Mother—What for, Alfred?" "I think it would be nice to show the twins, when they grow up, that they owe us an apology."

Lady enters barber shop with a Skye terrier. "Mr. Barber, can you cut my doggie's hair?" "Yes, I can't, or rather, I won't." "Why not?" "You seem to hold yourself pretty high for one in your position." "Perhaps I do; but I'm no Skye scrapper."

Ask for Minards Liniment and take no other. "These poor prisoners ought to have glasses to drink from instead of tin cups," said the tender hearted visitor. "If they had glasses," the warden explained, "they might throw them, and people who live in stone houses should not throw glasses."

"Why are you leaving here," asked the prospective settler, "if the land is so productive?" "I'll be home with you stranger; I'm glittin' 'long in years an' the plain truth is that the crops here is so big that I can't har'ly 'em any more."

An exchange tells of a clergyman who was catechizing a Sunday School, and after the tender hearted visitor, the pastor of a church in his shepherd, while the members are the sheep, he asked: "What does the shepherd do for the sheep?" To the amusement of those present a small boy in the front row piped out, "Shear them!"

DEAR SIR.—This is to certify that I have been troubled with a lame back for fifteen years.

I have used three bottles of your MINARD'S LINIMENT and am completely cured.

It gives me great pleasure to recommend it and you are at liberty to use it in any way to further the use of your valuable medicine.

The cuckoo is a likely to steal it next as to make it, but this fact does not take from the point of the following pin: A young Englishman being asked at dinner whether he would have some bird's nest pudding, said, turning to his hostess, "Ah, yes, bird's nest pudding, and what kind of a bird may have made it?" "Oh, it was the cook who made it," he was prompted reply.
