JOHN ORR GUILTY.

He is Convicted of Assaulting and Robbing John Catlin in May, 1894.

John Catlin in May, 1894.

There was only one case on the docket at the Police Court this morning. It was the adjourned case of John Orr, who was charged with assaulting and robbing John Catlin, a watchman on the Pearl street sewer, on May 22nd, 1894.

Mary Gillies swore she knew the prisoner. She heard Orr ask the complainant for some money on the night of the 22nd, about 12 o'clock. Not getting money, Orr struck Catlin, knocked him down and jumped on him. She ran to the wire works to telephone for the police. Orr went to her house afterwards, she swore, and warned her not to say anything about the affair. Orr was accompanied by a man named Morin and a stranger.

Mr. Stuart Livingston cross-examined the woman very severely.

Mr. Strart Livingston cross-examined the woman very severely.

The prisoner's father and mother swore that the defendant was at home and in bed at 12 o'clock on the night of the robbery.

The counsel for the defence asked the court not to accept Mrs. Gillies' testimony, as she was a loose character and had spite against the prisoner.

The Magistrate pronounced Orr guitty and remanded him for sentence until to-morrow.

Orr has been charged with various offences at the Police Court, but there is only one conviction against him. He left the city two days after the offence was committed and did not return to the city until about a week ago.

B. tunnel are not yet under way. This morning Contractor Onderdonk started a gang of men on the work of tearing up the roadway between Charles and Park streets on Hunter, but after they had worked about two hours they were ordered back to the Locke street end of the work. In explanation of this Mr. Onderdonk said that he had only learned to-day that an order-in-Council from Ottawa was necessary before he could proceed with the work of tearing up the street. He thought this order would be obtained from the Railway Committee on Saturday.

Two test holes were sunk to-day on the Bay street ridge. The soil for about fifteen feet down was light and sandy. As soon as possible the contractor will have the sidewalks on both sides of Hunter street moved back about eight feet. He does not think it will be possible to save a single shade tree on the street between Caroline and Tark. The tunnel or cutting will be 36 feet wide at the bottom, with vertical sides, and, as Mr. Young said, the roots of the trees would have to be cut away.

A construction track will be laid on Hunter street, from Queen to Fark, to bring in the steam shovels.

NO PAROCHIAL SCHOOLS.

(Continued from 5th Page.) For an hour this morning the Church of England Synod was kept busy balloting for delegates to the Provincial Synod, standing committee and General Synod. It was 11 o'clock when the school question was again taken up.

Mr. W. F. Burton was the first remarks were Mr. W. F. Surton was the first speaker, and his remarks were strongly in favor of the report. Rev. P. L. Spencer followed. He said he had been in favor of the minority re-port until he was convinced that the proposed system could not be applied to rural schools. He desired to see better religious training in the schools.

chools. Rural Dean Gribble and Canon Wor-schools.

Rural Dean Gribble and Canon Worrell spoke in favor of the minority report. The latter said that he wanted to see not only religious training, but distinct Church of England education, in the schools.

Rural Dean Fessenden, seconder of the minority report, followed. He said that the minority did not say that parochial schools were possible, but the Church should have an ideal before it and work towards it.

Rev. Canon Bland pointed out that both reports recommended the appointment of a communitiee, with power to negotiate with other religious bodies, with a view to increasing the efficiency of religious instruction in the Public Schools. All the speeches had been in the same direction, he said. In the cities he thought there would be no great difficulty or expense in moving the children of one denomination to one school; those of another denomination to another school, and so on, and put each school under the control of such denomination. In the country such a thing could not be done, except at a greatly increased expense, and at a lowering of the standard of education. The Government, he said, was dreadfully particular about the conscientious scruples of infidels and agnostics, and it was therefore the Church's duty to go to the Government and insist that particular about the conscientious scruples of infidels and agnostics, and it was therefore the Church's duty to go to the Government and insist that the legislators were as careful of the conscientious principles of Christians of all denominations. He suggested that the two reports be referred back to committee, with instructions to bring in a united report.

Mr. J. J. Mason, said it was quite easy-to see that Canon Bland had never been a member of a Board of Education, or he would never have suggested that schools could be allotted for certain denominations. H. for instance, the fine Wentworth Street School were allotted to the Church of England, the children in the southwest would never be able to get to and from it.

Canon Bland—That was not my suggestion—it was a reductio ad absurdim.

Continuing Mr. Mason said that par-surdum.

Continuing Mr. Mason said that parochial schools would not only be bad for the people, but would be very bad for the Church of England. If there were parochial schools there would have to be parochial boards, and then clergymen would want to be on them, and his experience was that as soon as clergymen were on a school board trouble commenced. Laughter and appliance.) Then there that as soon as clergymen were on a school board trouble commenced. (Laughter and applause.) Then there would be trouble about teachers and the question would not be "Is a man or woman a first-class teacher?" but what school of thought does he or she belong to. The Church of England schools would then present the pitable sight of High Church wersus Low Church, and the Church would have to go to Government and confess that it was teaching two distinct religions in the parochial schools. The great evil was done when Roman Catholic Separate Schools were provided for in the constitution, but surely the establishment of additional Separate Schools were provided for in the constitution, but surely the establishment of additional Separate Schools for all other denominations would only magnify the evil. (Applause).

The discussion was adjourned at 1.15. 1.15

BROKE ON THE ASPHALT.

BROKE ON THE ASPHALT.

A large patch of asphalt at the corner of James and Main streets was spoiled last night by the accidental dropping of a large bottle of acid on it. The bottle or jar was in the hands of a druggist, who stood on the platform of a south-bound car. At the point mentioned a man with a grip tried to get out, and in doing so knocked the bottle out of the young man's hands. The bottle broke into a thousand pieces, and the contents ran over a patch about three yards square. The acid turned the place quite soft and some new asphalt will have to be laid.

IN THE FAR NORTH. Whitney's Tough Experiences on

Casper Whitney's Tough Experiences on His Recent Trip.

Casper Whitney, Harper's special correspondent, was here last night on his way home from the far north. He says that his friends might have been saved considerable anxiety if in his plans he had allowed a little more time for his trip. In April, when due at Winnipeg, he was away up in the barren lands. His party ran out of provisions three days before reaching a settlement on the return trip, and subsisted on the intestines of moose, the flesh being given to the dogs, which had to feed at any cost. When he reached civilization two weeks ago he weighed only 123 pounds, and now his weight is 156. Up to two weeks ago his face was quite black from the effects of frost bites. As he puts it himself, the only part of him that was not frozen at one time of another were his teeth.

Mr. A. H. H. Heming, of this city, who accompanied Mr. Whitney on a part of his trip, went as Iar as the Falls with him this morning. His Recent Trip.

A BEVERAGE FOR WHEELMEN.

A BEVERAGE FOR WHEELMEN.

Next to being lost at sea there is nothing that brings on the pangs of thirst quicker than bicycle riding.

The hot sun and the constant inhalation of dust quickly parches the throat and makes the blker long for the next stop for refreshments. The wise rider avoids ice water, well knowing its danger. Alcoholic beverages are likewise tabooed because of their heating propensities, and there is little satisfaction in wishywashy stuff sold under the broad classification of "soft drinks," A wellknown wheelman, in speaking of this,
said:

What to drink is no easy problem What to drink is no easy problem to a man on a long, hot run. The only drink I know really fit for a bicycle rider is Hires' Rootbeer, carbonated. There are but few places now at which it cannot be had, and now at which it cannot be had, and I tell you it braces one right up, seems to go right down to the bottom of your pedal workers. It is cooling and refreshing, quickly lowering your temperature and fully satisfying your thirst. I tell you there's nothing like it, and I've sworn o'f all other drinks when on the road." Hires' Rootbeer, carbonated, is made from the famous Hires' Rootbeer extract by the same formula, without adulteration of any kind. Besides being delicious it possesses many medicinal qualities, making it as popular with wheelmen and pedestrians as the good home-made Hires' Rootbeer is with the folks at home.
