

The Charlotteville Herald.

NEW SERIES.

CHARLOTTETOWN, PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND, WEDNESDAY JANUARY 1 1890.

VOL. XIX. NO. 10

The Charlotteville Herald
—PUBLISHED—
Every Wednesday
—BY—
The Herald Printing Company,
FROM THEIR OFFICE,
CONNOLLY'S BUILDING,
Queen Street, Charlotteville,
P. E. I.

Subscription: One Year, in Advance, $1.00
ADVERTISING AT MODERATE RATES.
Contracts made for Monthly, Quarterly, Half-yearly, or Yearly Advertisements, on application.
Remittances may be made by Draft, P. O. Order, or Registered Letter.

All Correspondence should be addressed to the Herald Printing Company, or to

JAMES McISAAC,
Editor and Manager.

Calendar for January, 1890.

MOON'S PHASES.
Full Moon, 6th day, 7h. 34m. a. m., W.
Third Qtr., 14th day, 9h. 20m. a. m., W.
New Moon, 22nd day, 11h. 36m. p. m., W.
First Qtr., 29th day, 4h. 3m. p. m., R. K.

Day of Week.	Sun.	Mon.	Tue.	Wed.	Thurs.	High Water.	Low Water.
1	4:14	5:11	6:08	7:05	8:02	11:30	10:30
2	4:28	5:25	6:22	7:19	8:16	11:30	10:30
3	4:42	5:39	6:36	7:33	8:30	11:30	10:30
4	4:56	5:53	6:50	7:47	8:44	11:30	10:30
5	5:10	6:07	7:04	8:01	8:58	11:30	10:30
6	5:24	6:21	7:18	8:15	9:12	11:30	10:30
7	5:38	6:35	7:32	8:29	9:26	11:30	10:30
8	5:52	6:49	7:46	8:43	9:40	11:30	10:30
9	6:06	7:03	8:00	9:07	10:04	11:30	10:30
10	6:20	7:17	8:14	9:21	10:18	11:30	10:30
11	6:34	7:31	8:28	9:35	10:32	11:30	10:30
12	6:48	7:45	8:42	9:49	10:46	11:30	10:30
13	7:02	7:59	8:56	10:03	11:00	11:30	10:30
14	7:16	8:13	9:10	10:17	11:14	11:30	10:30
15	7:30	8:27	9:24	10:31	11:28	11:30	10:30
16	7:44	8:41	9:38	10:45	11:42	11:30	10:30
17	7:58	8:55	9:52	10:59	11:56	11:30	10:30
18	8:12	9:09	10:06	11:13	12:10	11:30	10:30
19	8:26	9:23	10:20	11:27	12:24	11:30	10:30
20	8:40	9:37	10:34	11:41	12:38	11:30	10:30
21	8:54	9:51	10:48	11:55	12:52	11:30	10:30
22	9:08	10:05	11:02	12:09	1:09	11:30	10:30
23	9:22	10:19	11:16	12:23	1:23	11:30	10:30
24	9:36	10:33	11:30	12:37	1:37	11:30	10:30
25	9:50	10:47	11:44	12:51	1:51	11:30	10:30
26	10:04	11:01	11:58	1:05	2:05	11:30	10:30
27	10:18	11:15	12:12	1:19	2:19	11:30	10:30
28	10:32	11:29	12:26	1:33	2:33	11:30	10:30
29	10:46	11:43	12:40	1:47	2:47	11:30	10:30
30	11:00	11:57	12:54	2:01	3:01	11:30	10:30
31	11:14	12:11	1:08	2:15	3:15	11:30	10:30

North British and Mercantile
FIRE AND LIFE
INSURANCE COMPANY
—OF—
EDINBURGH AND LONDON.
ESTABLISHED 1800.
Total Assets, 1888, - $30,377,900.70

FRED. W. HINDMAN, Agent.
Corner Queen and Water Streets, 117
Charlottetown, Jan. 10, 1889.

IMPERIAL
CREAM TARTAR
BAKING POWDER
PUREST, STONGEST, BEST.
ALUM, ANTIMONY LIME, PHOSPHATE, &c.
E. W. GILLET, CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. I.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE
FOR SPAVIN, BLOOD, &c.
KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE
FOR SPAVIN, BLOOD, &c.
KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE
FOR SPAVIN, BLOOD, &c.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE
FOR SPAVIN, BLOOD, &c.
KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE
FOR SPAVIN, BLOOD, &c.
KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE
FOR SPAVIN, BLOOD, &c.

GENERAL AGENCY,
Donald McKenzie,
Keat Street, Charlotteville,
Insures both men and women on all plans of Life & Accident Insurance
In the Manufacturers.
Res. Hon. Sir John A. McDonald, President.
Also dealer in the Celebrated Family Machinery, made by A. Harris, B. Co., J. O. Wimer, Son & Co., Bradford, Ont., and B. Bell & Son, of St. George, Ont.
Charlottetown, Oct. 9, 1887.—Gm

STRONG TESTIMONY.
Mrs. John Ross.
For the past eleven years I have been a great sufferer with a troublesome sore on my ankle, for which I tried several remedies that did me little or no good, until I applied your Magic Healer Balm, which I began using about three months ago, and am now perfectly healed. I can cheerfully recommend it to any one similarly afflicted.
Mrs. DANIEL CORRIE,
Georgetown, Oct. 9, 1889.

For any skin injury, test the MAGIC HEALER, ask for it and take no other until its merits are fairly proven. Sold at 25 cents per box, and supplied wholesale by
JOHN ROSS & CO
(Formerly of Ross' Weekly).
P. O. Box 457, Charlottetown.
City, Nov. 17, 1889.

THE LADIES!
A New and Pleasant Form of Medicine for Suffering from Headache, Neuralgia, &c.
A Great London Physician says that he notes a new and distinct form of nervous disorder, and is daily making the most remarkable cure. Mrs. W. E. Corrie, of St. Hyacinthe, N. B., writes: "I have been afflicted with nervous headache, loss of appetite, low spirits, &c. After using your Compound, her headache disappeared, appetite was good, and her spirits revived."
Annie Gourley, of River Beaulieu, P. E. I., found the Compound a certain cure for weakness, and now looks as well as she did twenty-two years ago.
Many a Canadian lady has the same trouble. Oh, our Pain-Expeller Compound can be purchased at any druggist's for one dollar a bottle. If he should not have it on hand, order direct from WELLS, RICHARDSON & CO., MONTREAL.

Notes of hand forms in good style printed at the Herald Office.

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS
WILL CURE OR RELIEVE
BILIOUSNESS, DIZZINESS, DRIPSY, FLUENTING, RHEUMATISM, ACIDITY OF THE STOMACH, DRYNESS OF THE SKIN, &c.
W. MILBURN & CO., CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. I.

William's
AWARDED 500 MEDALS,
PRINCIPALLY GOLD.
Over 12,000 in Canada.
1000 SOLD IN NOVA SCOTIA IN TWO YEARS.
J. F. WILLIS & CO.,
McEwen's Building, Queen St., Charlottetown, P. E. I.

THE CHARLOTTETOWN HERALD is acknowledged to be the Best Paper published in the Province.
August 18, 1889.—77.

Watches. Watches.
SOLID GOLD Ladies' and Gents' Open or Hunting Case Gold filled do., do., warranted to stand and wear better than a cheap gold case.
Silver and Silveroid, in key or stem-wind, with works thoroughly tested and warranted, from $5.00 up to $40.00. Cheaper can be supplied, but not warranted as reliable time-keepers.
The watches we keep in stock have received the highest award for general excellence and time-keeping qualities. Good value in every department.
G. H. TAYLOR.
Aug. 21, 1889. North Side Queen Square.

Wholesale Trade.
DEALERS who will send us specifications of their wants for Fall Trade will find our Jobbing Prices lower than any other Hardware Supply House in Canada. Order at once for importation.
AXES, Cross Cut Saws, Forks and Shovels, Nails, Horse Nails, Horse Shoes, Iron, Chain, Bolts, Traces &c. AND ALL SHELF HARDWARE.
NORTON & FENNEL,
CHARLOTTETOWN.
August 28, 1889.

$4.75
Will buy a GOOD OVERCOAT at JAMES PATON & CO'S.
REFRERS. REEFERS cheap at JAMES PATON & CO'S.
DRESS GOODS. DRESS GOODS. See JAMES PATON & CO'S.
JACKETS & DOLMANS. Try JAMES PATON & CO'S.
FUR CAPS and ROBES in great variety at JAMES PATON & CO'S.
MILLINERY. A big Stock to select from at JAMES PATON & CO'S.
For all kinds of DRY GOODS call and see JAMES PATON & CO'S.
JAMES PATON & CO.

London House
HARRIS & STEWART.
Our Fall Stock
—OF—
READYMADE CLOTHING
Is the Largest we have ever shown, and at the LOWEST PRICES.
NAPOLITH OVERCOATS, REEFING JACKETS, PILOT OVERCOATS, REEFING JACKETS, WOBBED OVERCOATS, BOYS SUITS, MEN'S SUITS, MEN'S SUITS, BOYS REEFERS, BOYS OVERCOATS.

HARRIS & STEWART.
Charlottetown, October 23, 1889.

Important Notice!
Owing to the almost entire loss of our goods by fire, we have been obliged to purchase a new stock, which cannot be excelled for good value, and which we will offer very low for CASH as we need the money. We have a GENERAL LINE of
HARDWARE, GROCERIES, BOOTS & SHOES, Dry Goods,
Consisting in part of Dress Goods, in great variety of material, new and Fashionable Shades; Under Cloths, Astrachan, Gauze Cloth, Millinery, Felt Hats, and Trimmings, &c.
Wool Goods, in Squares, Cloths, Scarfs, Hoods, &c., &c.
Hosiery, in wool, from 20c to a fine Cashmere, 75c.
Ladies' Under Vests, Gloves, Shawls.
Gents' and Boys' Linens and Top-Shirts, splendid value, all wool, for 50c to $1.50.
In BOOTS and SHOES we have a most serviceable line, in Men's, Boys', Children's, Ladies' and Misses'—whole stock—Buff, Oil Goat, Grain, &c.
Owing to our severe loss we have to request payment in full of our Accounts and Bills. Thanking those who have remembered us already and are doing so now, we are, yours respectfully,
REUBEN, TUPLIN & CO.,
November 20, 1889. LONDON HOUSE, KENNINGTON.

WESTWARD.
—(From the Forwards Register).
Sir,—I hinted in my last that I would in this say something of the scenery along the C.P.R., through the Rockies and Selkirk. The task is not so easy as many might suppose, for much of that scenery is beyond adequate description.
I have seen some of the lofty hills of Central and South America, the Rockies and Sierra Nevada along the Union Pacific. I have seen, also, some of the mountain ranges of Australia, and the loftiest of the Alps, but none of these can excite more enthusiasm in the mind of the observant traveler than our Canadian Pacific mountain scenery. I think probably one reason why the traveler is more deeply impressed with the majesty of these towering peaks is because the railway in many places carries you so close to the base. The train runs so near to Mount Stephen on one side of it that the hills seem to hang right over you, 5,000 feet above your head.
It is not merely sublime but terrific. The mountain bears upon its shoulder a shining glacier nearly 1,000 feet thick. This, however, is insignificant compared with the Great Glacier of the Selkirk, a few miles farther on. It is said that this immense glacier, this vast plateau of sparkling ice, is as large as all those of Switzerland put together. If one is saved in the presence of lofty mountains peaks towering thousands of feet above one's head, one is equally impressed by looking down. In some places the silvike threads of a mountain stream stretch away for miles a thousand feet below your feet in other places you hear, even before your eyes can see, the leaping river, as it jumps like the wild goat from ledges above to ledges below, down—flashing madly in its course for that space which can only be found in the quiet valley at the foot of the lofty hill from whose summit it springs.
These mad streams and cataracts, such as the Kicking Horse river and the Upper Fraser, add greatly to the excitement attending a railway ride through the Canadian mountains. How often I thought of Southey's "Ladons":
Riddling and frisking
Turning and twisting
And leaping itself at
Disparaging and defying
The ears with its sound,
Smiling and fighting,
A sight to delight in,
Collecting, disjecting
With endless rebound,
Smoking and frothing,
Its tumult and wrath in,
It hastens along
Confounding and strong,
Raging and raging
As if a war raging
Its caverns and rocks upon
I am drawing pretty heavily upon my memory in quoting from this ingenious production of the poet laureate, as it were, but I think that you and I may not have quoted quite correctly.
At Banff there is one of these wild mountain streams falling not less than 1,500 feet, for the greater part, almost perpendicular down a steep, rocky face from the view of the hill, disappearing entirely from the eye. I could not find out where the stream came again to the surface. Perhaps there is no one could be certain, as many of these streams have contracted majestic hills close about us on every side. At Banff there is another of these rushing, roaring cataracts, leaping not less than 2,000 feet or more.
The railway company has taken advantage of this stream, and conveying it down through pipes has contrived beautiful fountains directly in front of the Swiss Chateau hotel, in a dining saloon for passing trains and a pleasant home for tourists who desire to remain in the city. Each of these fountains has a different character, and is admirably described, and which can hardly be appreciated even when seen.
Imagine a tiny ant at the bottom of an immense peacock or hawk, endeavoring to descend to the earth.
Standing on a narrow level which nature seems to have specially provided as a resting place for the traveler and a point of observation as well, we try to measure the majestic hills close about us on every side. Though we are standing over 4,000 feet above the level of the sea, Mount Sir Donald towers more than a mile and a half above us, with over a thousand feet of its summit almost constantly veiled from sight about with thick clouds.
To the right of Sir Donald is the Great Glacier, which in its movement forward is prevented from rushing into the plain below, carrying down and destroying the forest, by the strong mountain shoulders which stand as guards on either hand. To the left of Donald are three lofty peaks, very nearly equal in height to their brother, Mount Peap, Choope, Old Grizzly, Coonje, Middlebrook, with other peaks of smaller stature, with the Glacier and Sir Donald forming the circle of mighty giants in whose midst we stand. A sight like this cannot be seen often than once in a life-time.

The traveler stands on the bottom of a basin whose sides all round about him are from one mile to one and a half miles in height.
He cannot see his way out. He must leave that entirely to those ingenious engineers who have here displayed the most extraordinary skill in bringing the road by tortuous courses down into this most wonderful valley and carrying it on from there and across the mountains which rise about it. He is here in a most beautiful and interesting scene, and it is a pity that the scenery about Banff, is equal in beauty, if not quite so majestic, to any along the route.
Crossed Mountain, nearly 10,000 feet high, is on one side, the most beautiful of the Alps. It gets its name from the rocks to which it is covered in the first part of the high. The height is over 10,000 feet high.
Then Selkirk Mountain, Queen Mount and Mount Macdonald, though smaller, together with the prominent peak of the Selkirk and the rugged range with the peaks of the Selkirk, make up the group of hills at Banff.
The loftiness of the scenery is greatly enhanced, however, by the Bow river and the falls near the C. P. R. hotel; and also the little distance down the valley, by the beautiful lake, with water clear as crystal, with trout of enormous size, and with mountains above some places thousands of feet high.
We were greatly amused with the fantastic shapes of the mountains tops from Banff eastward, near Anstruther and Camrose, as they appeared in the bright moonlight. No difficult was experienced in making out in the profile every now and then a veritable "old man of the mountain."
One high giant hat sat upon his head. There were the forehead, nose, lips, chin, and a slight falling off to his breast and a level stretching away for nearly two miles, till a peak rises up abruptly, nicely representing his toes, "A chieftain to the highlands bounds."
He is a petrifaction of the age when glacial waters were plentiful and gigantic upheavals disturbed the surface of our earth to a degree unknown to the present day.
All shapes, all heights, all depths: majestic, sublime, graceful, beauty as so blended and contemplated in Canadian mountain scenery that the tourist never weary of it.
D. V. LUGAN.
Winnipeg, December 12, 1889.

Christmas Times.
THOUGHTS WHICH EACH PASSING YEAR WILL ALWAYS RECALL
We are here again, "Old Father Time" says to you, "You are older, but you are making no older. What if we do? It is the reply which seems, at first, harsh to us, but we are not given time to think over it. Our good angel, whom God has appointed to be, is guarding our thoughts. He, sweetest friend, though unseen, of our life, is placing before us pictures which so charm our every faculty that we forget the rush of years which are whitening our heads.
We are forgetting everything which may cause a shadow of sorrow's disappointment to write, for even a moment, the lines of our face. The smile of joy with which youth brightened our first days of life is with us, and the heart and face of our father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many of whom are now no more.
Somehow, though we sigh when we think of those of our own, we are not lonely. Thoughts so sweetly consoling come into our hearts concerning them. Parents, they taught us first of the infant Jesus, and now, as we grow up, we are their father and mother, sister and brother, and others—many, so many