Back from the grave. By sword or flood, by fire or wave, When glares Death's eye, All under the sun, who have great deeds done, Will dare to die.

Will the monarch quit his lofty throne, That mighty thing, And shrink not to wrestle with Death alone, A king with king? As well as he can,

Less King than Man. Will the beggar in his rags dare death? Yes-if his mind Be free from fraud when he weeping saith-

"O pray be kind-I have left many darling ones behind Dying for bread?" With a Christian's faith, what is there in Death That HE should dread?

Will the gaudy-plumed warrior fear to die, Who hand in hand Hath walked with Death, and heard his sharp cry On sea and land? Where Death is so red, he may fear not his brand

But after the fight, It is well for his errors if Death have no terror When Death is white, Will the poet or prophet-for both are on

Like others dare ? Ay more ! for his love, like the light of the sun Shines everywhere. And he who gives love treads the first white stair

Towards the sky,
And he may write, in his upward flight, " I dare to die!"

LINES GIVEN TO A FRIEND A DAY OR TWO BEFORE THE DECEASE OF THE WRITER.—OCTOBER, 1835. BY WILLIAM MOTHERWELL.

When I beneath the cold red earth am sleeping Life's fever o'er, Will there for me be any bright eye weeping That I'm no more? Will there be any heart still memory keeping Of heretofore ?

When the great winds through leafless forest rushing, Sad music make; When the swollen streams, o'er crag and gully gushing, Like full hearts break, Will there then one whose heart despair is crush-Mourn for my sake?

When the bright sun upon that spot is shining With purest ray, And the small flowers their buds and ble twining, Burst through that clay :

Will there be one still on that spot repining Lost hopes all day ? When no star twinkles with its eye of glory, On that low mound ;

And wintry storms have with their ruins hoary Its loneness crowned: Will there be then one versed in Pacing it round?

It may be so, -but this is selfish sorrow To ask such meed .-A weakness and wickedness to borrow From hearts that bleed, The wailings of to-day, for what to-morrow

Lay me then gently in my narrow dwelling Thou gentle heart; And though thy bosom should with grief be Let no tear start ;

It were in vain,-for Time hath long been knelling-Sad one, depart?

Esquires .—Real Esquires are of 7 sorts.

1. Esquires of the King's body, whose number is limited to four.

2. The eldest sons of knights and their eldest sons born during their lifetime. It would seem that in the days of ancient warfare, the knight often took his eldest son to the wars for the purpose of giving him a practical military education, employing him meanwhile to be his esquire. 3. The eldest sons of the younger sons of Peers of the realm. 4. Such as the King invests with the collar of SS. including the kings of arms, fieralds, &c. The dignity of esquires was conferred by Henry IV., and his successors, by the investiture of the collar and the gift of a pair of silver spurs. Gower the poet, was such an esquire by creation. 5. Esquires to the knights of the B.th., for life, and their eldest sons. 6. Sheriffs for counties, for life, Coroners and Justices of the Peace, and Gentlemen of the Royal Household, while they continue in their offices. 7.
Barristers-at-law, Doctors of Divinity,
Laws, and Medicine, Mayors of towns, and others of sentural dignity, but not actual esquires. Supposing this enumera-tion to comprise all who are entitled to esquireship, it will be evident that thousands of persons styled esquires are not so in reality. It is a prevailing error that per-sons possessed of £300 a year in land are cequires, but an estate of £50,000 would not confer the dignity. Nothing but one or the other of the conditions above mentioned is sufficient.

Curiosities of Heraldry.

'You should never let the young men kiss you,' said a venerable uncle to his pretty nices. 'I know it, uncle,' returned she, penitently, 'and yet I try to cultivate a spirit of forgiveness, sceing that when one has been kiesed there is no undoing it.'

· Is'nt your kat sleepy ?' inquired a little urchin of a gantleman with a shocking bad one on, 'No-why?' inquired the gentleman. 'Why, because I think it is a long time since it has had a nap,' was the Cont..." I say, Mr. Impudence, what are you doing with your hand in my pocket?" "I axes your pardon, master, but in this here cold sether, you careely knows vere you puts wons 'and."

Cobbet says-" Women, so amiable themselves, are never so amiable as when they are useful; and, as for beauty, though men may fail in love with girls at play, there is nothing to make them stand to their love like seeing them at work."

PLEASANT ADDRESS.—There is a school-misfress in New South Wales whose letters are thus addressed—"Miss Love, Harmonyouse, Concord, near Kissing Point. I am going to draw this beau into a knot, as the lady said when standing at the bymenial alter.

Blessed are the piece-makers, as the girl said when she let the great dish fall and broke it to pieces.
