LONDON, March 25. The following official statement was issued: An engagement occurred on February 25th in the North Sea between the armed German raider Grief, disguised as a Norwegian merchant vessel, and the British armed merchant cruiser Alcantara. Capt. T. R. Worde; it resulted in the loss of both vessels, the German raider being sunk by gun fire and the Alcantara apparently by a torpedo. Five German officers and 115 men were picked up and taken prisoners. The total complement believed to have been over 300. The British losses amounted to five officers and 10 men. It should be noted that during the whole engagement the enemy had over 1000 men on board. This news is published as it is made clear by receipt of a German wireless message that the enemy has learned that the Alcantara had been destroyed before she succeeded in passing our line of patrol.

en out again by our bombers. Today we bombarded enemy trenches near Bois Blancs and badly damaged about one hundred yards of the parapet. The reply was feeble. Enemy artillery was active to-day near Neuve Chapelle, Ypres and Willebeke. Our artillery retaliated.

NAVAL BATTLE REPORTED.

LONDON, March 26. Despatches from Esbjerg, Denmark to Berlin, says Reuter's Copenhagen correspondent report a great naval battle between German and British fleets some three miles off the Grindby lightship, at midday to-day. The despatch adds that the German fleet, in Schleswig-Holstein, has been bombarded by five aeroplanes.

THE SUSSEX PASSENGERS.

LONDON, March 25. Last night's despatches said there were 386 passengers on the Sussex and a crew of about 50, indicating that 78 or more persons have not been accounted for. According to official information from the Admiralty this morning, between 90 and 100 passengers have been landed at Dover and about 250 passengers and members of the crew in France.

SUSSEX TORPEDOED.

PARIS, March 26. There is no doubt that the Channel steamer was torpedoed without warning, says an official statement issued here to-night, based on affidavits made by American survivors.

AMERICANS ON THE SUSSEX.

WASHINGTON, March 26. The explosion which damaged the Channel steamer Sussex, upon which twenty-five American citizens had taken passage, occurred without the slightest warning, according to stories told by American survivors. Consular representatives in England cabled the State Department to-day. The survivors declared that one of six lifeboats, launched after the explosion and capsized, throwing its occupants into the sea. Two of the survivors, Drake and Huxley, said that, so far as they knew, only three Americans reached the lifeboats. Fifteen passengers, they said, were injured. They believed that several Americans were lost.

BRITISH STEAMER SUNK.

LONDON, March 25. Reports say the British steamship Salvia has been sunk and that the passengers and crew were saved. She was 3,252 tons, owned in London. In the last available records the ship was reported as having left Barbados on March 4 for London.

BRITISH LINER SUNK.

MARSEILLES, March 26. The British liner Minneapolis was sunk in the Mediterranean last week by a submarine, according to Captain Bibby, of the British steamer Leicestershire, which has arrived here from Haiphong. Capt. Bibby reports that while in the Mediterranean on last Wednesday, he received a wireless call for help from the Minneapolis.

The steamer had just been torpedoed and was sinking. He went full speed to her assistance, but too late, as the vessel had sunk. The fate of the crew was not known. The Minneapolis was a steamer of 13,543 tons gross, built in 1900 at Belfast, and owned by the Atlantic Transport Co. Late shipping records do not give the movements of the vessel, which probably was in the British Government service. Prior to the war, the Minneapolis plied between American ports and London.

MORAN DEFEATED.

NEW YORK, March 26. Jesse Willard, champion heavyweight of the world, easily outpointed Frank Moran in ten rounds here last night. Willard had better points in every round except the third, which went to Moran by a narrow margin.

The conqueror of Jack Johnson claimed to have broken all the bones on the back of the right hand during a slashing rally in the third round. It was noticeable that he did not use his right hand to any extent in the later rounds. The chief feature of Moran's battle was his gameness. Although he could make no impression on Willard with his hardest swings, he fought steadily and courageously under a fusillade of left jabs and hooks which battered his face, and almost closed his left eye toward the end of the bout. The champion never was in danger from Moran's blows, although a number landed with crushing force on his jaw and body. Most of them either were blocked or avoided by the Kansas cowboy, who took full advantage of his great height and extraordinary reach.

The Mission.

The closing exercises in connection with the Women's Mission, conducted by the Passionist Fathers, were held yesterday afternoon. The mission for the men began with Vespers at the Cathedral at 7 o'clock last night. It was one of the largest congregations ever witnessed at the church.

Following the recital of the Rosary by Rev. Fr. Columban, an eloquent and inspiring sermon was preached on the fate of the multitude and the salvation of the individual. Appropriate and touching parallels were drawn from failures and failures. At the close the preacher informed the congregation to restore ill-gotten and unlawful gains. Benediction was imparted by Rev. Dr. Greene.

18 POUNDS OF BLOOD

is the average quantity in a healthy adult, but it is the quality of the blood that determines our strength to resist sickness. With weak blood we find cold hands and chilly feet; in children an aversion to study, and in adults rheumatic tendencies.

In changing seasons get abundant fresh air and take a spoonful of Scott's Emulsion after meals, because Scott's Emulsion is a rich blood-food that will increase both quantity and quality of the blood while it warms the body and helps carry off the impurities.

When multitudes of people are to-day taking Scott's Emulsion to avert winter sickness, and are giving it to their children, it is careless to neglect its benefits. Look out for substitutes. Scott & Bower, Toronto, Ont.

Hymns in the Trenches

Brig. McKenzie, Salvation Army chaplain with the Australian forces, writes from Gallipoli: "I had three meetings yesterday, and all of them were very helpful, profitable seasons. At night, 'mid the booming of the guns, we sat on the hillside in the fading twilight, and as we sang the familiar hymn, 'Jesus, Lover of my Soul,' the strains of the grand, helpful prayer wafted down and around the valley, and it was taken up by the men on all sides.

The sentries standing on guard at the mouths of the trenches nearby, with bayonets fixed, likewise joined in the refrain, and while we were singing, 'Plenteous Grace With Thee is Found,' a platoon of armed warriors marched right past us to take up their position in the support trenches, and they, too, passed on singing 'Let the healing streams abound, make and keep me pure within. Men realize as never before that the most manly thing to do is to worship and glorify God.'

Exiles' Welcome Home.

Mr. Ian Malcolm, M.P., gives a description in the Times of a moving scene witnessed by him at the Finland Station in Petrograd.

"We had come to greet, with pomp and circumstances and deep emotion, a hospital train-load of 'Grands Blesses,' returning home at last, after months of exile in Germany, incapacitated for further military service.

"There they stood, those who could do so, at the windows, with tears of gladness in their eyes as they heard the strains of the beloved Home-Song that drowned even the cheering in the barred-off street. There, too, lay others, legless or fever-stricken, pouring out on to the platform and waiting to be carried and laid once more upon the soil of the country for which they had given of their best.

"A rush of white-smocked students, these are the orderlies and stretcher-bearers, surges past us, and in half an hour the 200 exiles are comfortably placed in the long reception hall. Since our departure a little portable altar has been set up at one end of the hall; priests in vestments of silver and gold, a choir of twenty voices, have arrived. The Emperor's representative, in ringing tones, proclaims His Majesty's 'Welcome Home'; the band repeats the National Anthem, which the exiles sing through tears that no pain or terror could have wrung from them, and a short 'Te Deum' service follows.

"The altar is reverently dismantled, priests and choir retire, and the men settle down to a good breakfast; happy as kings returning home from victory, and forgetful of all their past miseries in the splendour of the reception that has greeted them to-day."
