Conversational Cheating.

By RUTH CAMERON.

"How could you understand all that complicated camera stuff about stops and openings and shutters and f-stops that he was telling you?" Mollie asked the Author-Man's wife the other day. "I couldn't," said the Author-Man's wife. "Why, you acted as if you didn't," said Mollie. "You kept saying, 'Yes,' and 'Of course,' and 'Isn't it interesting?' and you sounded really interested."

"Of course, you silly," said the Author-Man's wife. "Would I tell him that he was talking Sanskrit as far as I was concerned?"

"But why didn't you ask him to explain the things you didn't understand?"

She Hates Explanations.

"Horror!" said the Author-Man's wife. "I didn't want him to explain. If it's anything I hate, it's explanations, and if I had asked him a question, he would probably be explaining yet. Of course, I pretended to understand. I always do when people talk about things like that. He was satisfied and so was I. I like him and he liked to talk about cameras."

I suppose the method of the Author-Man's wife is familiar to most of us. For most of us use it sometimes. I know I do. But I wish I didn't.

You-Say "I See." When You Don't See.

For when you come right down to it, isn't it cheating, conversational cheating?

People talk to you in good faith and you cheat them. You give them a pretence of understanding instead of honest understanding. You say "I see."

and "How interesting!" when you don't see, and it isn't the least bit interesting to you.

You Don't Listen With Your Mind.

Your smiles and the bright, sympathetic tones of your voice mask a wandering attention. You are talking of baseball or cameras or politics or machinery, and you are thinking of what you had better have for dinner, or of that book you want to get back to.

And, like all imposters, you cheat not only the other party, but yourself. For, if you listened with your mind instead of merely with your ears, if you tried honestly to understand, if you asked intelligent questions and listened to the answers, you would train your mind, you would widen your sympathies. It does not pay to cheat, even in conversation.

Mr. C. B. Simmons, the popular manager, of the Bank of Nova Scotia, Carbonear, was here Saturday and returned to Carbonear by Monday's train. Mr. Simmons does quite a business for the Bank of Nova Scotia in this district.

The season's fishery is practically over and the greater part of the fishing boats have been hauled ashore. A few fishermen still try their luck on the fishing grounds and procure from half to three quintals daily.

Your Boys and Girls.

Many parents make a great mistake in not stimulating the imagination of their children. A child will play for a whole day with a train made of chairs because imagination enters the game; the armchair is an engine, the sofa is the sleeping car, another armchair is the baggage car.

But if you give him a perfect thing his imagination is left out in the cold; there is no part for it to take in the game, there is nothing to be done with the mechanical model except to break it open and see how it works.

That is why the train of chairs or the rough grotesque toy train will always give more real pleasure than the most elaborate machinery that can be conceived; that is why the rag doll or the woolly lamb will always be nearer the heart's affections than the most wonderfully equipped and elaborately clothed French poodle.

Never use a liniment near an open flame, for a liniment usually contains some combustible element. Always rub a liniment into the skin until it is nearly dry.

Our Volunteers.

Small Percentage of Recruits Passed Medical Exam.

There was very little doing in the way of recruiting at Headquarters yesterday and the volunteers in training spent the day at indoor exercise, one squad last night having rifle practice at the Highlanders' Armoury.

The fifty recruits, including 25 who came from the North by the S. S. Prospero the day previous, underwent the medical examination and an exceptionally small proportion of that number passed successfully. Only nine volunteers were pronounced by the doctors to be physically fit for service. The cause for rejection in most cases was flat feet.

The funeral of the late Capt. James Parsons took place yesterday, and was largely attended. Interment took place in the Methodist Cemetery.

The handsome sum of $34.00 was realized at the High School Concert, held on Tuesday last.

Mr. Charles Morrissey, R. C. Teacher, of Carbonear, has the sympathy of all his friends here on the death of his oldest daughter, Mary Agnes, aged 14 years, which took place last week. The funeral took place on Sunday last, interment in the R. C. Cemetery, Harbor Grace.

The weather to-day is very disagreeable, with S. E. occasional showers, and very few people about the streets.

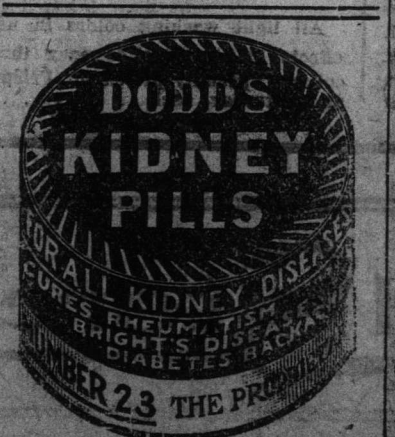

To-day "All Saints Days," is observed in town as a holiday by our Catholic fellow-citizens.

At St. James' Hall, Carbonear, is to be held a very pretty concert and Musical War Masque for the benefit of the local W. P. A.

The ladies of Christ Church Women's Guild intend holding their annual sale on the 21st and 22nd. The ladies are working hard to make their sale a success, as it surely will be.

This Ointment Pos Power

Two Cases Which Prove the Extraordinary Power of the Ointment

The use of Dr. Chase's Ointment is wonderfully satisfactory because you can actually see the results accomplished. It is surprising what change can be brought about in a single night by this great healing ointment.

Mr. George Beavis, 119 James street, Peterboro, Ont., writes: "As a healing ointment, I consider Dr. Chase's the best obtainable. I had a large running sore on my leg, and although I had tried all the prescriptions of two doctors I was unable to get any relief from the pain or to get the sore healed. One day my druggist handed me a sample box of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and I used it with such good results that I decided to give the ointment a fair trial. Altogether I used four boxes, and I am glad to be able to say that the sore on my leg is entirely healed up. Since this experience with Dr. Chase's Ointment I have recommended it to many people."
