The People Must Act.

Every man who has participated in the public affairs of Newfoundland, and who is blessed with health and vigor is morally blameable if he does not use every effort to help stamp out the evil which threatens the welfare of the dominion at the present moment, and stand up in protest against the serious menace which endangers our political and commercial existence. It is the bounden duty of every citizen to safeguard our sacred liberties. It is doubly the duty of our public men—past and present—to step into the breach and save the country from the clutches of revolutionary demagogues, who are sapping her very vitals. The people of this Colony to-day are terrorized: they are paralyzed with fear at the conditions which threaten the land. Hunger, unemployment and destitution, with their accompanying evils menace the breadwinners. Newfoundland is in the grip of the Bolshevik, and far worse will happen if the people do not at once make an attempt to break the chains that bind them to the chariot wheels of the spellbinders, who threaten their independence, and who appear to possess no other policy than that of reckless expenditure of the taxes wrung from an already overburdened population.

Is it possible, under such conditions as have been recapitulated, that the Opposition members will longer remain silent? If so, then the public should impress upon them the need for immediate action. If no man amongst those who are the regularly constituted Opposition in the House of Assembly, cares to take upon himself the responsibilities of leadership in the present crisis, let the people seek a leader outside the ranks. Let them get a man who will be capable of uniting all the forces of clean and sturdy Opposition: a man who will be guided solely by the present needs and future welfare of the people. We have in our mind's eye such an one and feel impelled to name him, but prefer to leave the choice to the masses, who should convene a public meeting without delay and choose a leader of integrity and honesty of purpose to whom they could look with confidence and in whom they could place implicit trust. Conditions in this dominion, at the moment, are deplorable. The men who control its political destinies are incapable of weathering the approaching storm. The ship of state is battling with tempests and beset by shoals and reefs, and the financial breakers are dead ahead. Must the old ship ultimately become a wreck, broken and destroyed? This will surely happen unless the people arise, in their might and majesty and thrust the present incapables in charge from the command. No time should be lost. The matter is too serious for delay and instant action is necessary if a tragedy in our political affairs is to be averted.

As an authority on fish, the Star is a marvel.

Notes and Comments.

For a journalistic failure we seem to be giving the Advocate a lot to think and write about lately.

The late King of Greece was bitten by a monkey, and people are waiting to see if any kind of bug has bitten ex-King Constantine.

A Boston woman leader promises a war on tobacco as strenuous as that waged against liquor. Is there any room left for the weed in your cellar?

The prisoner: "There goes my hat. Shall I run after it?"
Policeman: "What? Run away and never come back again? You stand I'll run after your hat."

In a recent lecture tour, Mrs. Fankhurst told American audiences that the women would beat Bolshevism. Her daughter, accused of conspiracy with Lenin, proves the rule.

A man in Omaha burnt all his wife's clothing because she wouldn't stay in at night. After a careful examination of a few evening styles we can't see that it would make much difference.

In yesterday's issue of the Advocate, the Telegram and its editor were mentioned no less than forty-two times, on the editorial page. We are getting almost as much free advertisement as Mr. Coaker himself.

The clearing and sailing of fish cargo carriers from St. John's and the outports are published in the Telegram daily from the Custom House reports, and no suppression of the number so sailing for market has been made. Try another, Faustus.

A Thames barge was knocked down by a taxicab last week. It is said that his opening remarks were good, and were almost completed when they had to be postponed, as he had an engagement the following Wednesday.

The schoolmaster asked his class if any of them could tell him what an epidemic was.
No answer.
"Well, I will tell you. An epidemic is anything that spreads. Now, what is an epidemic?"
"Jam, sir!" shouted the class, in chorus.

The Acid Test for Reformers.

A hundred and fifty years ago there lived a man who wrote a splendid book.

The title was "The Friend of Men," and the progressive elements in France and England hailed it as an important contribution to their cause.

What sort of a man was the author, the Marquis of Mirabeau?

He did his best to ruin the career of his son, the great Mirabeau.

He kept his wife locked up in an asylum the greater part of her life, while he lived with another woman.

He persecuted his daughter, and reviled his second son.

In his study, locked away from the world, he could dream fine dreams of universal kindness and friendship; but in actual life the "Friend of Men," as Carlyle said, "was the enemy of almost every man he had to do with."

I have known a good many reformers in my life, and have found them an interesting study.

Of course, as a class, they are not as interesting as reformers were two hundred or three hundred years ago; and for the simple reason that there is now no danger nor inconvenience attached to the profession.

When a man ran the risk of being burned at the stake or losing his head on the block for the sake of convictions, he compelled a certain admiration whether one agreed with him or not.

But the modern reformer runs no such risks. He may denounce the rich until he is out of breath, and the penalty is only applause. He may thunder away at the church or the state, and instead of incurring any sacrifice he wakes up to find his picture in the Sunday papers.

But the two general types of reformers remain what they have always been—the small, quiet, conscientious group of those who back up their words by their works; and the noisy, unpleasant and selfish group who criticize conditions as they are, but do nothing by their lives to make conditions better.

Before I accept any man's criticism at face value, I want to know of him: Is he supporting a wife and children? Is he as good a husband and father, on the whole, as the men he is denouncing?

Does he pay taxes and vote? Is he as good a citizen as those whom he would overthrow?

If he does not meet these tests, then though he speak with the tongues of angels, he does not interest me, and I will not leave my book at night to go out to a hall and listen to him.

This truth was written many years ago:

"If any man say 'I love God' and hateth his brother he is a liar: for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen?"

"That's the real acid test of reformers to me. Before they tell me how much they love God and the race, I'd like a chance to ask them, please: 'First, how do you stand at home?'"

Ordained to the Priesthood.

An impressive and interesting Ordination Service, took place on "All Saint's Day," at 10 a.m., in the Anglican Cathedral, when the Rev. James R. Davies, B.A., was ordained Priest, by His Lordship Bishop White, assisted by seven priests, viz., Revs. Canon Jeeves, Field and Smith; Drs. Bolt and Facey; Rev. J. Brinton, (Chaplain) and Rev. Pike.

The Bishop wore his magnificent cope and mitre. The Ordination Service was preached by the Rector, Canon Jeeves, and was a helpful and uplifting discourse. Rev. J. Davies came to Newfoundland in January last, shortly after being ordained Deacon by the Bishop of London, in St. Paul's Cathedral, London, Eng. After a course at St. Augustine's College, Canterbury, and Cambridge University, Mr. Davies took his B.A. degree. Since coming to this country he has been Curate to Rev. Canon Smart, R.D. of Heart's Content, but will now be transferred to Fogo as Incumbent of Joe Batt's Arm.

When war broke out Mr. Davies was about to be ordained, but immediately entered the Royal Navy, returning to Burgh Missionary College, Lincolnshire, to complete his theological training, when the great conflict ended. The late Captain R. Davies, R.N., of H.M.S. Griffin, father of the above, was well known in Newfoundland in the eighties, when on the North American Station. Rev. J. and Mrs. Davies leave on the next boat for their future home and will be followed by the good wishes of their many friends in England and Newfoundland. The Evening Telegram joins in wishing them many years of happiness and prosperity in their new life.

"My Lady's Garter."

AT THE CASINO TO-NIGHT.

To-night the popular Klark-Urban Company will be seen in a beautiful production of surpassing interest, namely "My Lady's Garter." The theft of the garter, and the resultant complications, make one of the most fascinating entertainments ever put in play form. Every line is clean, not a trace of suggestiveness in the whole revelation of the chase for the garter, and its final return to its rightful owner. The story was first told by the late Jacques Futelle who went down with the "Titanic." The Saturday Evening Post selected "My Lady's Garter" as his greatest contribution to literature. The dramatization was made by Mr. Lee Morrison, a genius who has kept all the thrilling mystery and clean humor of the story in the dramatization. Monday's offering is "The Man From Home," seats for which may be had at Fred V. Cheseman's.

C. L. B. Old Comrades.

The C.L.B. Old Comrades held a meeting last night in their Club Rooms, C.L.B. Armory, which was attended by a large gathering. They have decided to hold a smoker on the 17th instead of the 9th, and it is hoped that a large number of C.L.B. Old Boys will attend. They also have made all arrangements in connection with the coming dance to be held Wednesday the 10th. Judging by the number of tickets already sold, there will be a full hall on that date. The meeting adjourned at 10.30 to meet again at an early date.

C. L. B. Cadets Officers' Dance.

Arrangements are now well in hand for the Grand Dance to be held by the Officer's Mess of the C.L.B. Cadets in the C.C.C. Hall on Nov. 24th. Tickets are now in course of preparation, and may be obtained shortly from any of the officers of the Brigade.

McMurdo's Store News.

We have now a large shipment of that Na Du Co. Tasteless Preparation of Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphite and Wild Cherry. It is a splendid preparation for coughs, colds, etc., and as a restorative tonic it gives good results. We are now selling this, large $1.00 bottle for 80c., while this shipment lasts.

We have also a wide assortment of Nail Brushes, Tooth Brushes, Nail Files and Manicure Scissors, and if you need any of these just now we are sure we can please you. Also that new Bath Salt, Bradley's Woodland Vollet Sea Salts, with all the refreshing properties of the real Sea Salt.

AT THE BALSAM.

The following are guests at "The Balsam": R. Spencer, Fortune; Hugh F. Coady, Mr. Breton; Dr. MacDonald, Grand Bank; Mr. E. Inkpen, Burin; Miss G. Farnham, O. Farnham; Heart's Content; Capt. G. Hicks, Grand Falls; Mr. W. J. Parsons, R. Grace; J. T. Crocker, Battle Harbor.

2500 Quintals

Went Down

WHEN SCHOONER SANK. The following message was received yesterday evening by the Deputy Minister of Customs from the Sub-Collector at Catalina:—"Schr. H. B. Haskell, belonging to P. Templeman, sprang a leak whilst crossing White Bay on November 1st and sank with 2,500 qtls. of Labrador codfish. Crew taken off by schr. Cactus and brought here." The schr. was bound to Catalina from the Labrador and was a vessel of about 95 tons. This is the second cargo of Labrador fish that has gone to the bottom within the past week, the schr. Bernard B. Conrad being reported abandoned in mid-ocean whilst bound to Malaga with 3,400 qtls. from J. Rorke & Sons.

Shipping Notes.

Schr. Blanche Forey has entered at Wood's Island to load herring for Gloucester.

S.S. Mapledene finished discharging yesterday evening, and sailed last night for Montreal.

The auxiliary schooner Haabet has entered to load fish for Brazil at Job Bros. & Co., Ltd.

S.S. Ingraham with the schooner Little Princess in tow arrived in port last night from H. Grace.

S.S. Pelican, which is owned by the Hudson Bay Company, will likely prosecute the seal-fishery the coming spring. The Pelican is well adapted for ice and should make a successful seal hunter.

Had to Jettison Cargo.

The schr. Elizabeth Fearn, which arrived at Bala during the week, reports meeting exceptionally rough weather, and in order to save the vessel Capt. Vatcher was forced to jettison several hundred packages of fish. The vessel was loaded by G. M. Barr and sailed from this port the 20th of September.

Koval Gets Ten Years for Perjury.

Asquitted of the charge of murdering his chum, Jimmy Marinelli, about a year ago, says the North Sydney Herald, Mike Koval, last Saturday, was found guilty in Sydney of having sworn falsely during the murder hearing of this case, and was sentenced by Judge Langley to ten years in Dorchester penitentiary. A request by Koval's counsel, D. A. Cameron, for a crown case reserved, was refused by the Judge.

Nfld. Poultry Association

The big meeting to finalise matter for the 8th Annual Show, takes place Monday under the chairmanship of President H. A. LeMessurier, C.M.G., and the veteran Secretary John P. Calver, Esq. The Judge this year will be new to the Newfoundland Poultry breed as he has never been here before—his name is well known as a prize winner in the big recent "Hen's Egg Laying Race" at Truro, N.S. His breed is Rhode Island Reds and his name Mr. Edison Griffin of Port Williams, Kings Co., and has been selected by Judge Landry. The Reid family are granting special railway rates for outport visitors to the show and the Poultry Club will pay all the express charges on birds sent to the exhibition one way—that is the exhibition pays the charges to St. John's and the Association ships them back free of cost to the outport exhibitor. The show will be held in the C.L.B. Armory, Dec 1, 2 and 3rd. The Association members are glad to hear that Mr. Percy Johnson, one of the original promoters and founders of the Association is improving in health and they hope he will be able to spend an hour at the show. There will be a big exhibit of feathered beauties from Chancery Barr Rock Yards of Grand Falls as well as from the members of the newly organized Bell Island Poultry Association.—Q.

Naval Men Transferred.

By yesterday's express twenty-four Naval men, who had completed their time on this station, left for Quebec, en route to England. The men were in charge of Warrant Officer King, of H.M.S. Briton, and had been nearly eighteen months on the training ship and during their stay had made many friends, and quite a number were at the station to give them a hearty send-off. Five of the ship's football team were amongst those who left, but it is learned that amongst the new relief, which arrived last week, there are some excellent players who will be a big acquisition to the team next season.

Stricken by Paralysis.

Halifax, N.S., Nov. 1.—W. C. Smith, of Lunenburg, managing owner of the Canadian tender in the International Fishing Schooner Races, who was stricken with paralysis last night is reported to be not much improved to-day. The stroke was attributed partly to undue excitement attendant on the international races.

Obituary.

THOMAS HORWOOD.

The death of Thomas Horwood occurred yesterday forenoon, at the residence of his sister, Mrs. W. H. Moulton, Queen Street, after an illness of about three months, death being attributed to cancer of the liver.

About two months ago the deceased, who was a prominent merchant of Rose Blanche, Nfld., came here and entered the Hamilton hospital for treatment. The disease, however, had made such inroads on his system that it was soon discovered he was beyond earthly aid, and he left the hospital to spend the short period that remained between him and eternity at the home of his sister, where everything possible was done to make his brief stay comfortable. He died fully resigned.

Mr. Horwood was one of the most successful business men at Rose Blanche, and in the course of his varied and extensive dealings with the business fraternity of North Sydney, he made a wide circle of true friends, who will deeply mourn his passing.

The deceased, who was only forty-eight years of age, is survived by his wife, four sisters and four brothers, as follows: Mrs. W. H. Moulton, Mrs. Harry LeMoine and Mary residing here, and Mrs. R. L. Jefferson, Halifax, and George at Gloucester Bay, John, of this town, and James and William, prominent merchants of Rose Blanche.

The remains will be taken to Rose Blanche to-night, after funeral services, conducted by Rev. A. W. Nichols, Rector of St. James' Anglican Church.—North Sydney Herald, Nov. 2.

Susu Meets Mishap.

On the trip north the S. S. Susu had her rudder post broken off in a seaway. The accident happened Sunday night last while on the way to Carmanville. The crew made temporary repairs with wire cables and the ship was able to make all ports of call. It is likely that the Susu will be sent to Harbor Grace for repairs as the dock here will be engaged for the next three weeks. Meanwhile it is likely that the S. S. Edmund Donald will take up the Susu's route.
