Ore Deposit in Nfld.

Cape Breton Men are Interested in Deposit at Notre Dame.

A number of prominent citizens of Glace Bay and the southern Colliery districts have become interested in a large iron ore deposit at Notre Dame, Newfoundland,

The leading spirits in the hig deal recently consummated, are Patrick Oshorne, of Glace Bay, some professional men and practical miners of local prominence, and a prominent citizen of Newfoundland. Extensive iron areas in the Old Colony have been acquired and an analysis of the ore indicates a deposit of high grade metal.

Financial interests of Great Britain a short time ago made overtures for the purchase of these areas but the inducement was not sufficient to com pel a sale. Subsequently, upper Canadian parties sought to acquire the title and at present United States and French agencies are operating to a similar end. The tallest figure so far offered, it is asserted, is between a quarter and a half million.

The present owners of the Notre Dame Bay properties are contemplating sending Mr. Osborne to New York and Philadelphia to deal with recent proposals made by big interests from that direction.—Sydney Post.
